EDITOR'S NOTE

STILL THE BEST

So significant is Johnny Bench in baseball history that he marks time. There is pre-Bench, and there is post-Bench.

And then there is the man himself, who says he just hopes to be remembered as someone who "left a positive impression on the game." Did he ever. Bench helped revolutionize the game's most demanding position, making the difficult look easy while possessing an arm few dared run on. He brought the one-handed catching technique to the forefront. Others tried it, with varying levels of success. None of the others handled it as flawlessly as Bench. He made it an art form.

At the plate, he slugged at least 40 home runs twice and led the majors in RBI three times. He and Tony Perez were the big bats coming behind Pete Rose and Joe Morgan. Bench could hurt you in so many ways and was the big wheel in the Big Red Machine.

Baseball has seen some great catchers over the years – Yogi Berra, Ivan Rodriguez, Gary Carter, Josh Gibson, Buster Posey, Yadier Molina to name a few – but the Benchmark remains Johnny.

Pre-Bench and Post-Bench.

Those are the two categories that every other catcher – however great they may have been – fall into. Because nobody else has ever played the position quite like Johnny Bench.

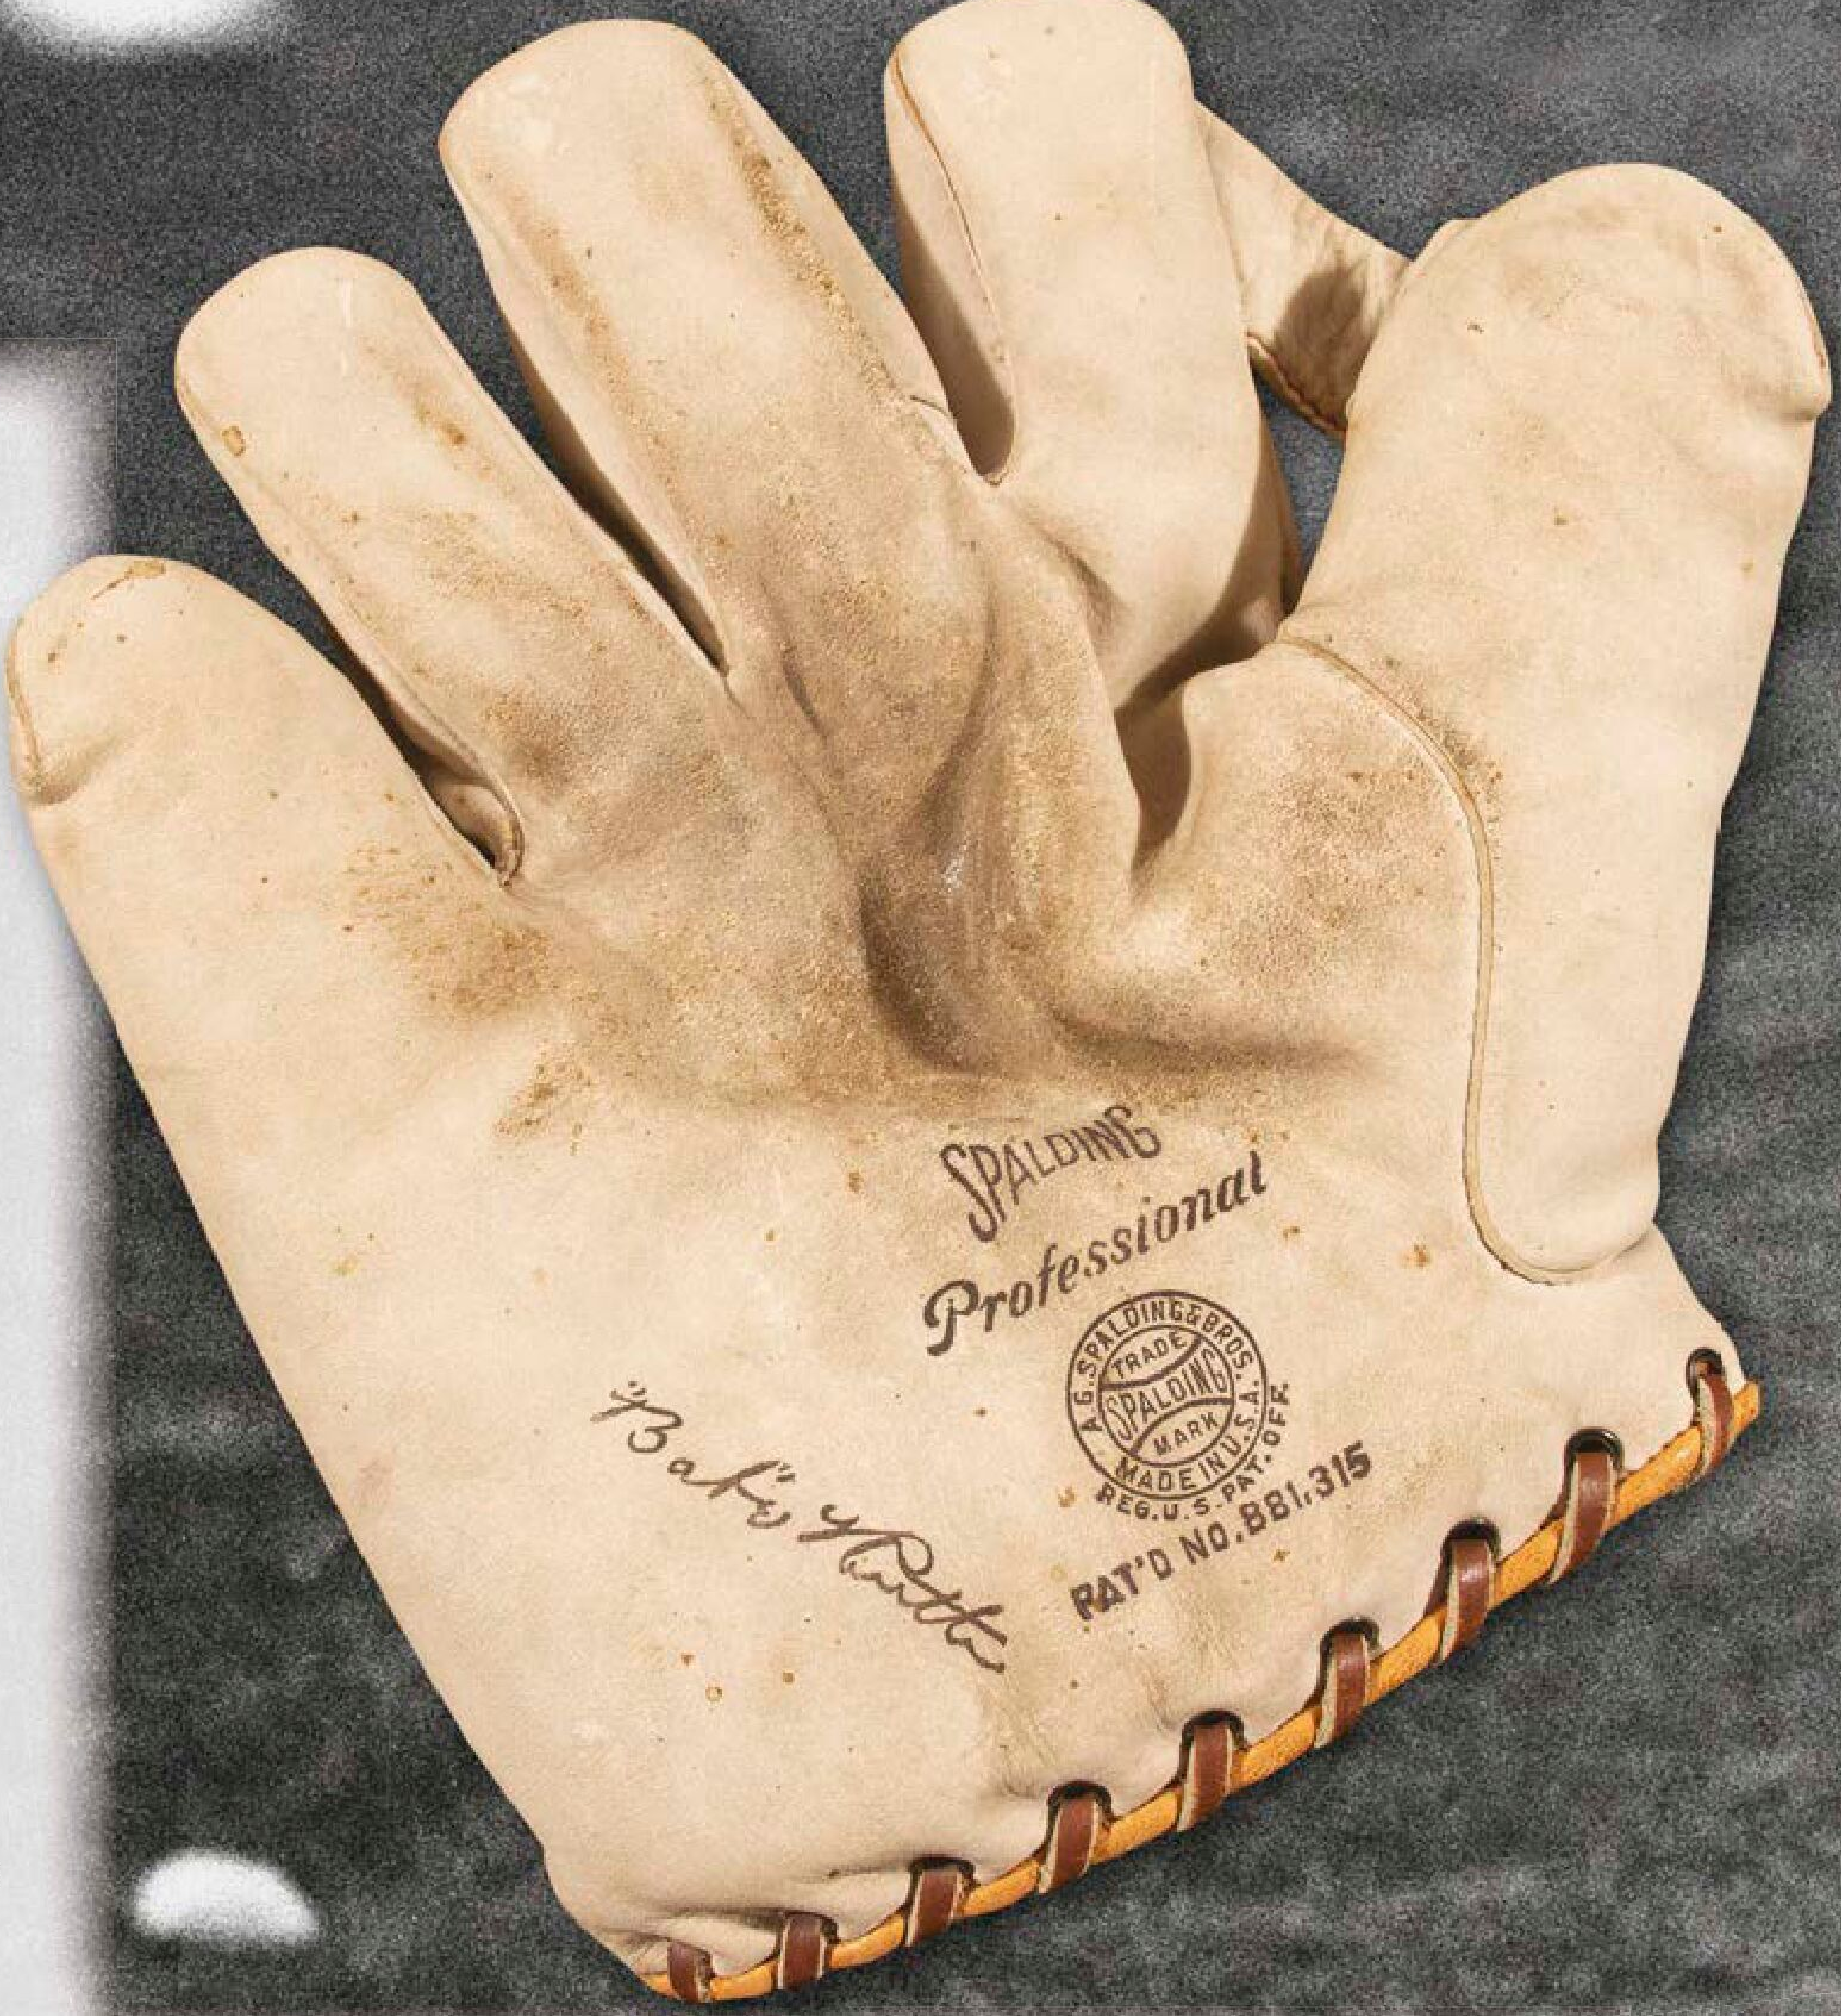
BABE RUTH GAME-USED GLOVE BRINGS $1.5 MILLION



A game-used glove worn by Babe Ruth set a record for the most ever paid for a baseball glove, bringing $1.53 million in auction.

The winning bidder was not revealed.

The white leather glove was sold Saturday, Nov. 12, as part of the 19th Annual Louisville Slugger Museum Live Auction, handled by Hunt Auctions. According to Hunt, the glove was gifted to former player Jimmy Austin – known by millions as the third baseman in the famous Charles Conlon photo of Ty Cobb sliding into third base, with Austin lifting his left leg to avoid Cobb's feet. Austin broke in with and played for the Yankees (then known as the Highlanders) and the St. Louis Browns from 1909-29 and was a friend of The Bambino.

According to Austin, he had asked Ruth if he had an old glove he didn't want anymore. Ruth said he did, and proceeded to present this one to him, a glove used by the Sultan of Swat during the Yankees' slugging era of the late 1920s. The glove remained with the Austin family after Jimmy passed away in 1965.

Hunt Auctions provided a 1964 audio clip of Austin being interviewed by author Lawrence Ritter for what would be his seminary work in 1966, The Glory of Their Times. In that clip, Austin tells Ritter of Ruth giving him the glove and Ritter marvels at the piece of history laying on a table in front of him.

Hunt also provided photographic evidence of Ruth wearing the very same glove, with specific markings highlighted.

The ring worn by Muhammad Ali to mark his third heavyweight championship sold for $84,000 (including buyer's premium) in a recent Goldin sale.

Ali's heavyweight titles came in 1964 vs. Sonny Liston, 1974 vs. George Foreman, and 1978 vs. Leon Spinks. Goldin called the ring worn by The Greatest "arguably one of the most important Muhammad Ali pieces of memorabilia ever put up for auction."

In the lot description, Goldin included the contents of a typed letter from Ali that stated, "To whom it may concern: I, Muhammad Ali, certify that the following item, Muhammad Ali World Champion three times 10 karat gold ring, was the official ring commemorating my third heavyweight championship victory over Leon Spinks, September 15, 1978, in the New Orleans Super Dome. The above mentioned ring accompanied by this letter will act as proof of authenticity. Sincerely, (signed Muhammad Ali in blue pen) Muhammad Ali."

Ali's signature on this letter comes with LOAs from both JSA (X28649) and PSA/DNA (AJ02087).

EARLY COBB BAT BREAKS $1 MILLION MARK

Grey Flannel sells 1905 rookie bat

The earliest known Ty Cobb game-used bat – this one dating to his rookie season of 1905 – sold for $1,074,544 in Grey Flannel's November 2022 Holiday Auction.

The bat is a Hillerich & Bradsby C28, a model specifically used from 1900-1905.

According to Grey Flannel, the bat "shows evidence of outstanding use with a slight crack on the upper handle. Ball marks can be seen on the right and back barrel." Grey Flannel further described the bat as the "earliest known and best in existence."

The sale marks just the third time a game bat has sold for more than $1 million. A 1918-22 Babe Ruth bat sold for $1.6 million by Heritage earlier this year, while a 1916-18 bat sold for $1.02 million last year.

As a rookie in 1905, the 18-year-old Cobb played 41 games with the Tigers, hitting .238 with a home run and 15 RBI. It was the only season in his 24-year career that he did not hit .300 or better.

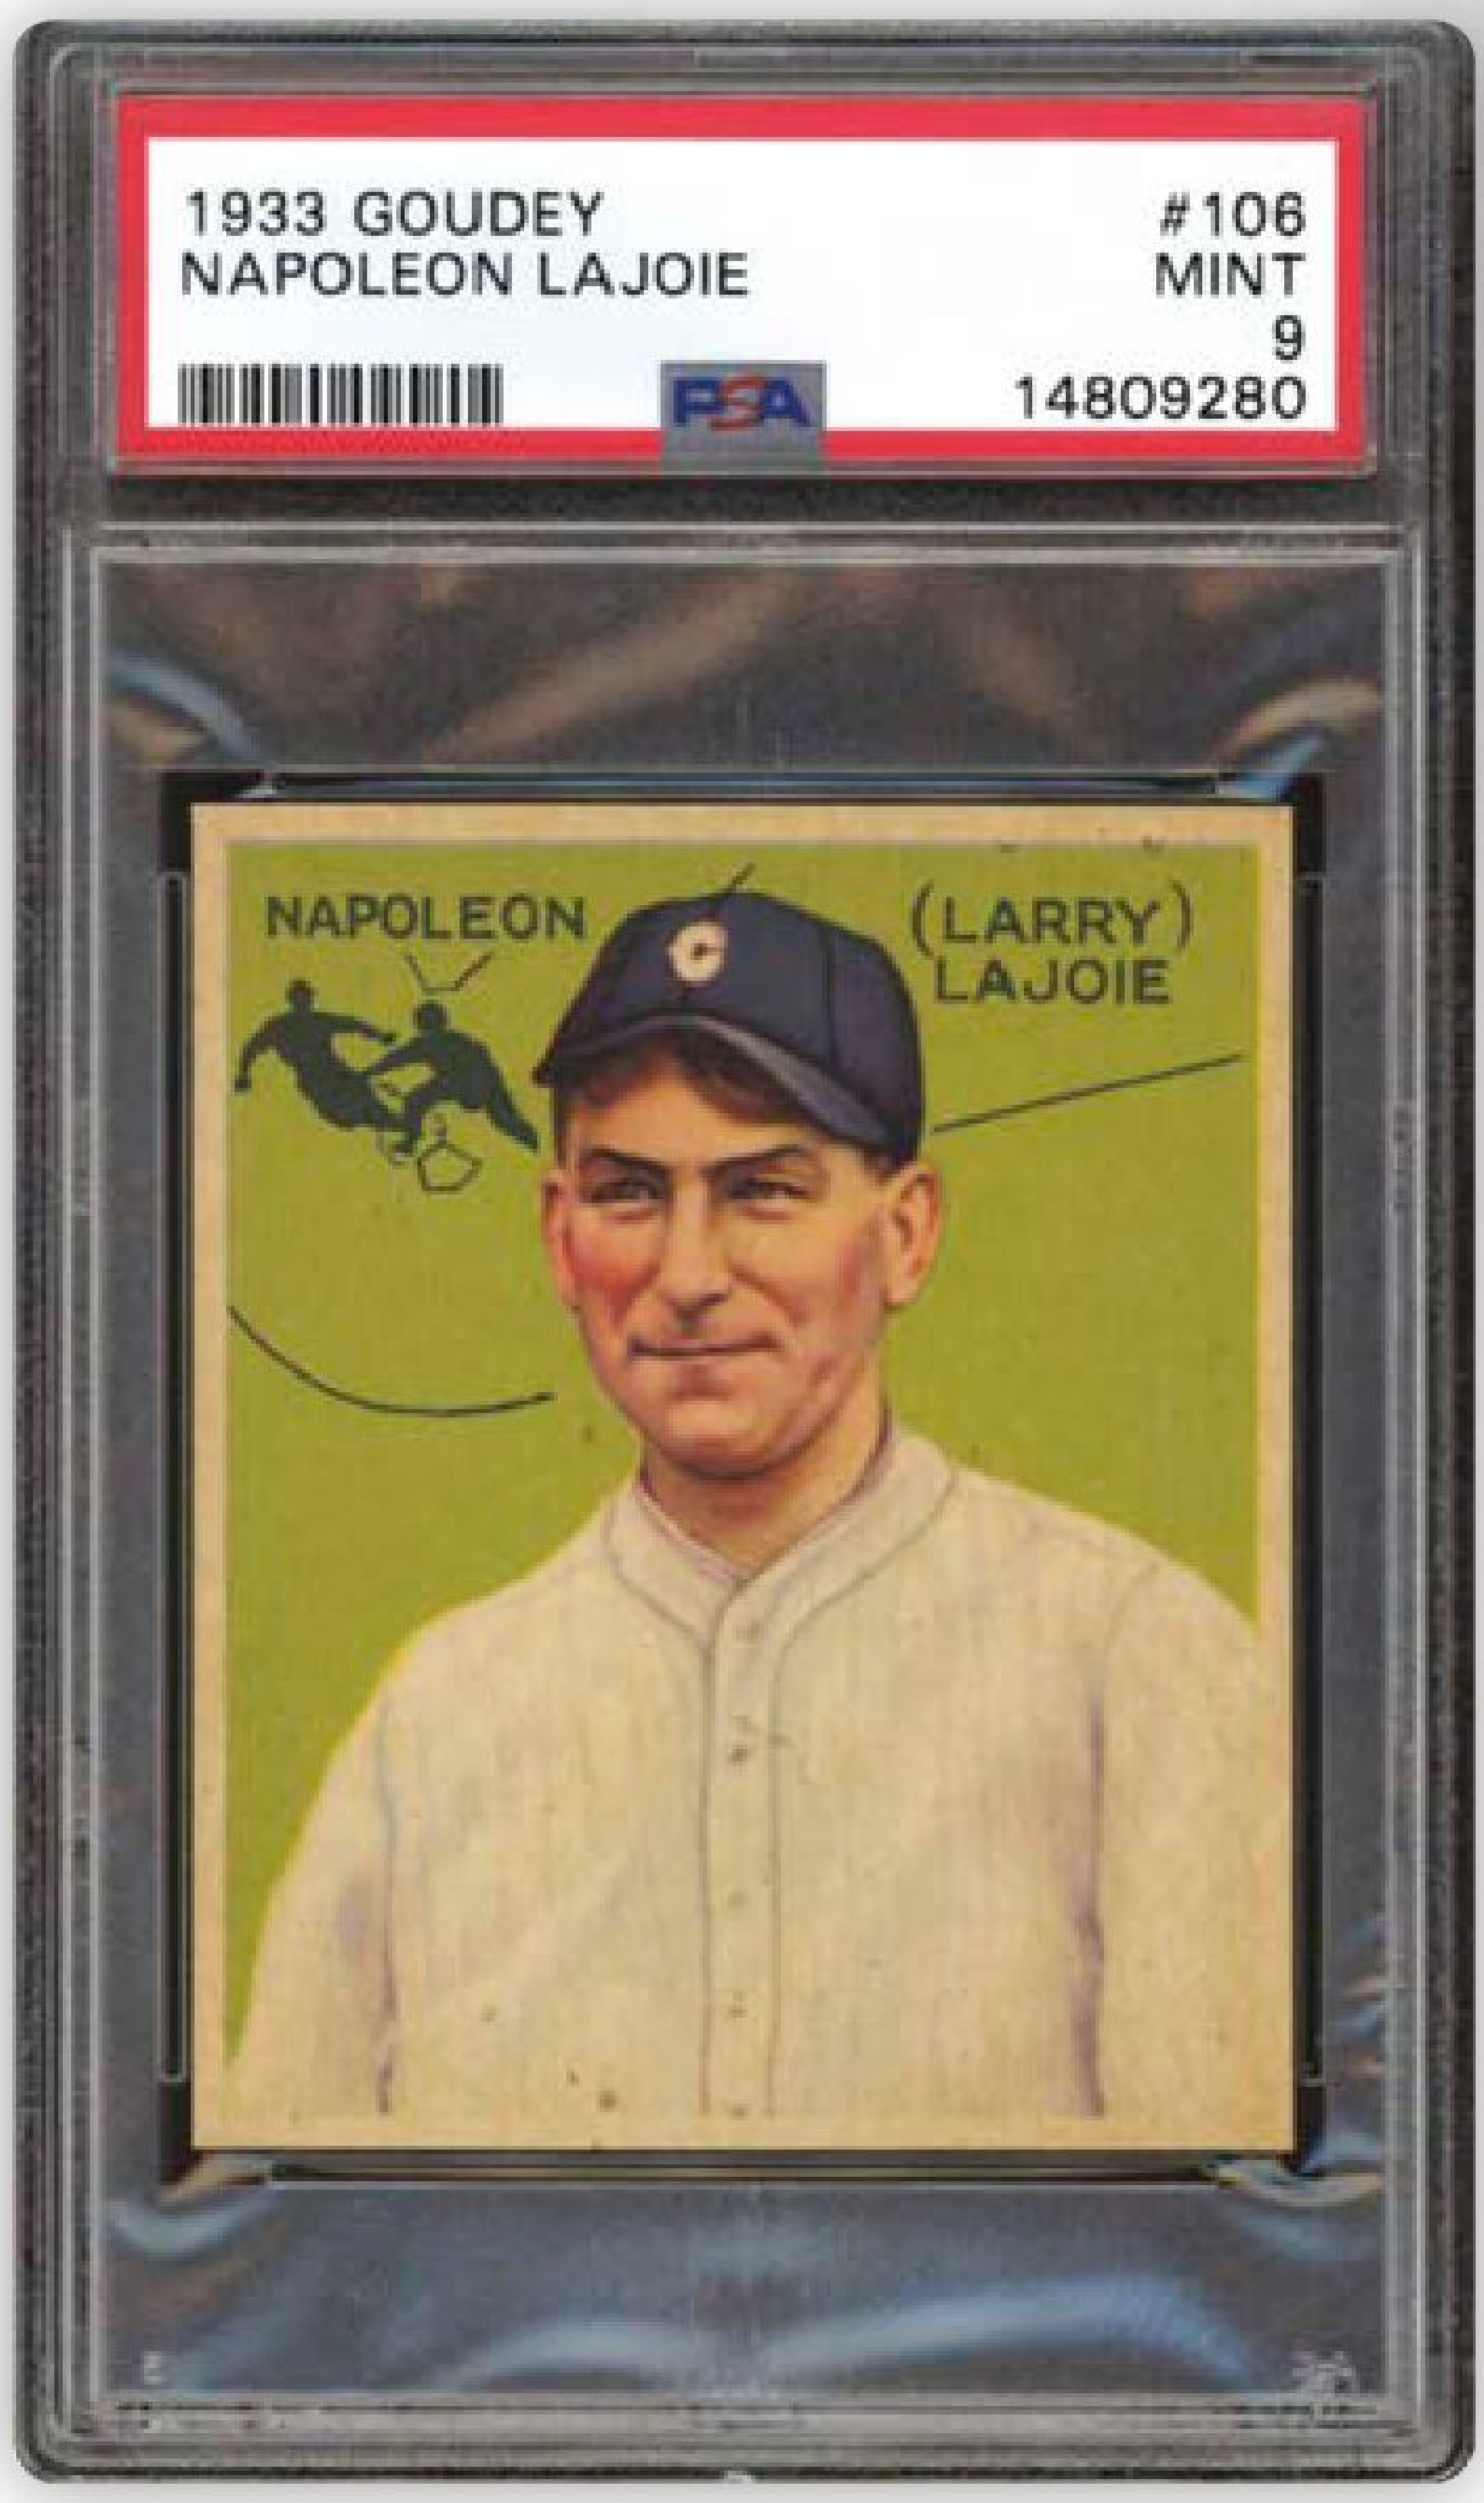
HIGH-GRADE SALE

Memory Lane sells PSA 9 ’33 Goudey Nap Lajoie



One of just nine copies of the scarce 1933 Goudey #106 Nap Lajoie graded PSA 9 Mint sold for $300,608 in Memory Lane’s Fall Rarities Premium Auction that closed in December.

The ’33 Goudey #106 is one of the hobby’s all-time legendary cards, with a backstory that includes the card for Lajoie – then a retired all-time great second baseman – never getting inserted into packs. There are different theories as to why this happened, but the real reason may never be known. So, when the Goudey Gum Company began receiving hundreds of letters complaining of a missing card #106, the company placed the card on a print sheet with its 1934 Goudey Baseball cards.

But Goudey never placed those ’33 Lajoie cards into ’34 Goudey Baseball packs. The only way to receive one was writing to the company requesting the card. Once they were gone, they were gone.

This Mint copy of this historic card featured a starting bid of $75,000 and attracted 23 bids

REA sells Hank Aaron's 1964 Milwaukee Braves jersey

A 1964 Milwaukee Braves road jersey worn by Hank Aaron sold for $168,000 in a December Robert Edward Auction sale. The jersey had been graded A8.5 by MEARS, and showed moderate wear and – outside of the missing nameplate on the back of the jersey – showed no evidence of alterations. The jersey opened at $50,000 and attracted 29 bidders for this piece of history. This jersey is from the next-to-last season for the Braves in Milwaukee.

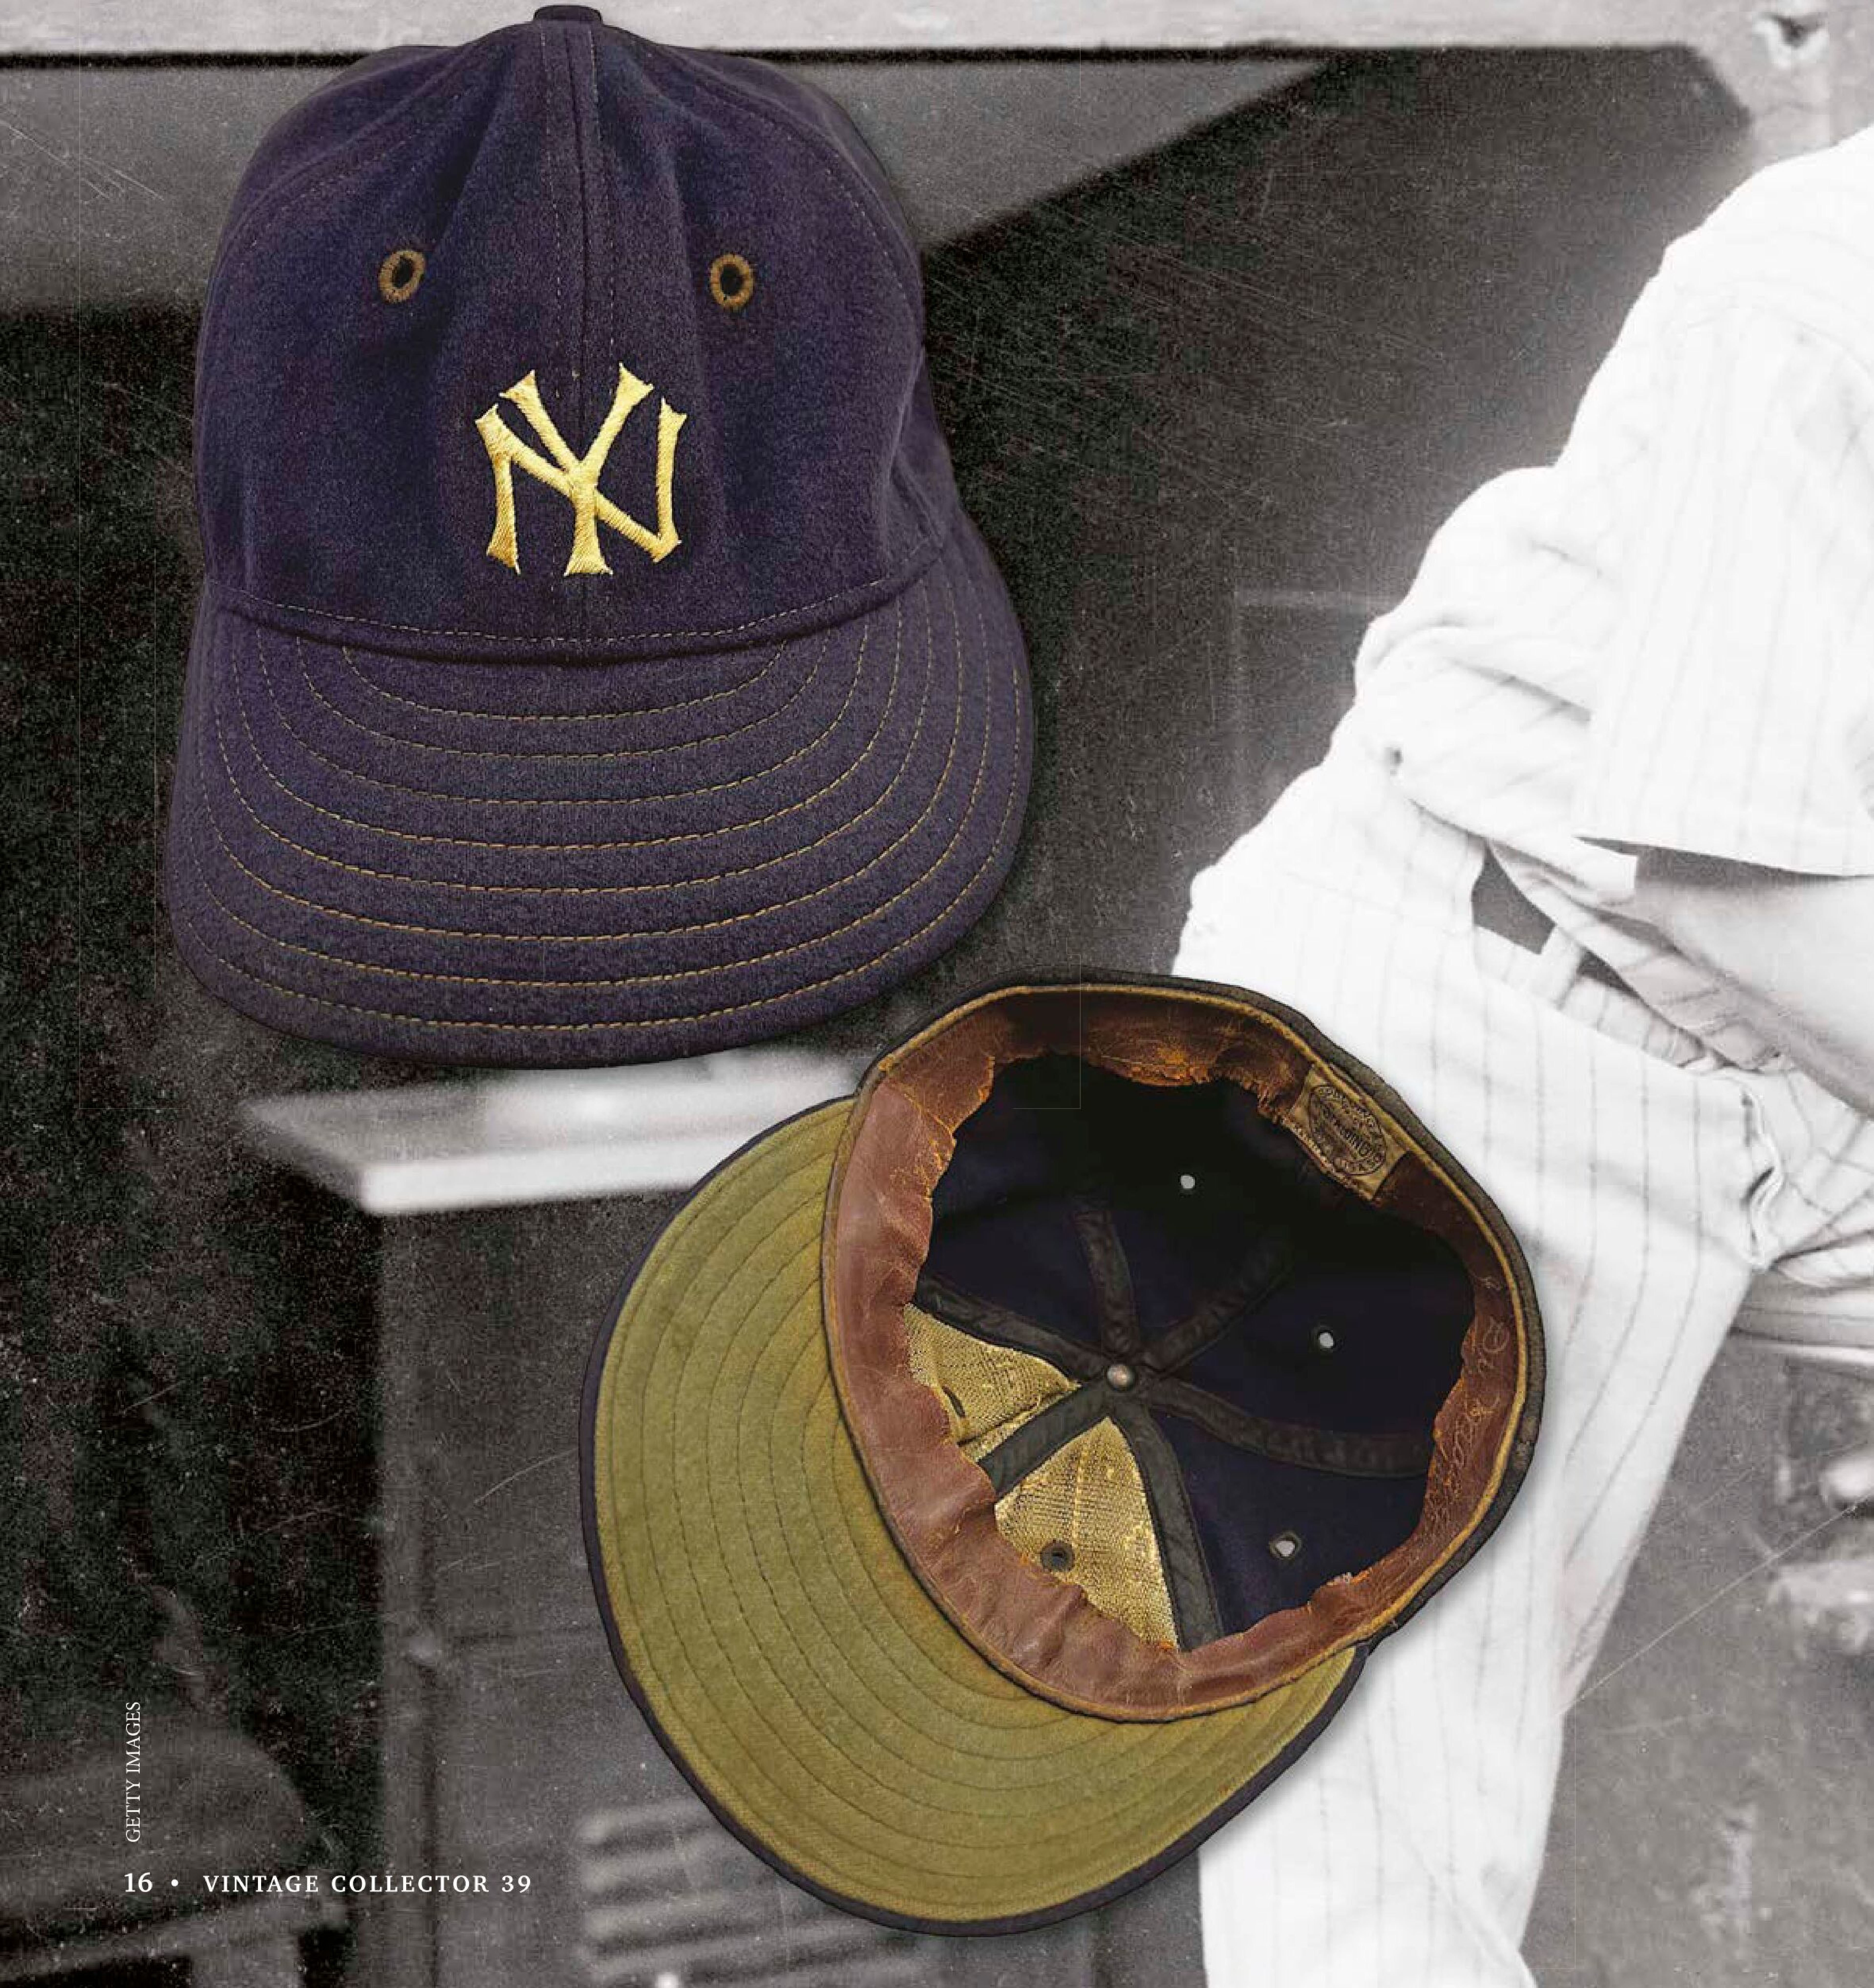
THE CLIPPER'S CAP

Grey Flannel's circa 1937 Joe DiMaggio game-used cap was gift from the player to the consignor's family

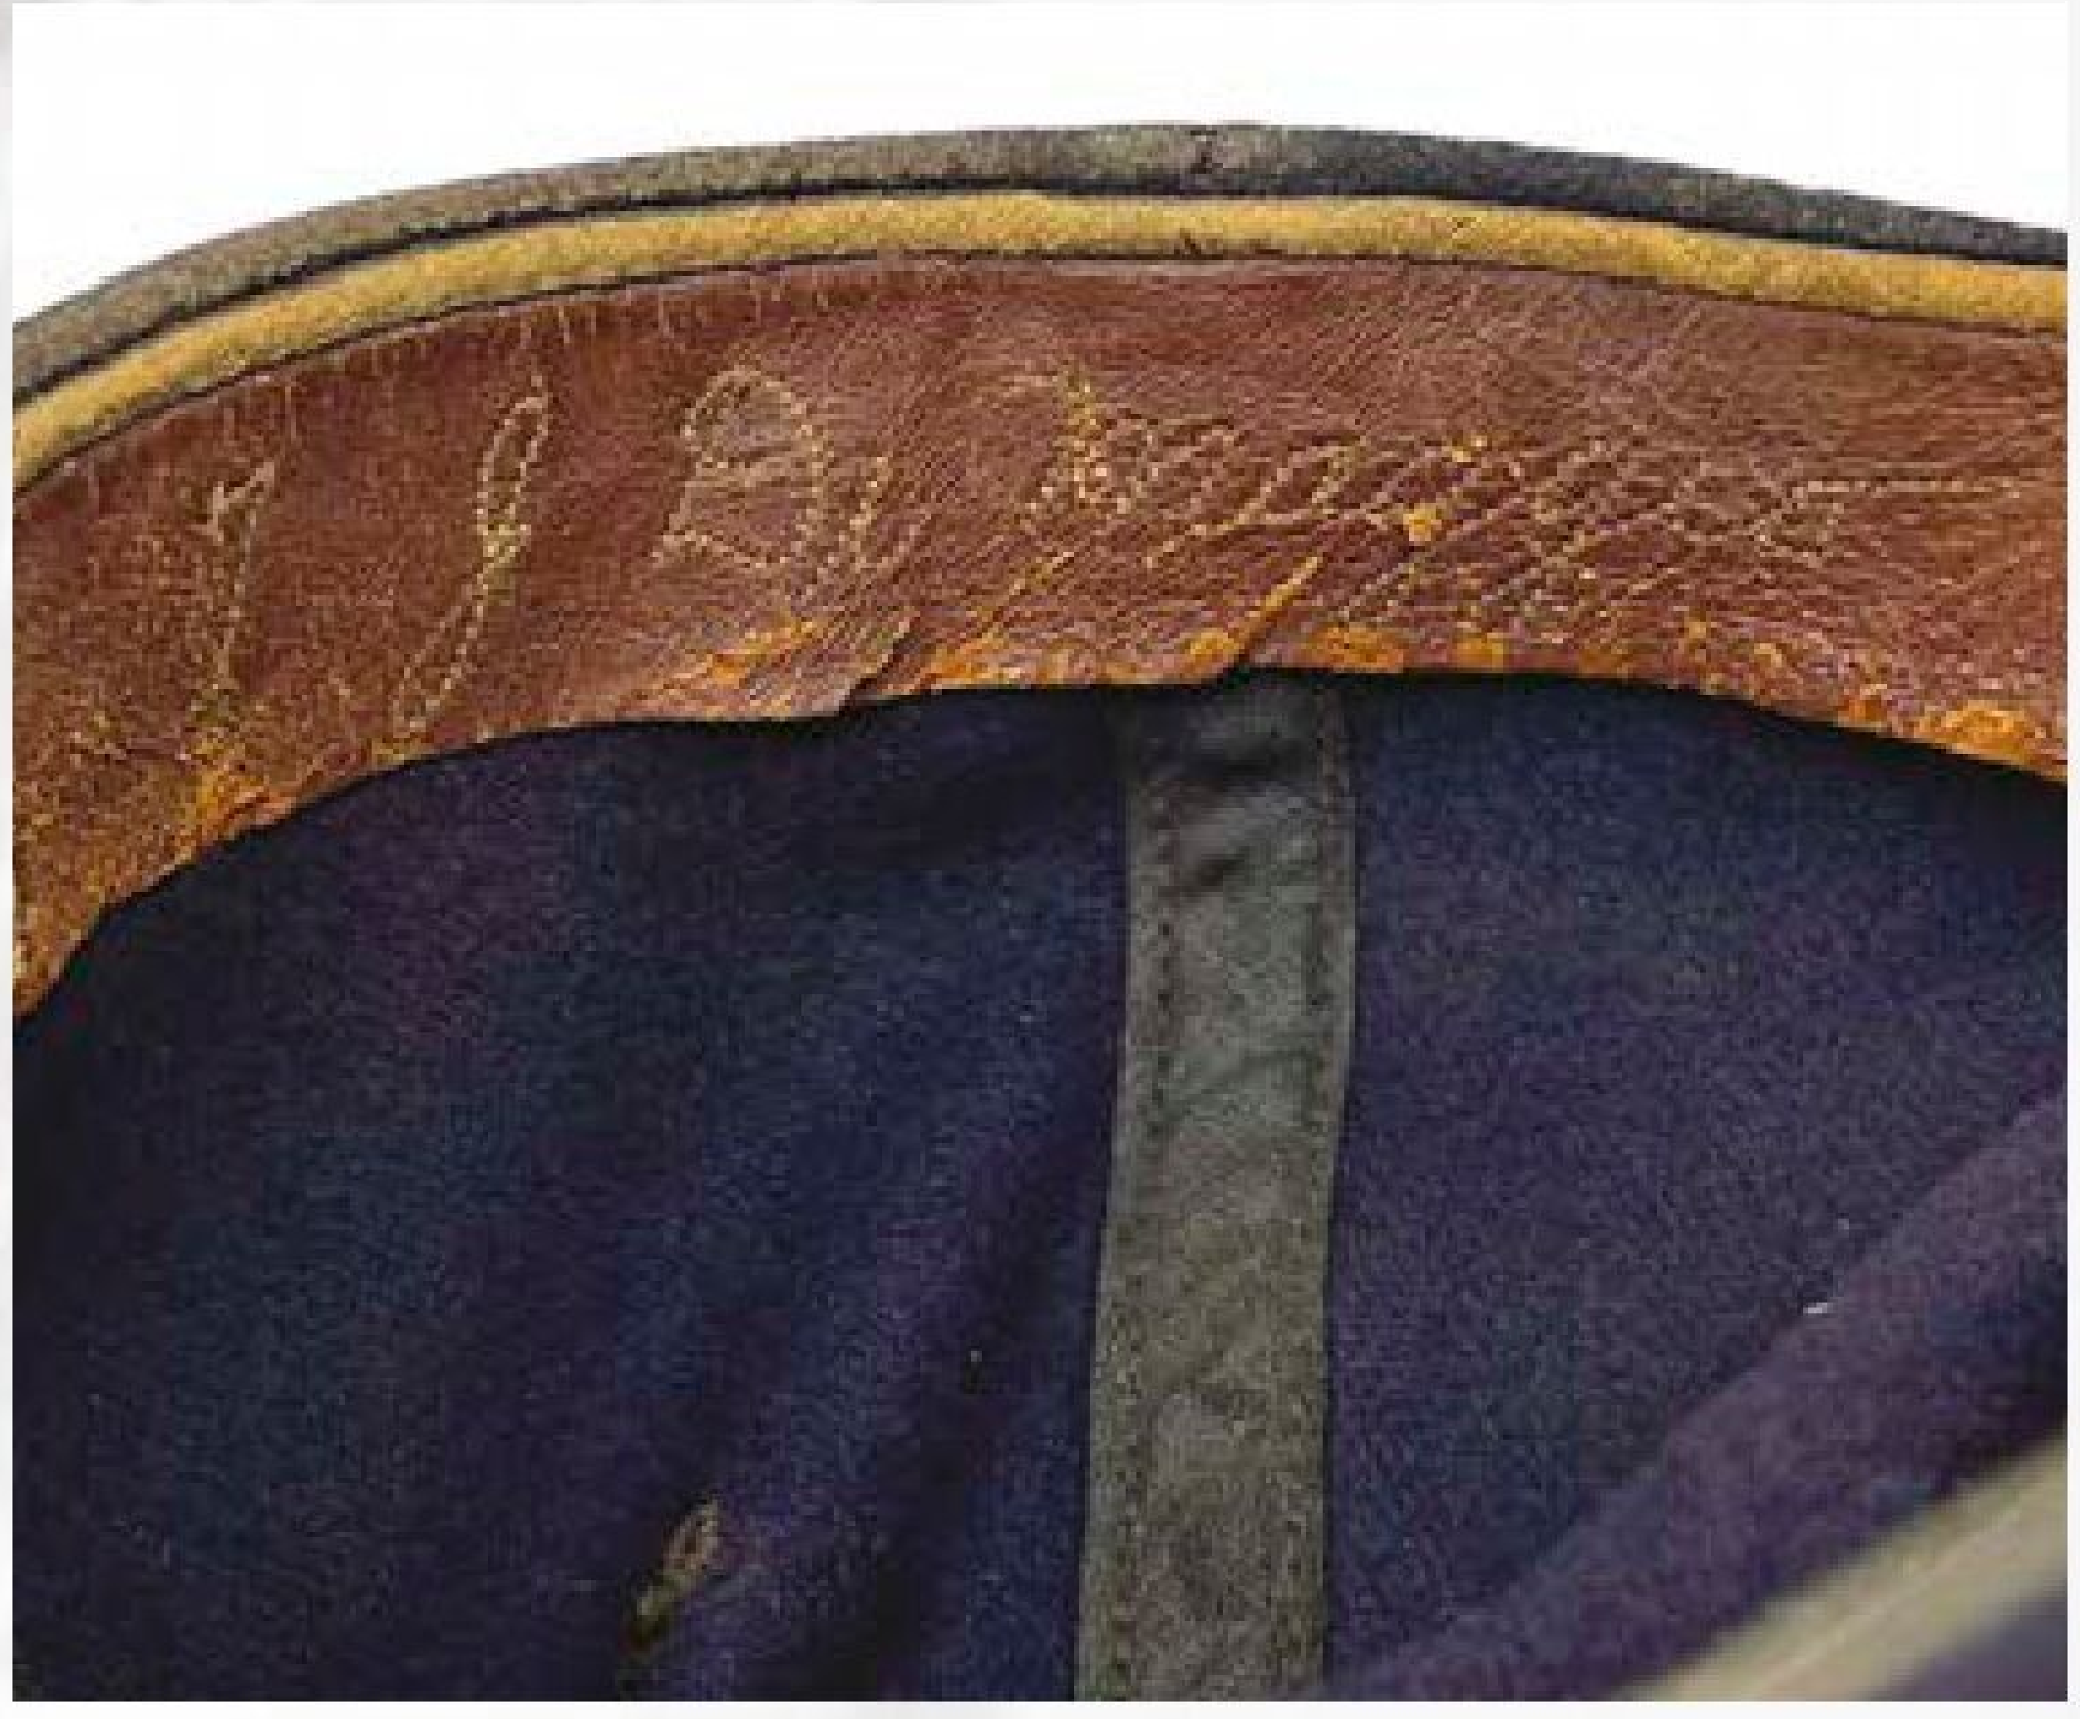


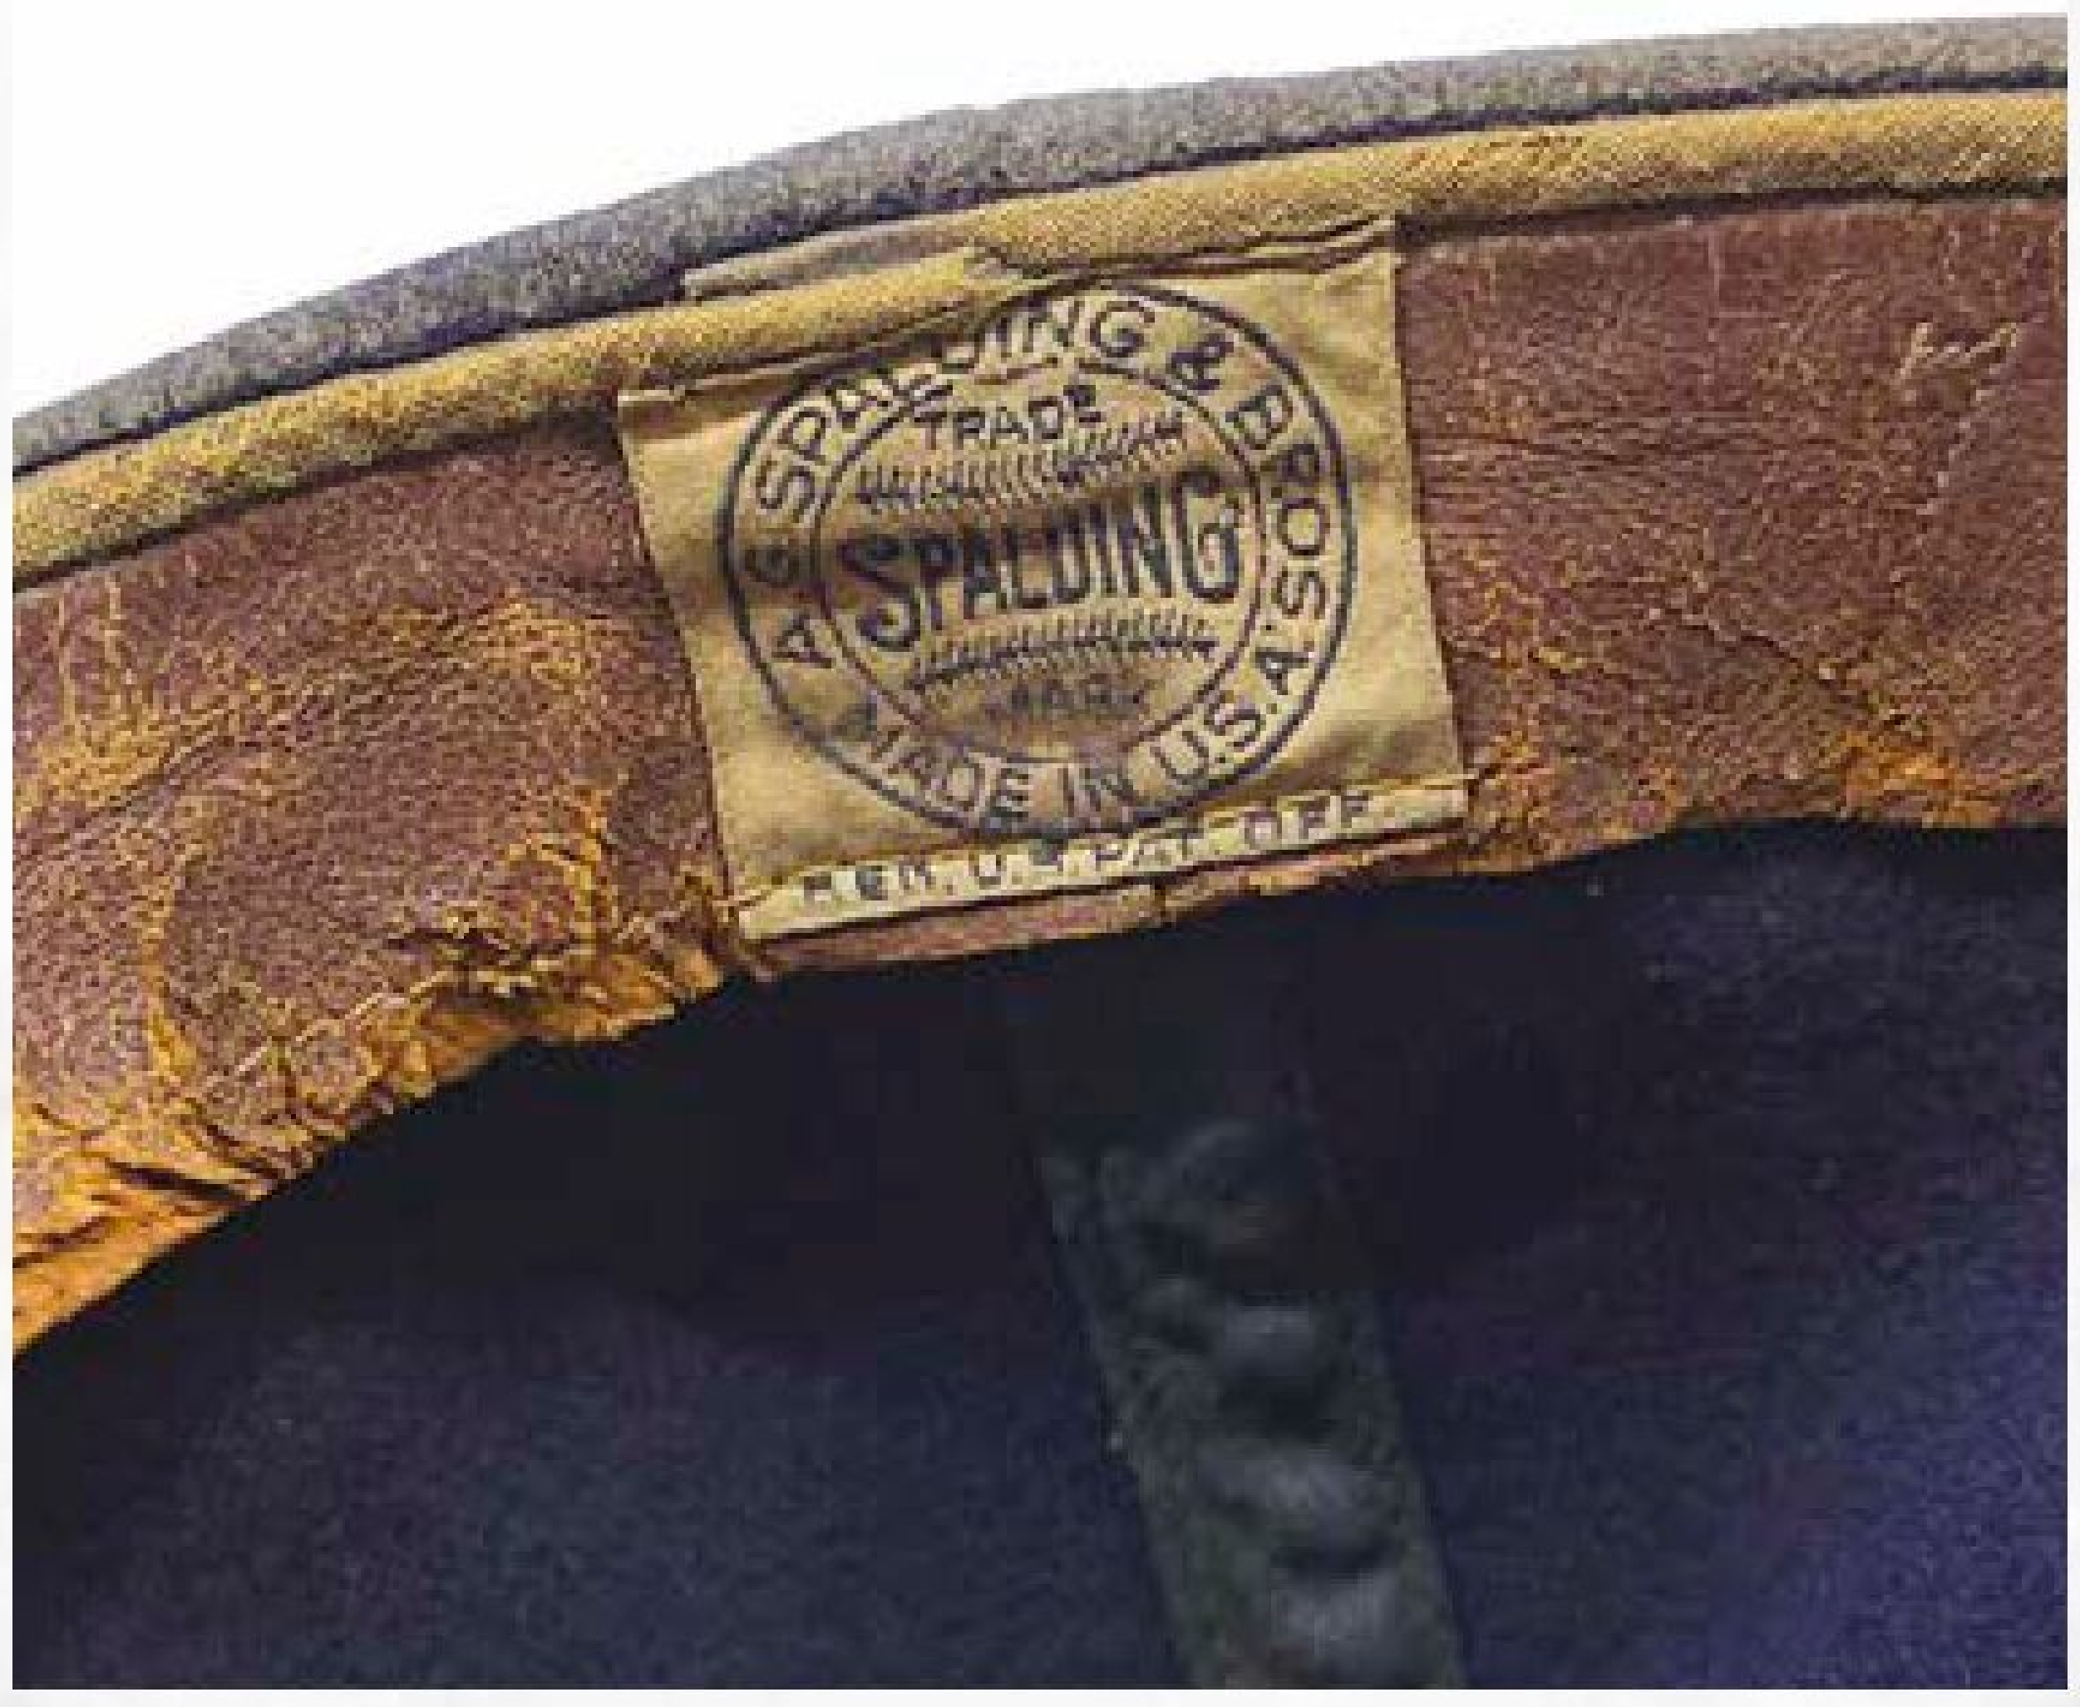
GETTY IMAGES

A game-used cap worn by Joe DiMaggio in, or near, his rookie season of 1937 - when he was 22 years old and in his second season in the big leagues - sold for $143,059 in Grey Flannel Auctions' 2022 Holiday Auction.

As noted in Grey Flannel's lot description, "This original cap was gifted directly from DiMaggio to our consignor's grandparents who were friendly with the DiMaggio family. Joe DiMaggio was invited to many dinner parties hosted by our consignor's family member who was a bank executive in Hollywood. Over the years they became quite friendly, and DiMaggio gifted them this cap as a thank you for hosting the parties. This hobby fresh and truly amazing cap is properly tagged, was presented to us as game-used and shows good game use."

In 1937, DiMaggio led the major leagues in home runs (46), runs (151) and total bases (418) while batting .346 for the Yankees.





EARLY PELE CARD
SOLD BY HERITAGE

The world first heard the name Pele when he helped lead Brazil to a World Cup title in 1958.

The card hails from that championship year and represents one of the international icon's early releases. This perforated 1958 Editora Aquarela Pele #10 is graded a BVG 5 EX, one of just two to receive that mark. Only two others have ever graded higher.

The card sold for $5,760 in the Heritage December 17 Sports Showcase.

"I LOVE YOU JOE, MARILYN"

Only known photograph of Marilyn Monroe inscribed to Joe DiMaggio sold by Heritage Auctions

GETTY IMAGES

A publicity photo of Marilyn Monroe from the 1953 film Gentlemen Prefer Blondes an inscribed "I Love You Joe, Marilyn" to Joe DiMaggio sold for $300,000 by Heritage Auctions, setting a new auction record for a signed Monroe photo.

According to Heritage, the photograph was part of The Joe DiMaggio Collection, and came with a signed letter of provenance by The Yankee Clipper's daughters, Paula DiMaggio Hamra and Kathie DiMaggio Stein. The sale came during the Heritage December 2022 Historical Platinum Session Signature Auction.

"Bidding was extraordinary from the moment the auction began, with heated battles among collectors over some of the most significant artifacts Heritage has ever had the privilege of bringing to market," says Executive Vice President Joe Maddalena. "But as someone so enamored of Monroe – as an actor and icon, as someone whose fame has only increased with each passing year – I am particularly thrilled to see this benchmark realized during this event."

BEING BENCH

Johnny Bench, now 75, still carries the recognition of Greatest Catcher Ever with ease

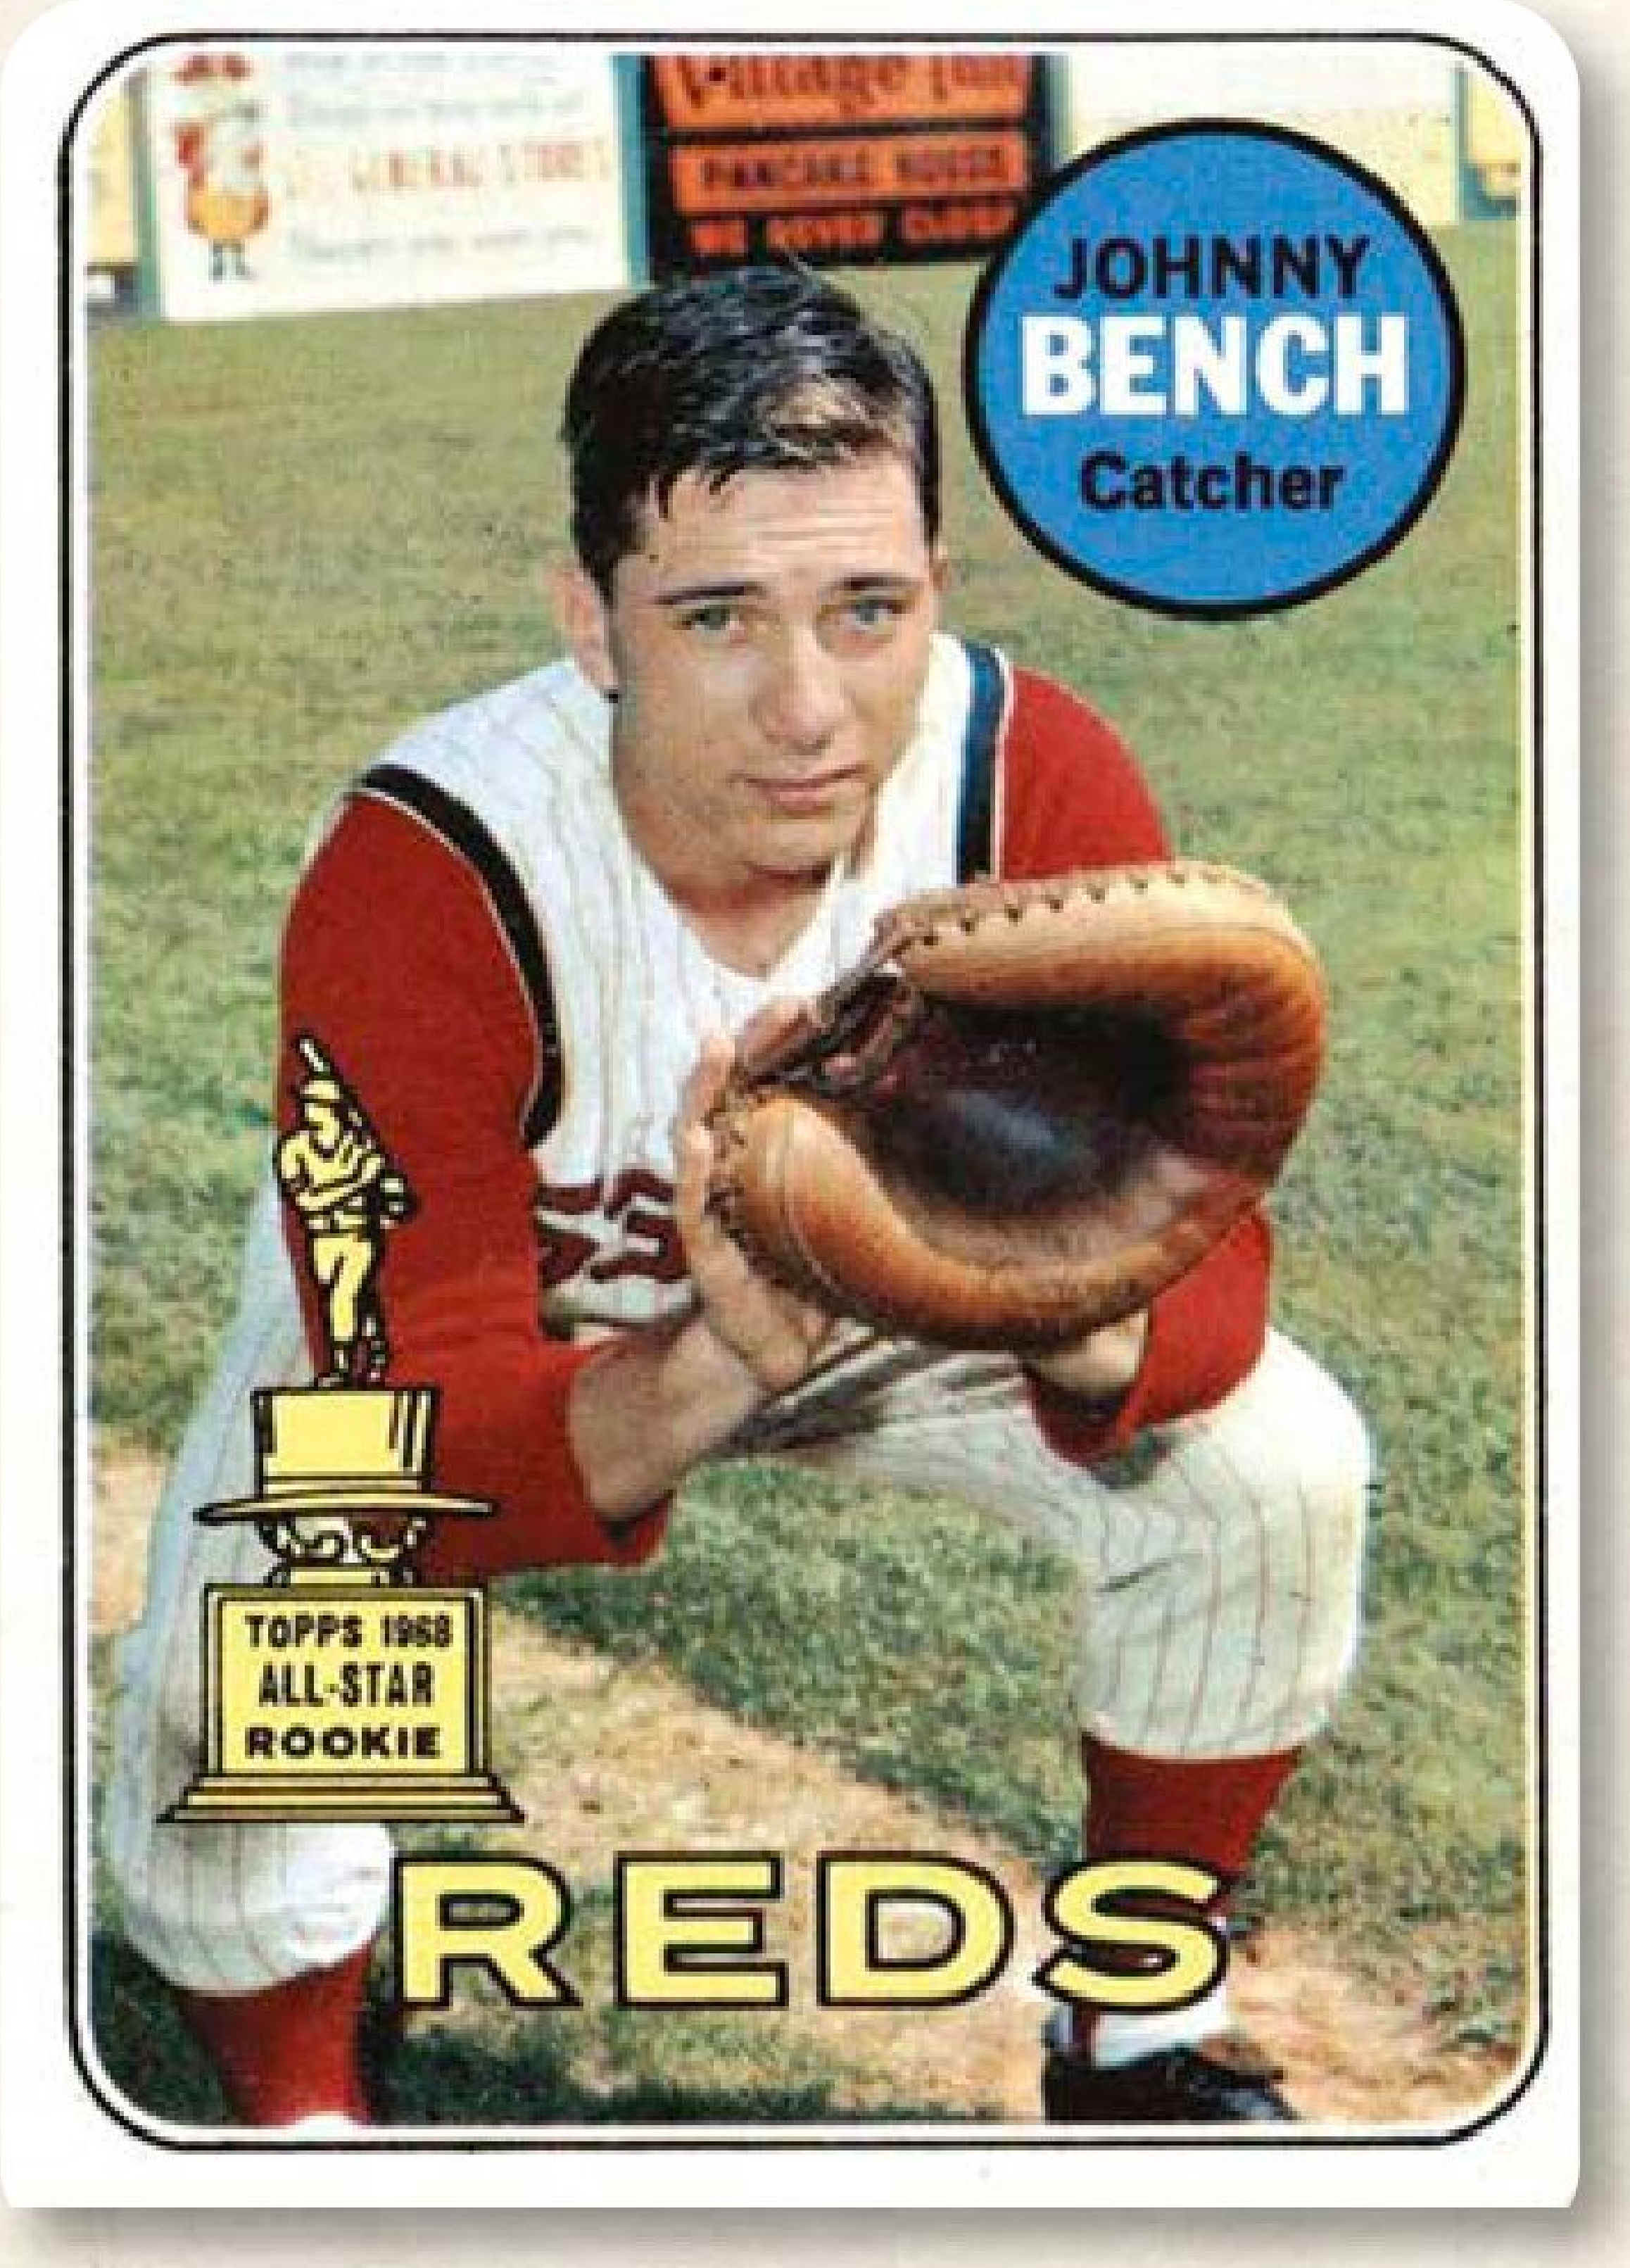
TIME knew what was up back in July 1972 – the year Bench won his second N.L. MVP.



1969 Topps #95

Johnny Bench grew up about as far away from travel baseball as a kid could possibly get.

The only travel he did to play ball as a kid was ride around town with his father – who also happened to double as the local youth team's coach – picking up ballplayers who needed rides on game days. Ted Bench, and his son John, would sometimes have to recruit a ninth player in order to field a team.

With a population of roughly 660 in the late 1950s, Binger, Okla., didn't offer a deep roster of available ballplayers. "We drove around in our Levi's and t-shirts," Johnny says of the team's uniform.

Scouts began descending on tiny Binger High School in the early 1960s to see the catcher they had heard so much about. The Cincinnati Reds selected Bench in the second round of the 1965 MLB June Amateur Draft.

He was on his way.

After 17 years in the majors that included two World Series titles with the Reds, two MVP awards, one World Series MVP, 10 Gold Gloves, 14 All-Star Games, Rookie of the Year winner in 1968, 389 home runs and more than 2,000 hits, Bench retired after the 1983 season. That final year, he played 42 games at third base, 32 at first base, and just five behind the plate, He also logged two-thirds of an inning in left field.

Bench was the keynote speaker at the 2022 Industry Summit in Las Vegas and spoke to Beckett before a public signing session at the event in October. He was upbeat and was looking forward to his 75th birthday party that was planned for December.

BECKETT VINTAGE COLLECTOR: That card in front of you – your 1969 Topps card. Where was that shot taken?

JOHNNY BENCH: "That was in the bullpen in Tampa, at Al Lopez Field. That's when I was number 53, my first year in spring training, there was an old photographer, a Topps guy, who took this. It wasn't Sy [Berger], but he was there."

BVC: Your dad was a catcher, too. Did you ever get to see him play?

JB: "Unfortunately for him, the war came along and he dropped out of high school. His dream was to be a major league catcher, but he dropped out of high school and went and joined the Army. Served eight years, so he was 25 by the time he came back. By then was probably too old. He played sandlot ball, though, and played against Satchel Paige in a game, and I saw that. I'd go watch him play."

BVC: You probably don't remember a time when baseball wasn't a part of your life. When did you first realize baseball could be a career?

JB: "At three-and-a-half, I saw TV and I was watching this game with Mantle in it and the announcer came on and said, 'Now batting, the next superstar, the switch-hitting centerfielder from Oklahoma, Mickey Mantle!' And I said, 'Dad, you can be from Oklahoma and play in the major leagues?' He said, 'Yeah.' And I told him that's what I wanted to do - be a big-league ballplayer. He told me catching was the quickest way to the major leagues and catching was what the major leagues needed."

BVC: How was it playing for your dad as a kid?

JB: "It was great. Dad started the team. If we lost, he would say, 'That's alright. We'll get 'em tomorrow. Let's go get a cheeseburger.' That's just how life was."

BVC: Could Binger High School field a team?

JB: "Because we only had 10 boys out for the baseball team, I pitched. But everyone knew I was a catcher. I took infield as a catcher for the scouts, and then I pitched. We had a kid on the team then who would catch, but didn't like playing third, so I also played third."

BVC: You played some third at the end of your career in the big leagues, too, as your 1983 Topps card lists you as a third baseman.

JB: "Yeah, I did play some third. (Laughing) Which got me retired."

BVC: How did they find you in Binger?

JB: "I had played on the American Legion team 20 miles away, and they had three catchers. The first one quit because he got mad at the coach. The second took a foul tip off his shoulder and broke his collarbone. And the third kid had three passed balls in one inning. They put me in and I hit a home run to win the game. I was 15 years old. And the home run beat Bobby Murcer's team."

BVC: One of the more memorable moments in Joe Posnanski's The Baseball 100 book is a note about you catching a major league fastball with your bare hand. What happened?

JB: "I went to spring training [in 1968] and Don Pavletich had an unbelievable spring. They also had John Edwards, but they traded Edwards and Pavletich was the starter. In the fifth game of the season, he pulled a hamstring, and I went in. I caught 154 of 158 games and played 54 days in a row. And this was about the 52nd day. We had played a night game on Saturday, and it was 15 innings. Left the ballpark at 2 a.m., got to bed at 3, and had to be back at the ballpark dressed at 10 a.m. Now we're down 10-0 in the day game against the Dodgers. We're down 10-0 . . . and I'm still out there.

"We had a pitcher come in named Gerry Arrigo – and Gerry had a good curveball. I called for a curveball and he shook it off, no. Curveball. No. Curveball. No. Finally, I said just throw the fastball and gave him the sign. I was so tired. My 54th day in a row, and I just didn't have the strength or energy. So I reached out and caught it barehanded. I guess he kind of looked at me – he's a great guy, he really is, and I just talked to him the other day just to say hi – but that day, I just didn't have anything left."

BVC: What do you tell kids who want to catch?

JB: "Catch every ball. When you do, you have your own style, your own way of doing it. Nothing gets by you. And when people see it they think, wow, nothing gets by him – he's a great catcher. I wrote a book called Catch Every Ball – How To Handle Life's Pitches. That can be for baseball or business or life, if you're thrown everything and catch it . . . that's the way to success."

BVC: How influential was Sparky Anderson to building the Big Red Machine?

JB: "Well Dave Bristol in the minor leagues developed [the core]. In 1970 [in the big leagues], we won 70 of our first 100 games and an announcer said, 'They play like a machine!' Well, it was like a machine. Sparky came in, and one of the first things that happened was when Sparky stopped me as I was walking out of the clubhouse in spring training. I had met Sparky before when I was playing instructional league. We were playing the Cardinals, and he was in their organization at the time. He called me over one day and said, 'Son, can I see your glove?' I don't know if he was watching me, but I guess he saw something in me.

"Anyway, I walk out of spring training, our first year [together], and on the first day he stops me and says, 'John, let me ask you a question. What if we took infield on that field and took batting practice over there?' For the first time ever, I felt like a professional. It wasn't like management over here, players over there. He thought enough to ask me my opinion."

BVC: How did Sparky gain the team's trust so quickly after coming in?

JB: "We all watched him during the game and could see him in action. He knew the game. You could see it, he was always three innings, four innings ahead of the other guy. Always. And he understood players, he understood personnel. He would call Pete, Joe, Tony and myself into his office – or sometimes individually – and say, 'What if we got this player?' And we would say no. And he'd say, 'What about this guy?' And we'd say yes. Because we were judge of talent, and he knew that. And there were times when I would go to him and say, 'What about this guy, can we get him?' One time he called me in and said that we had a chance to trade for [Phil] Niekro, and what did I think? I told him 'You better trade for his catcher, too, because I'm not going out there [against that knuckleball]. Most of the time, Sparky listened to our advice. He was a mentor and a friend. Manager deluxe."

BVC: What do you remember about the 1970 season – your first MVP season - and winning the World Series?

JB: "Well, it was certainly magical. I mean, look at who we had that year. In 1970, we didn't have Joe [Morgan] yet, but we had Lee

May and Tony [Perez]. He hit 40 HR and Lee May hit 34 homers and then 39 the next year. We had Pete. We had Tommy Helms. Bobby Tolan had been traded over (and led the majors with 57 SB that season). We just had good players. A team. We had guys that came to the ballpark and knew what their role was.

"For me . . . I don't know, it was just easy. I was blessed with 20/5 vision. We know the reaction time on a 90-mph fastball to home plate is .42 seconds, and the time to make the decision is .17 seconds. That's being able to judge the speed, the rotation and everything else. So . . . it was easier for me. I mean, it really was. I also had a thing called inter-conceit. That's being better than the situation. The runner trying to steal, the pitcher you're facing on the mound . . . you felt it. It was confidence that you had to have, something you had to have within yourself to be able to focus enough and be prepared. And to watch and react. Fortunately, I could do that."

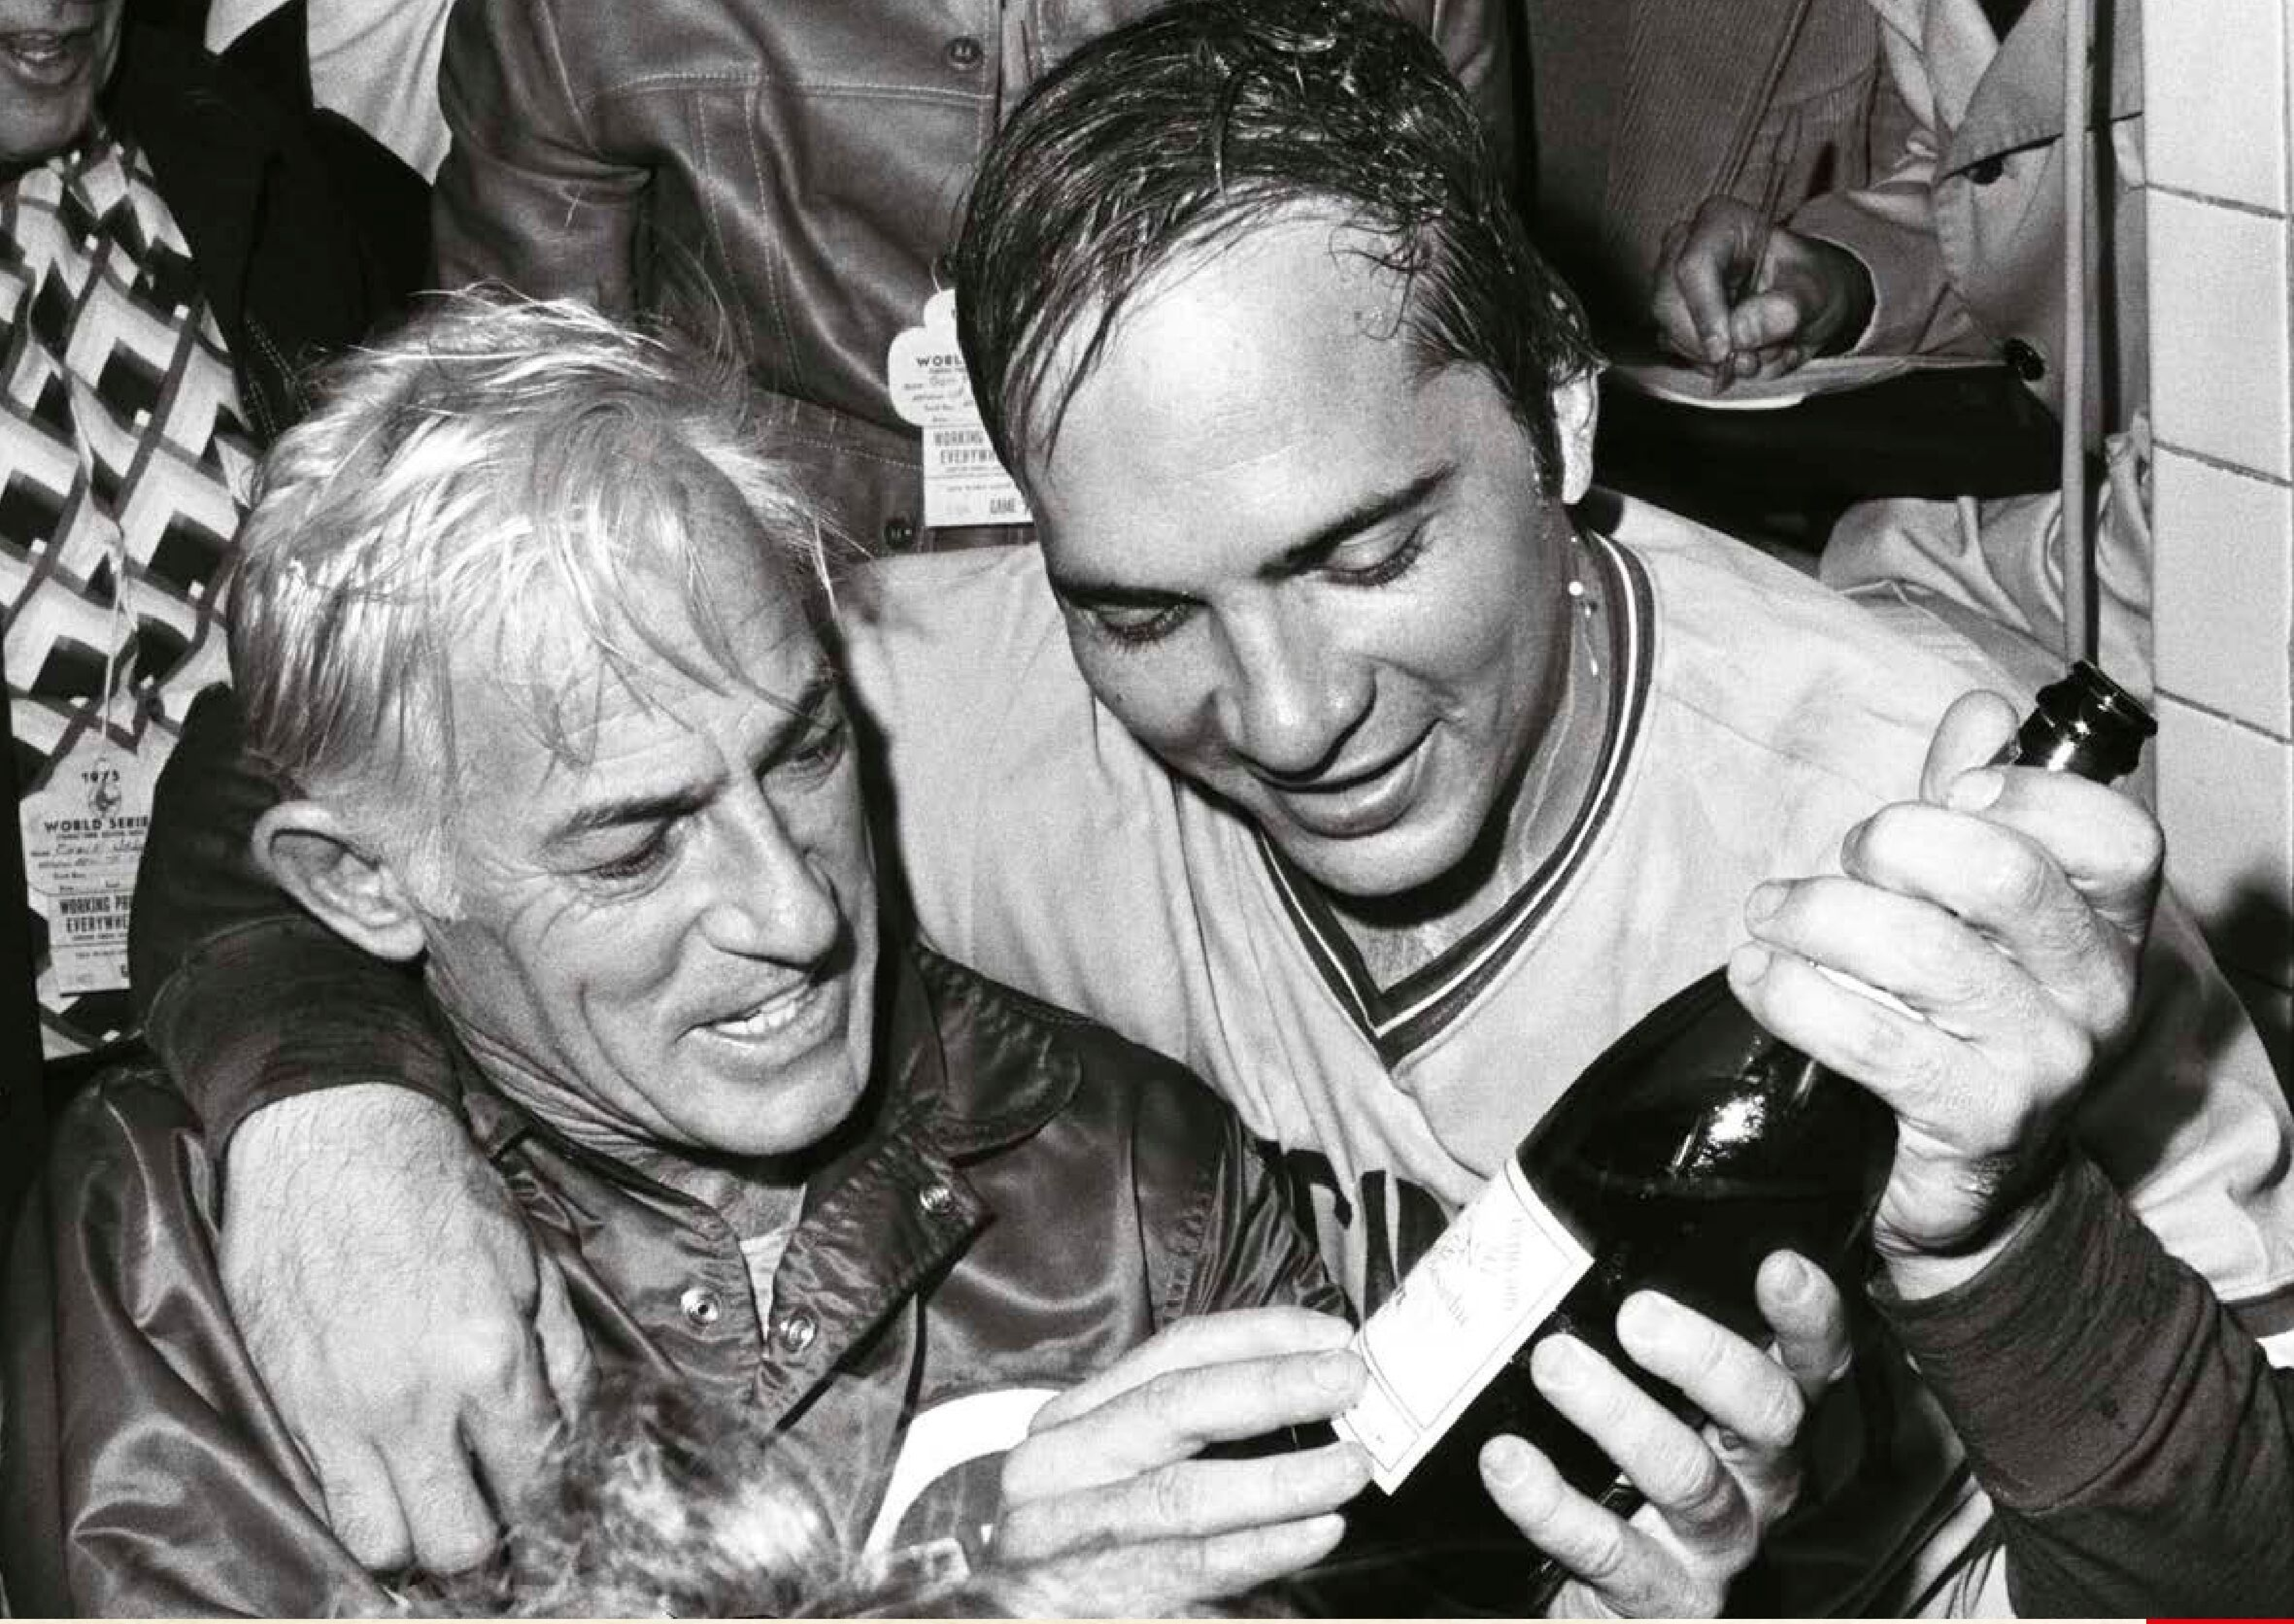
BVG: Out of all the accomplishments, what are you most proud of?

JB: "Individually, the MVPs and those sort of things, but nothing beats the day walking into our clubhouse in 1975 at the World Series after [winning] Game 7. I saw 25 players – all world champions. And the equipment men. The trainers. The coaches. The manager. That's one of my favorite moments.

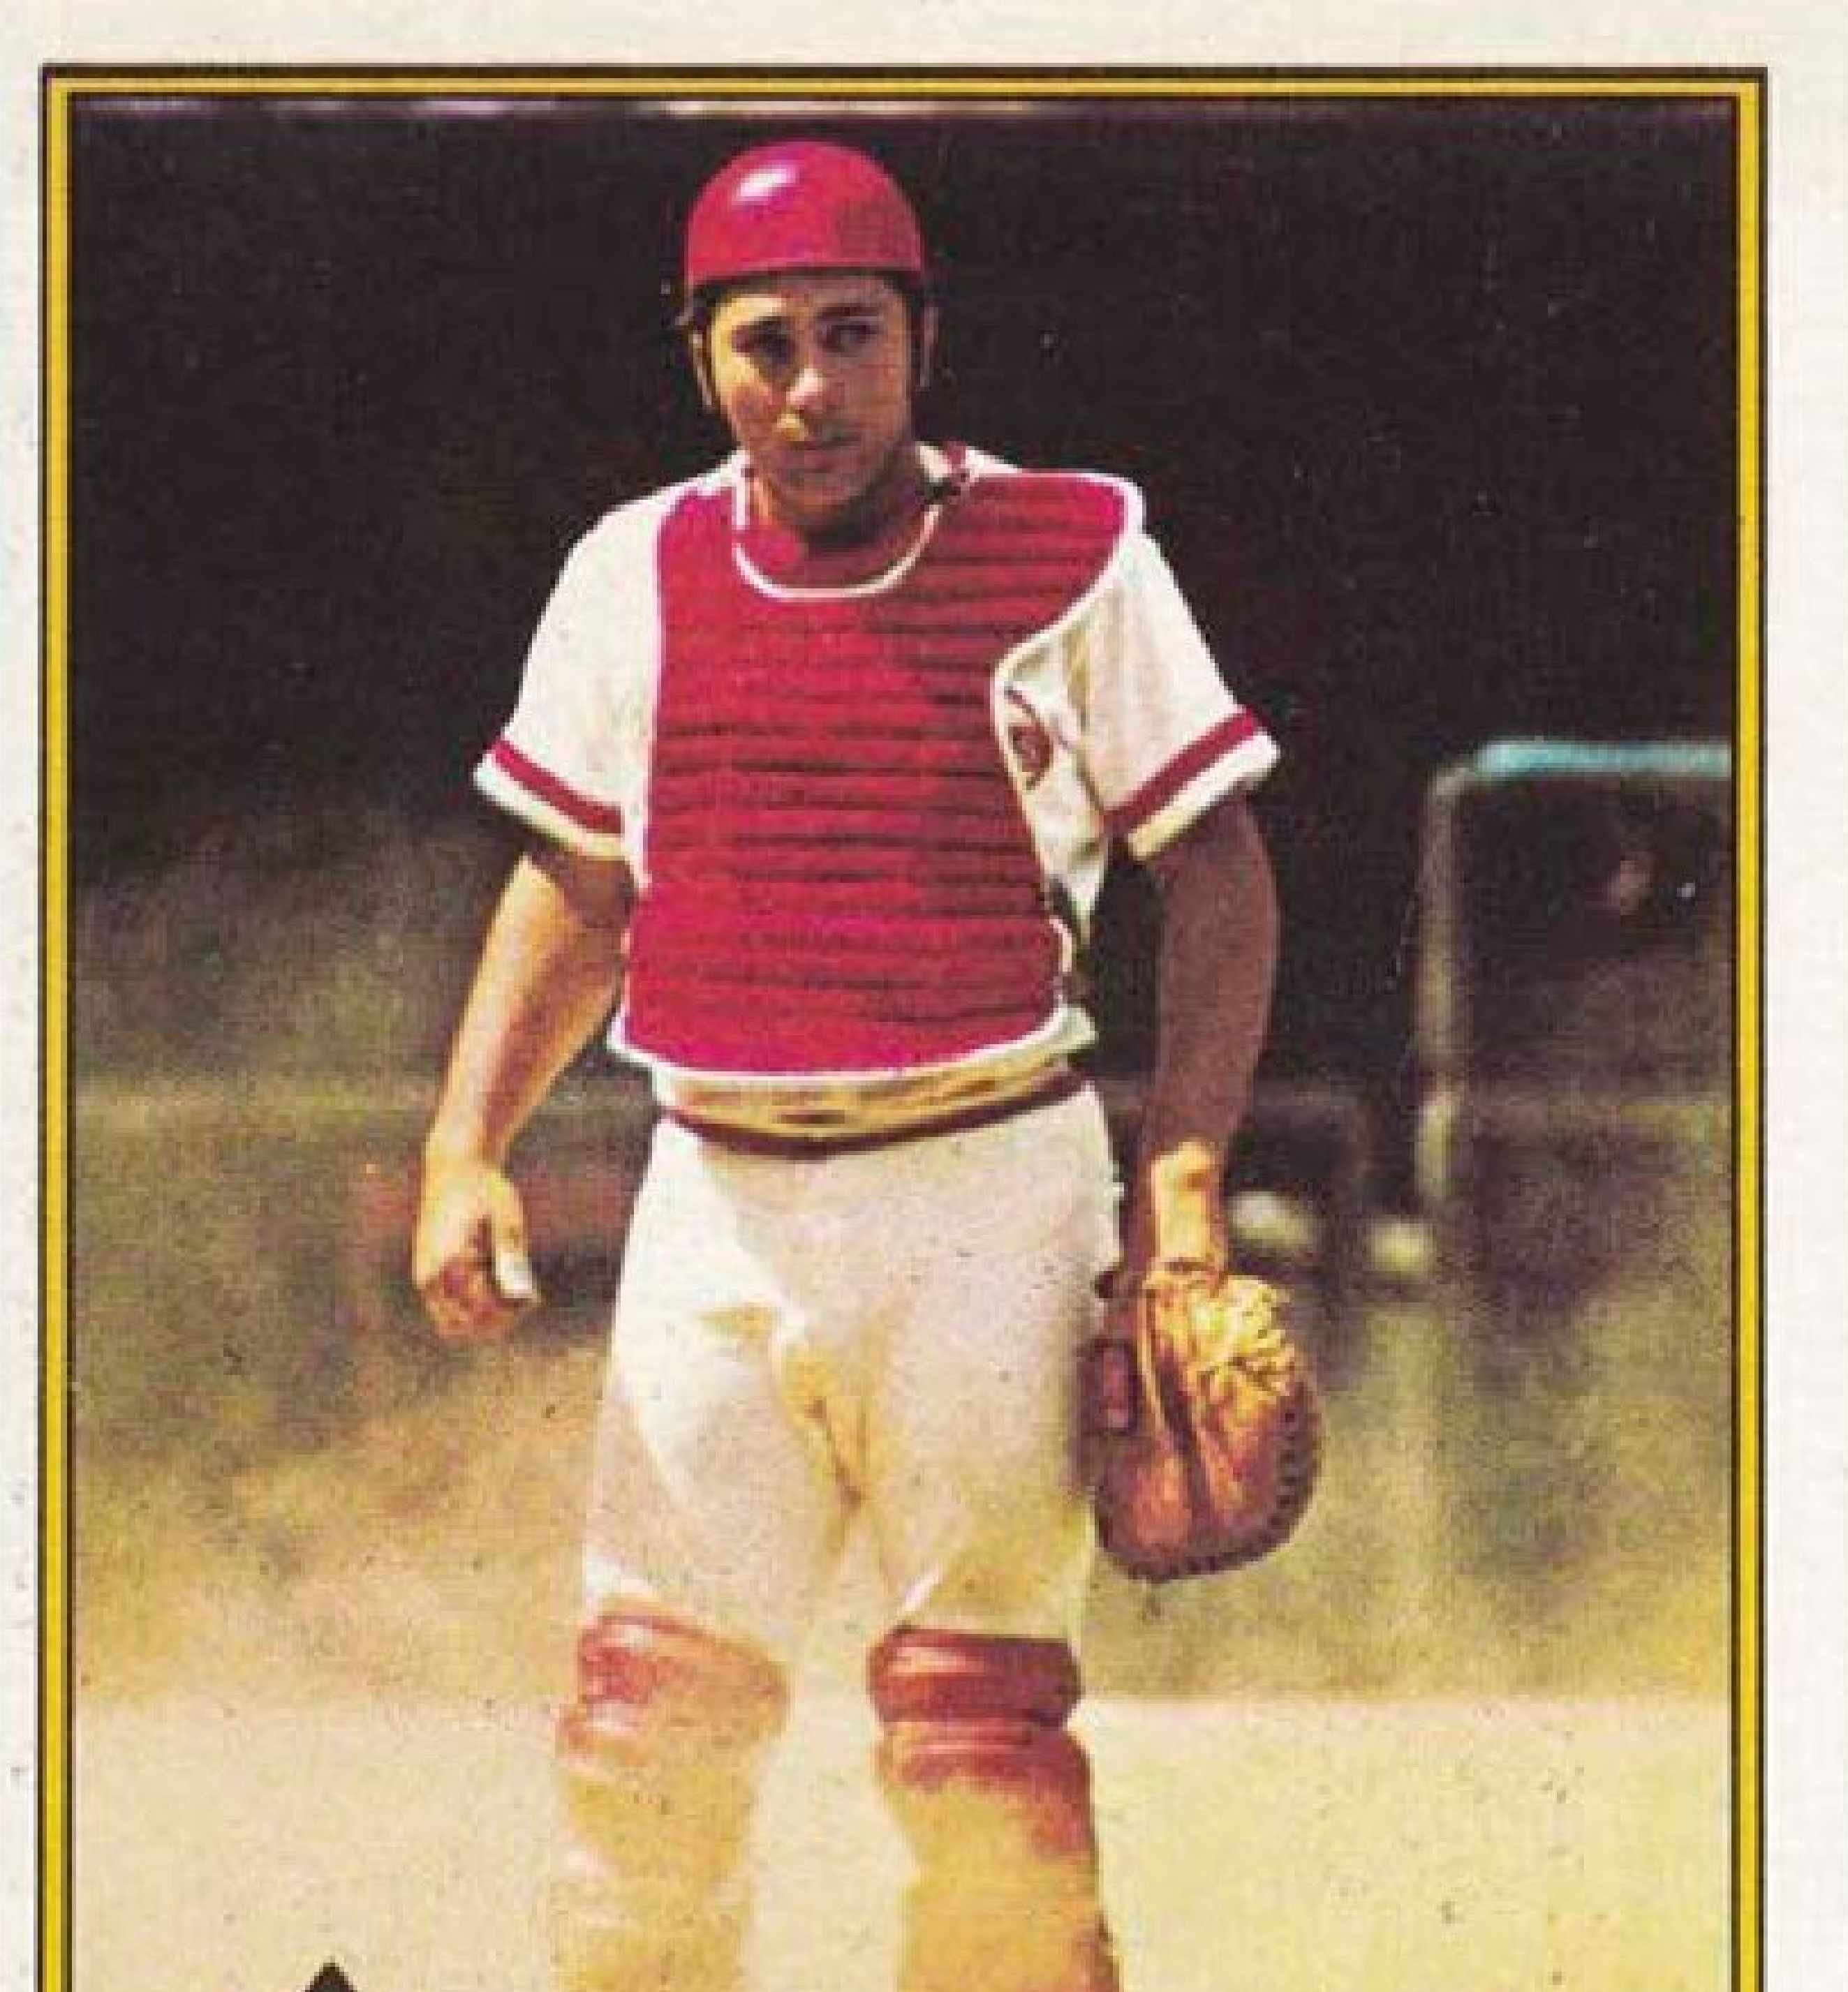
"In '72, I won the MVP and then I knew that I was going to have lung surgery. They had found a spot on my lung. So I knew that '72 could be my last game. I didn't know if I would play again or not. I just didn't know what we were dealing with. We found a doctor there in Cincinnati that was renown. They cut my muscles, they cut my ribs. After that, getting to the ball was just a little off. I always felt like I didn't have the career that maybe I could have had."

BVC: Really? You say that even with a Hall of Fame career?

JB: "Well, at 18 I broke my thumb in Buffalo and headed back to Oklahoma City. Went up to Wichita to see a friend play, and driving back pulled out and there was a drunk driver on the wrong side of the four-lane. I hit my brakes. He hit me right in the door – I had a big Galaxy 500 and it folded like a V. I didn't regain consciousness until they got me in the ambulance. I didn't remember much of anything. I didn't remember much about the ER or much of anything else. I do remember the doctor came in and said 'Son, you've got the biggest bones I've ever seen in my life. Nobody else but you could walk out of here alive, but you'll pay the price. Your back, your disk, arthritis and everything else.' And it all came to fruition. I've never touched my toes in my life (laughing). I've never had the flexibility. And that's why I backhanded pitches. [Joe] Garagiola said I ruined catching because I backhanded balls instead of blocking them. But strange . . . nothing got by me."



Celebrating winning the 1975 World Series with Reds manager Sparky Anderson. "He was always three, four innings ahead of the other guy," Bench said of his HOF manager.



1976 Topps #300

GETTY IMAGES

BVC: When did you begin the one-handed catching concept?

JB: "In 1966 I got called up to Buffalo and broke my thumb. I was the third batter. Then when I split my thumb in '67, that's when I thought 'this is stupid' and went to one-handed catching. [Randy] Hundley had caught one-handed, and Elston Howard may have been one of the first."

BVC: When did you go to wearing a helmet behind the plate?

JB: "In the Carolina League in 1966, I had a temper and made an out. I throw my helmet down and cracked it. I couldn't keep doing that. It cost me $35 to buy a new one and I was only making $550. One day I'm watching the Game of the Week and [White Sox catcher] Sherm Lollar was on the field and he had his helmet on backwards. So I go to the park and turn my helmet around and put my mask over it. [Before the helmet] the elastic would stretch and dry out and when I would throw to second the bar would come across and cut my nose every time. And the foul balls were just jarring. I took a baseball and banged it on the backward helmet, and I couldn't feel anything. So now I'm wearing the helmet instead of throwing it. And that, with the one-handed catching, became revolutionary in some ways."

BVC: What about The Baseball Bunch? How did that come about?

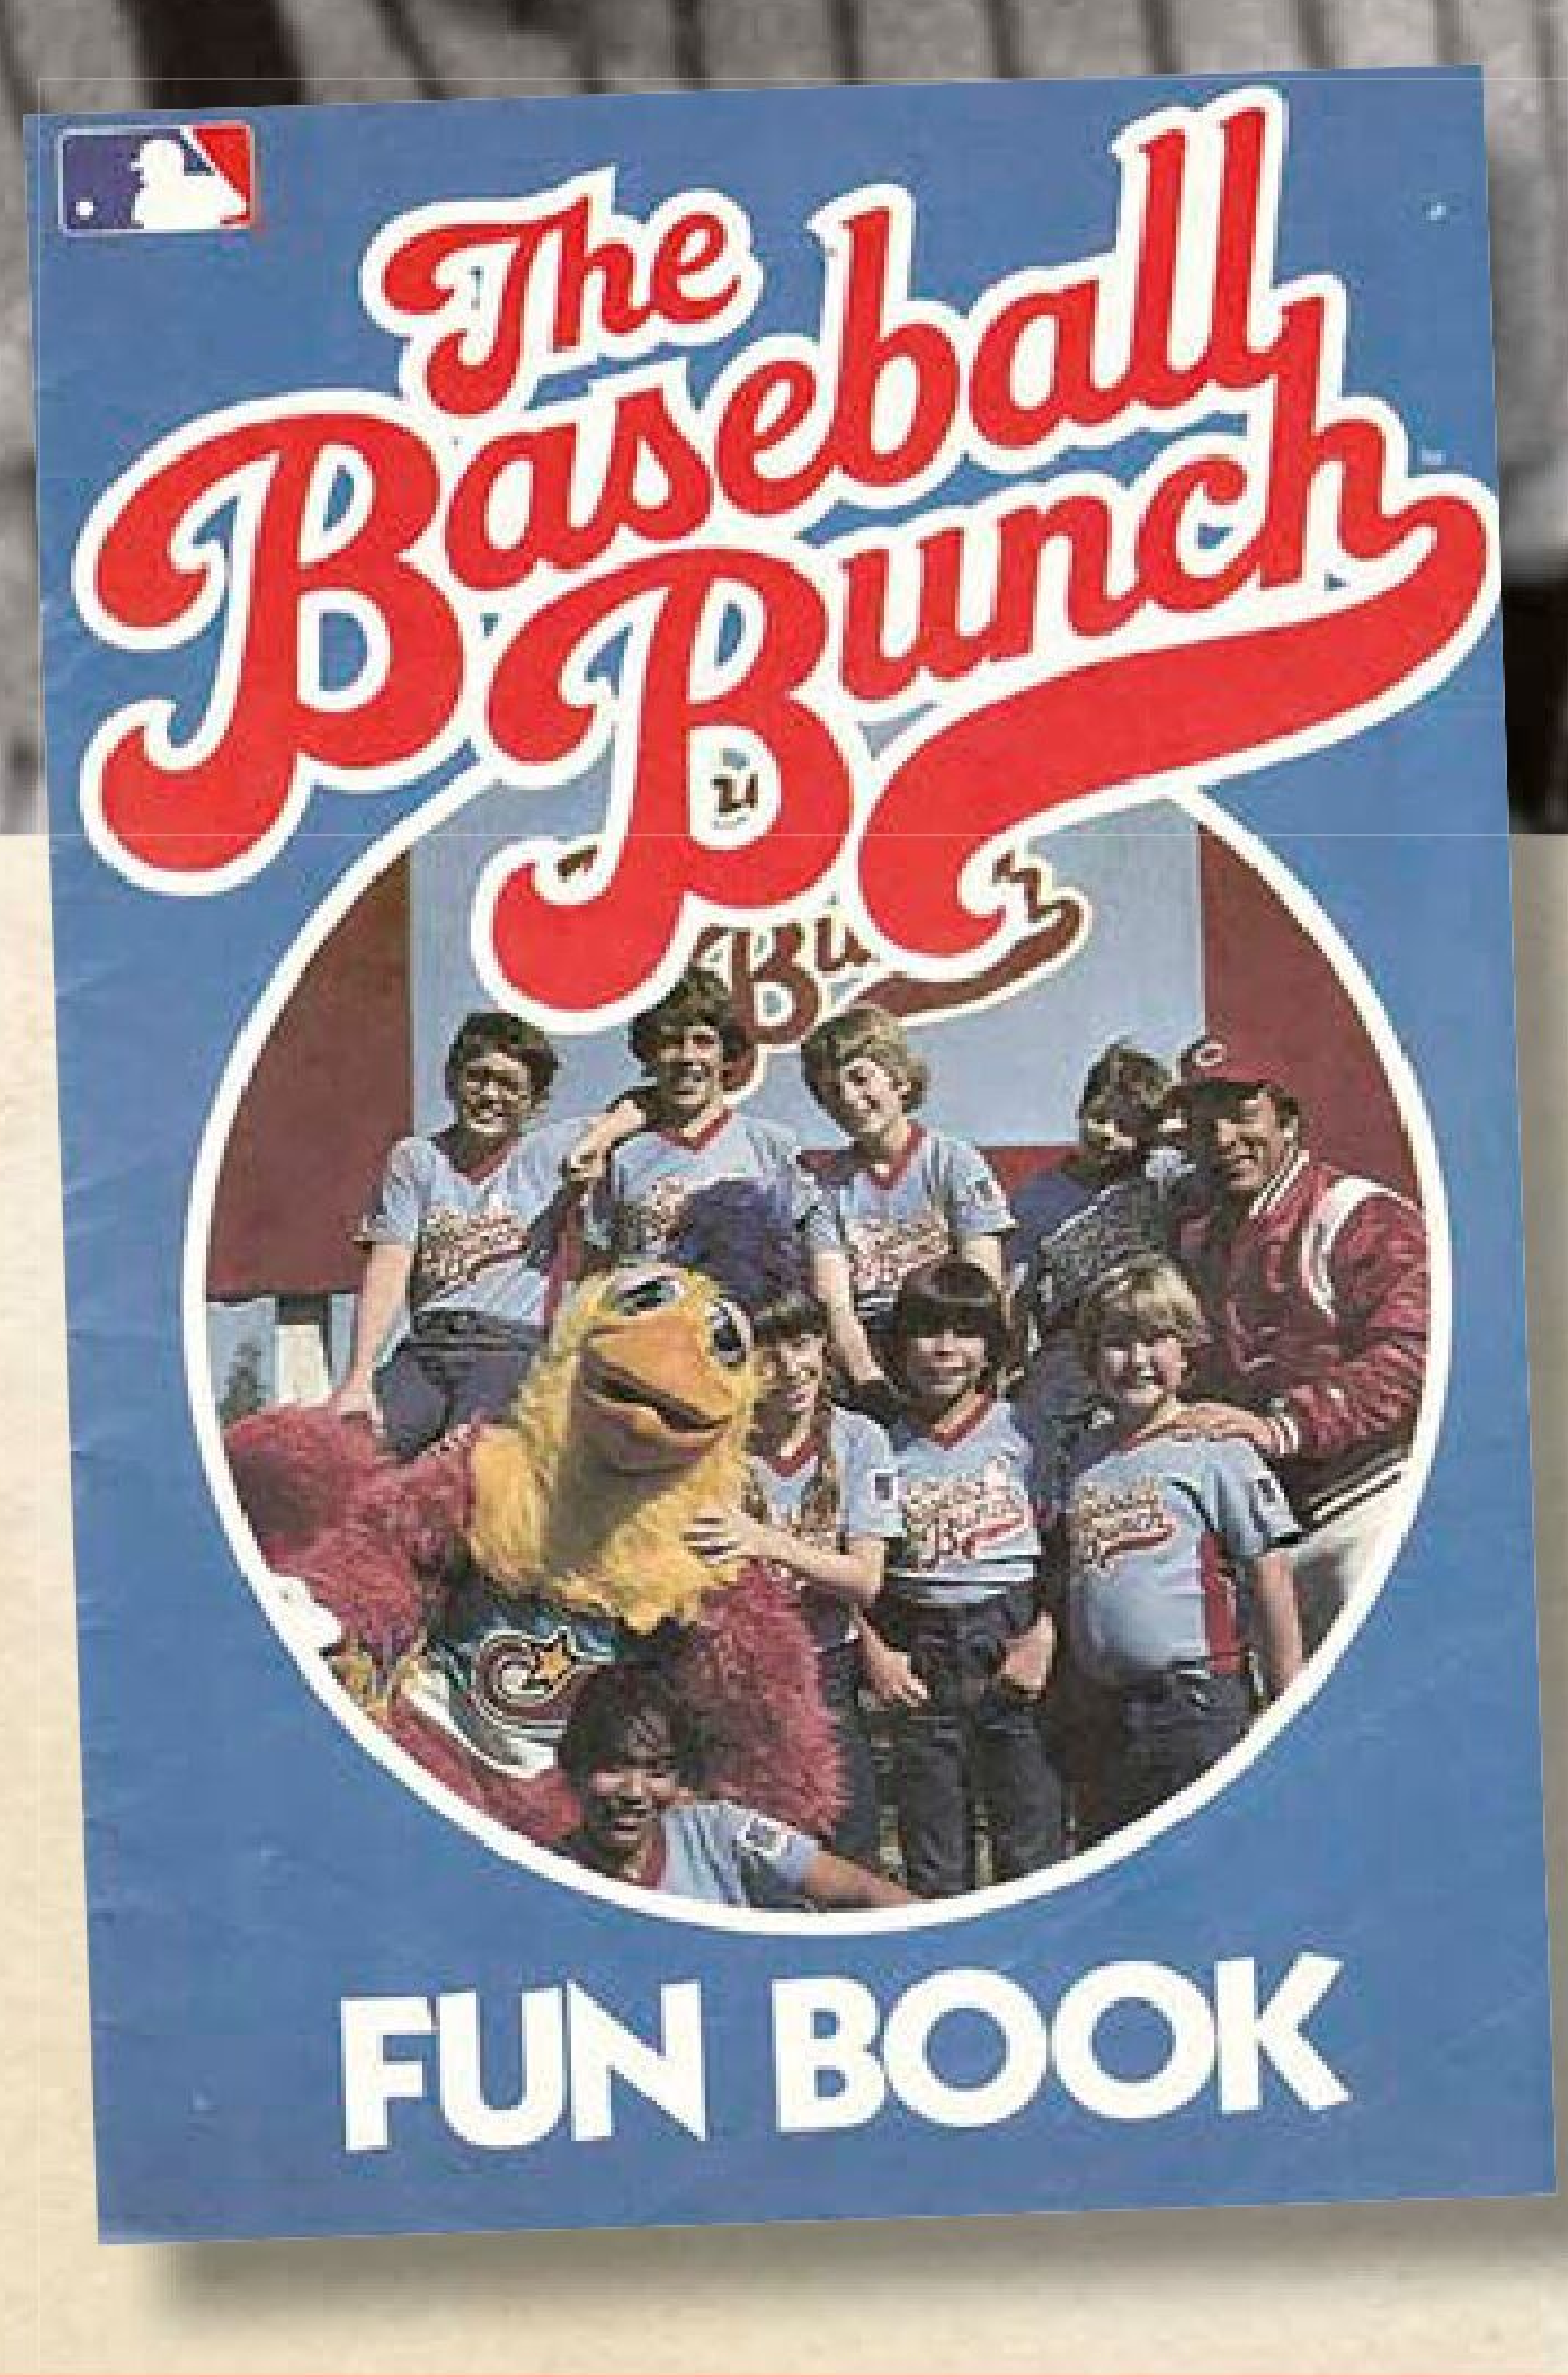
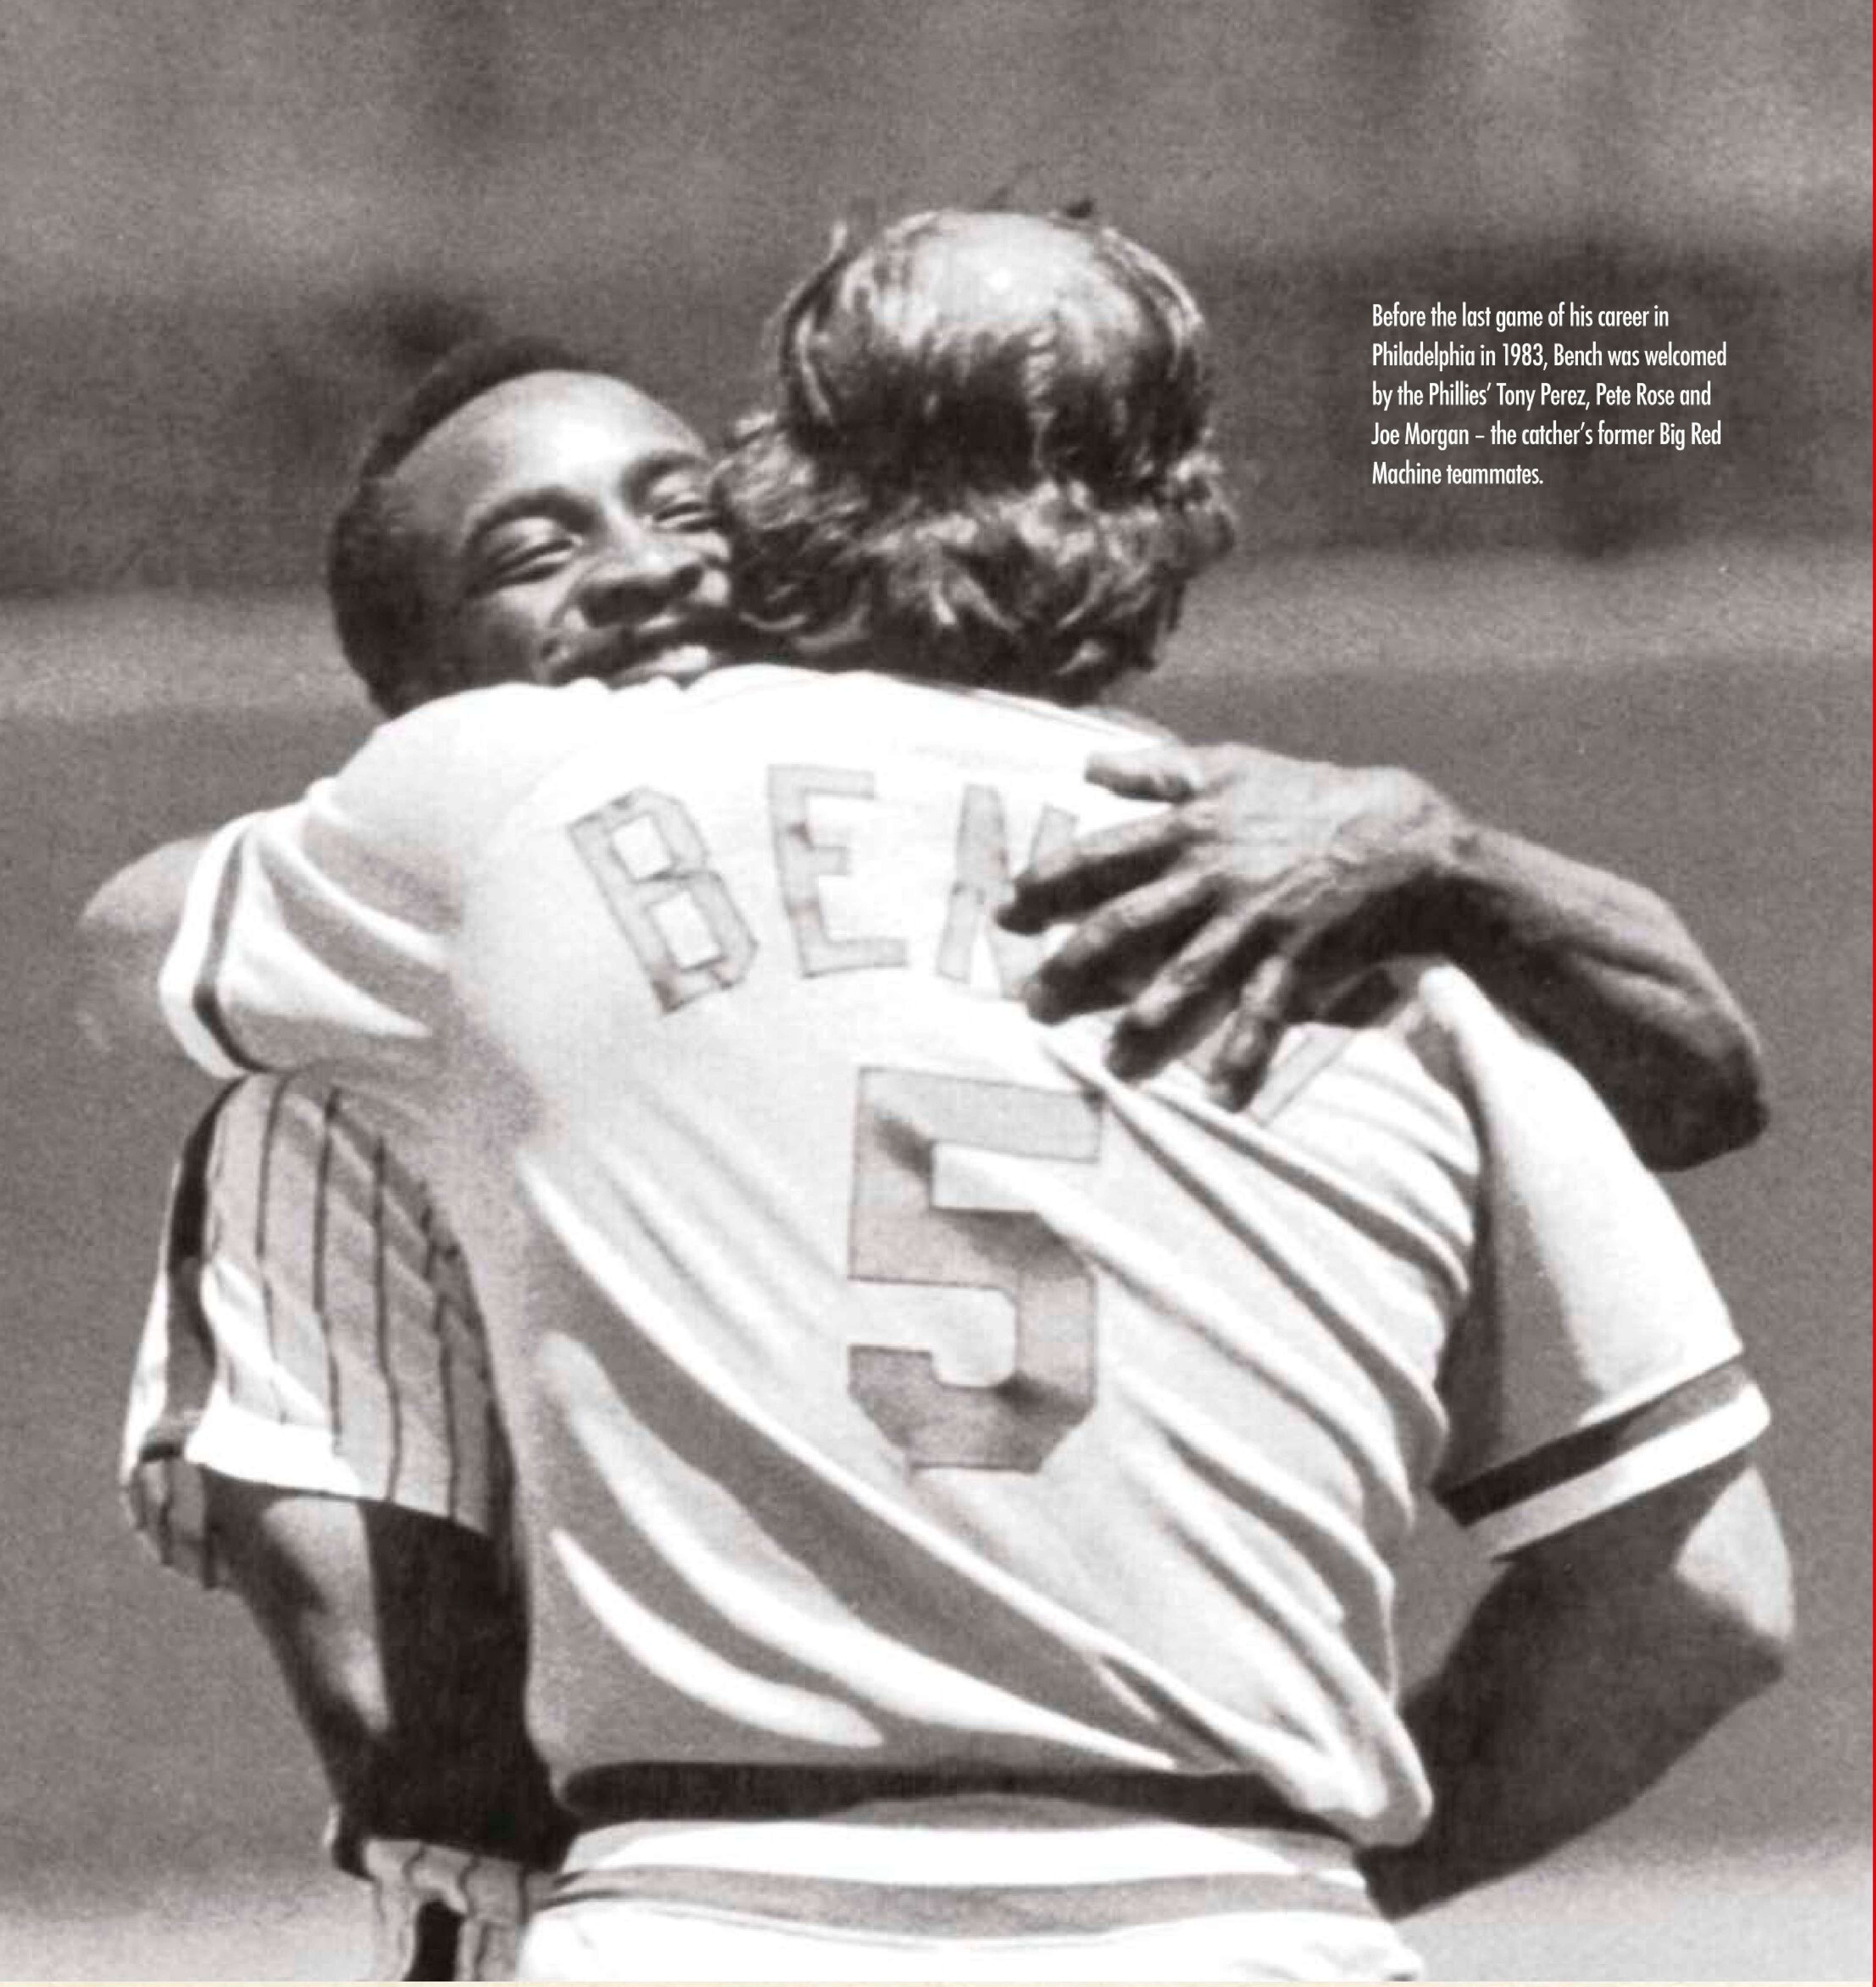
GETTY IMAGES



JB: "There wasn't much I didn't or wouldn't do for television. I went with Bob Hope on the USO show trip around the world in 1970. Went to Vietnam and West Point and the USS John F. Kennedy. Bob and I talked about every week before and after and one of his guys said I should have a television show."

BVC: Wasn't Tommy Lasorda part of the show?

JB: "He was the Wizard. Most of his stuff was done remotely. We had Ted Williams on the show, we had Mike Schmidt, we had Davey Lopes, we had Tom Seaver, we had Pete. I mean, we had a lot of great players. But after time, they started putting us in 5 a.m. timeslots. And a lot of times the show would be listed as



Before the last game of his career in Philadelphia in 1983, Bench was welcomed by the Phillies' Tony Perez, Pete Rose and Joe Morgan – the catcher's former Big Red Machine teammates.

This Week in Baseball and not The Baseball Bunch. I had coaches tell me their teams would watch The Baseball Bunch and learn things. I've always said you should have film of the best players. When Ozzie came on, then every shortstop became Ozzie and tried to emulate him, or whoever was on that show, and take it to another level if they could.

"We won awards and we won Emmys, but Ted Giannoulas [the Famous San Diego Chicken] was the key to that in so many ways. He was just enough comic relief and you could play off of him. He was great. To this day, so many people come up and mention the show. And now a new generation is watching it on reruns."

BVC: You carry the moniker of Greatest Catcher Ever. What else do you want to be remembered for?

JB: "That I made a difference, I guess. That I left some kind of positive impression on the game. Now I've got three boys – ages 32, 16 and 13 – and I've got big responsibilities with them. I've made so many great friends, friends that today I can reach out to. I hope I've been a good friend in return, and I hope I've been a good father. No, I hope I've been a great father."

GRADE LEVEL

The best values and investments for 10 key graded football Rookie Cards.

BY DAVID LEE

Keeping up with the vintage graded market can be confusing. Knowing the best deals for what you can afford, knowing what to invest in (if that's your thing), and understanding the value differences between different grades isn't easy to keep up with. That's what this guide provides on the following pages.

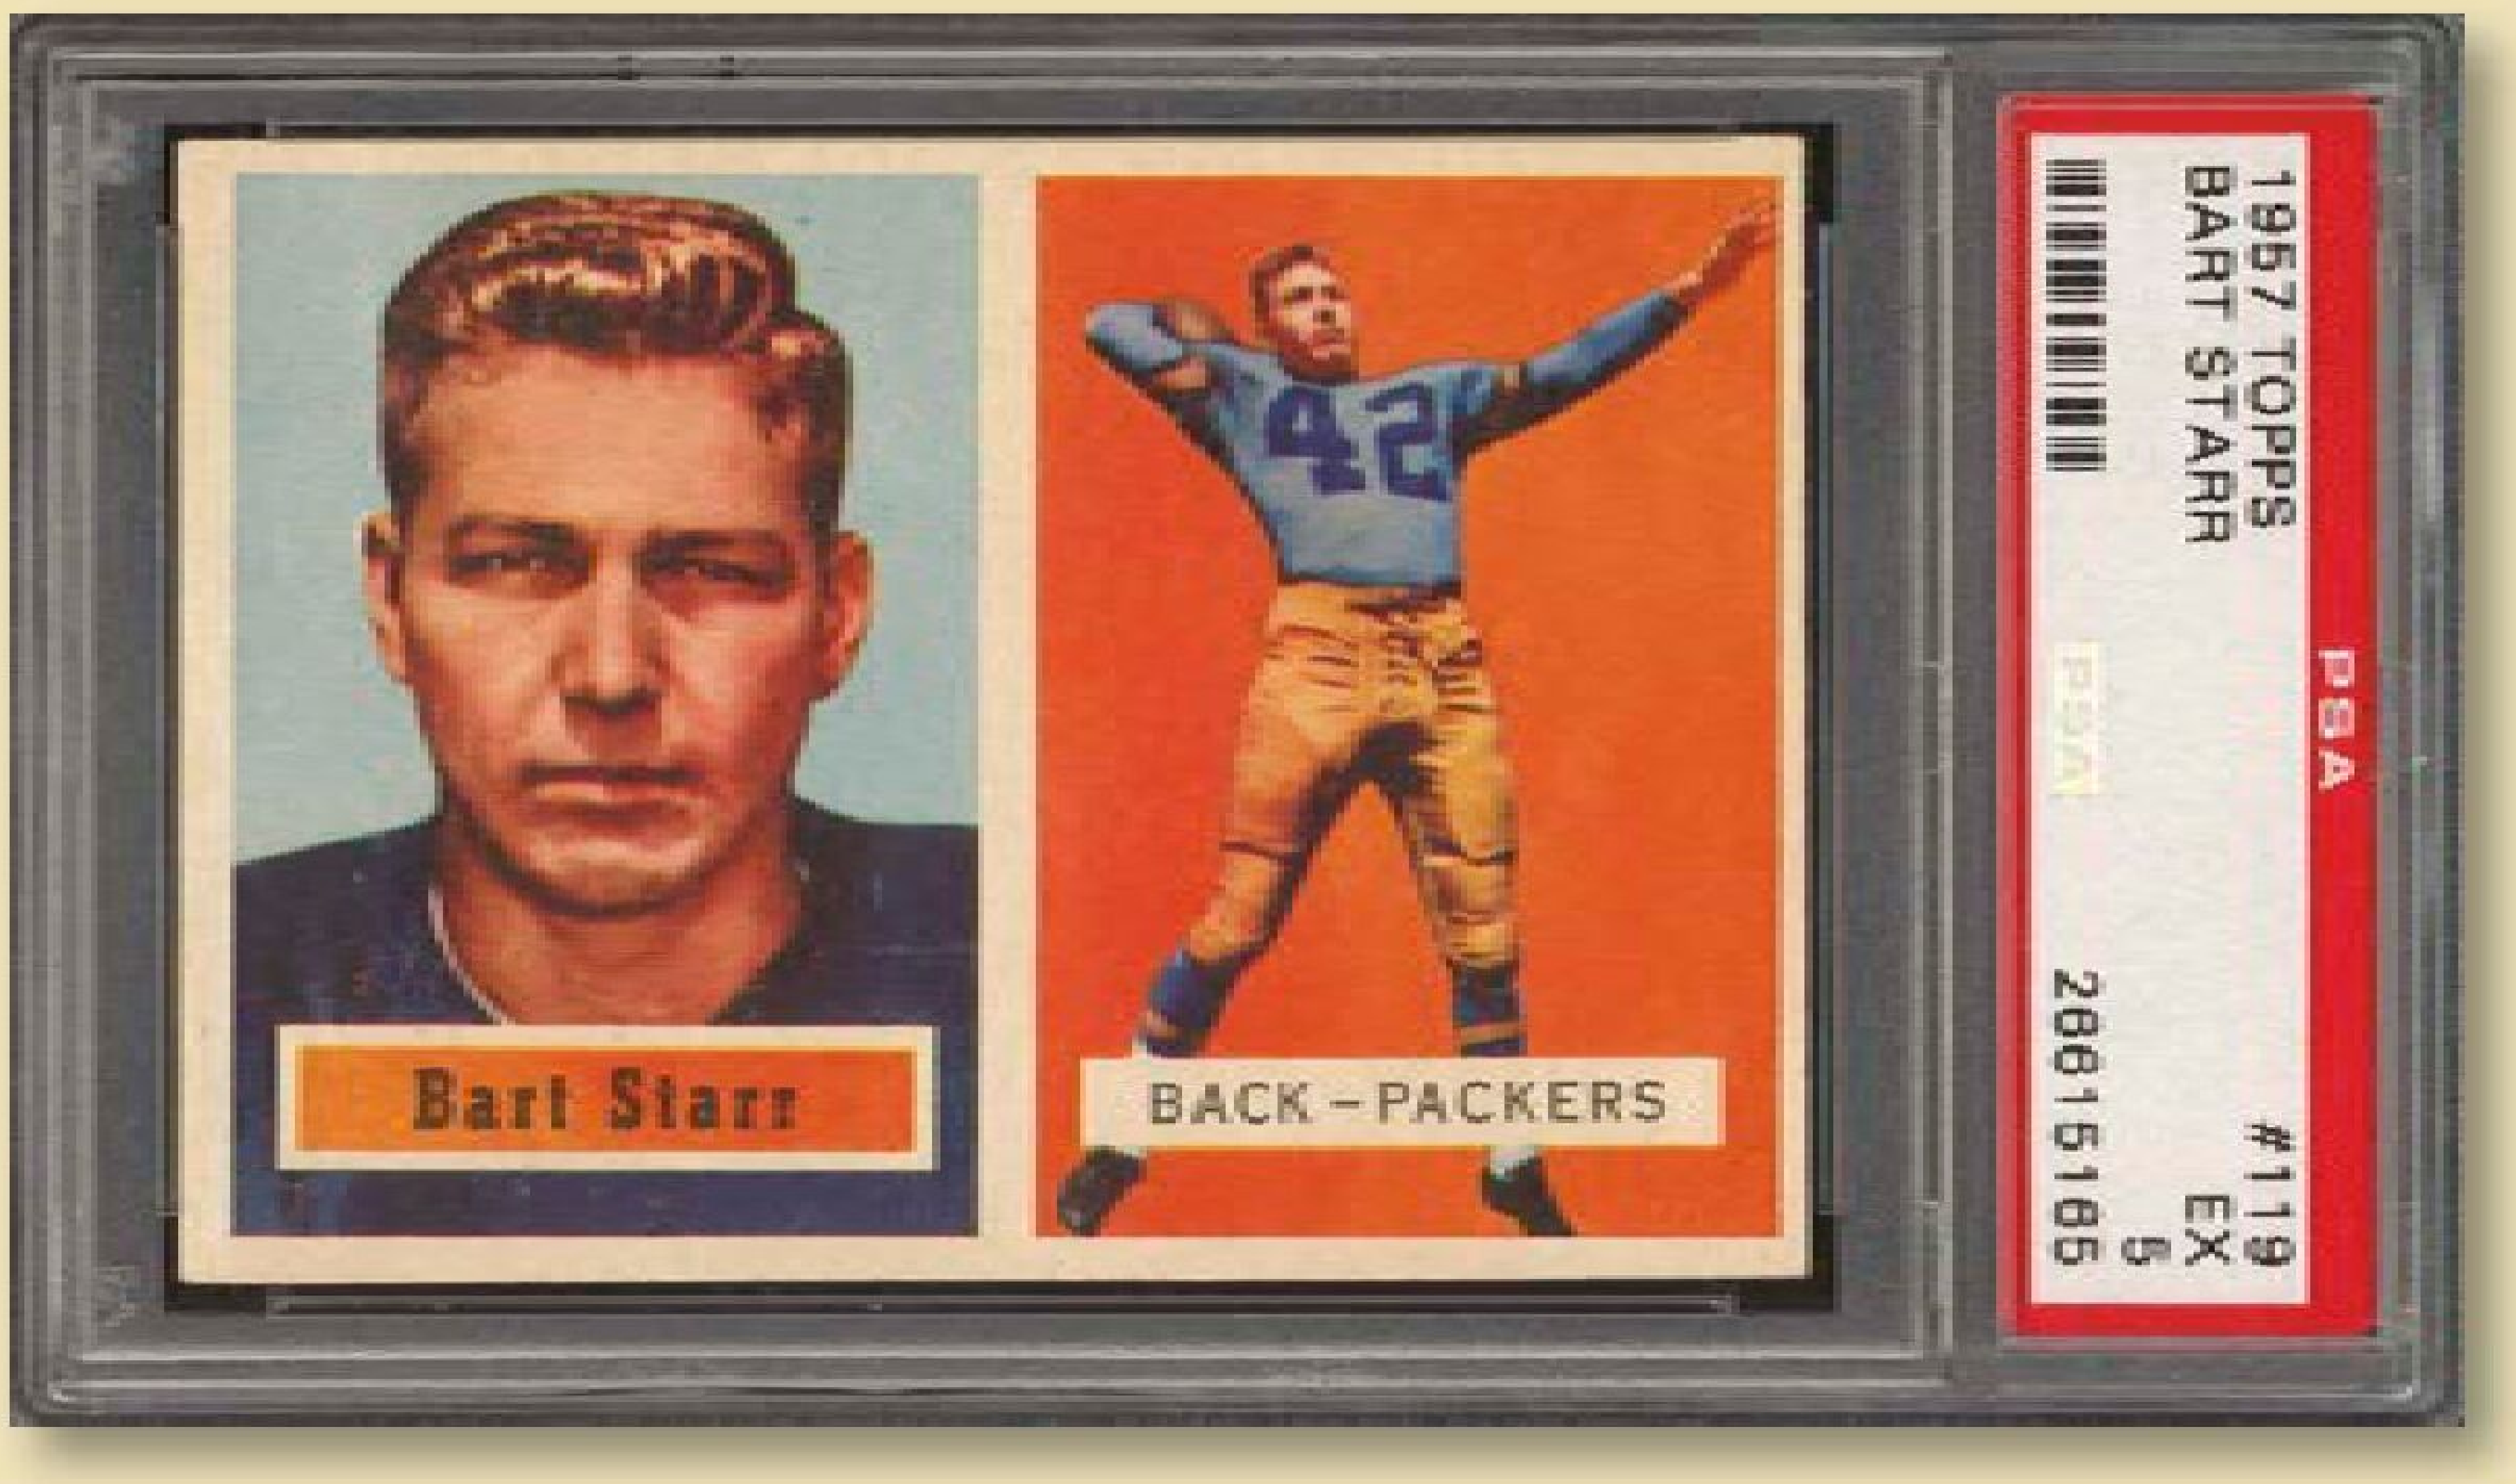
We analyzed the PSA or BVG grades, quantities, values and total market cap for 10 key vintage football Rookie Cards. The goal is to compare grading levels to find the best values and investments for each card. We did not break out half-point grades unless a particular half-point grade held a significantly different value than the lower full grade, such as a BVG 8 vs. a BVG 8.5. The values provided reflect an average of current low- to high-end market sales for each grade. Of course, there are no guarantees with the investment picks. They simply reflect the specific grades that could be the sweet spot for long-term investors.

1957 Topps #119 Bart Starr RC

PSA Grade	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	34	84	139	323	363	453	323	94	3	0	1823
Value	$280	$365	$740	$860	$1,000	$1,700	$4,000	$17,000	N/A	N/A
Market Cap	$9,520	$30,660	102,860	$277,780	$363,000	$770,100	$1.29M	$1.6M	N/A	N/A

Best Values: PSA 4 and 5

The Bart Starr RC is not one of the double-prints in the 1957 Topps set, so graded quantities overall are significantly lower compared to the double-printed Johnny Unitas. The value from PSA 2 to 3 more than doubles, but there's just a 16 percent increase from grades 3 to 4 and again from grades 4 to 5. There are more than 300 quantities of each, so they're not too hard to find and could be found for less than $1,000. That's terrific value for one of football's most iconic cards. PSA 5s typically have great eye appeal. PSA standards allow for softer corners, no worse than 85/15 centering on the front and just a small surface flaw.

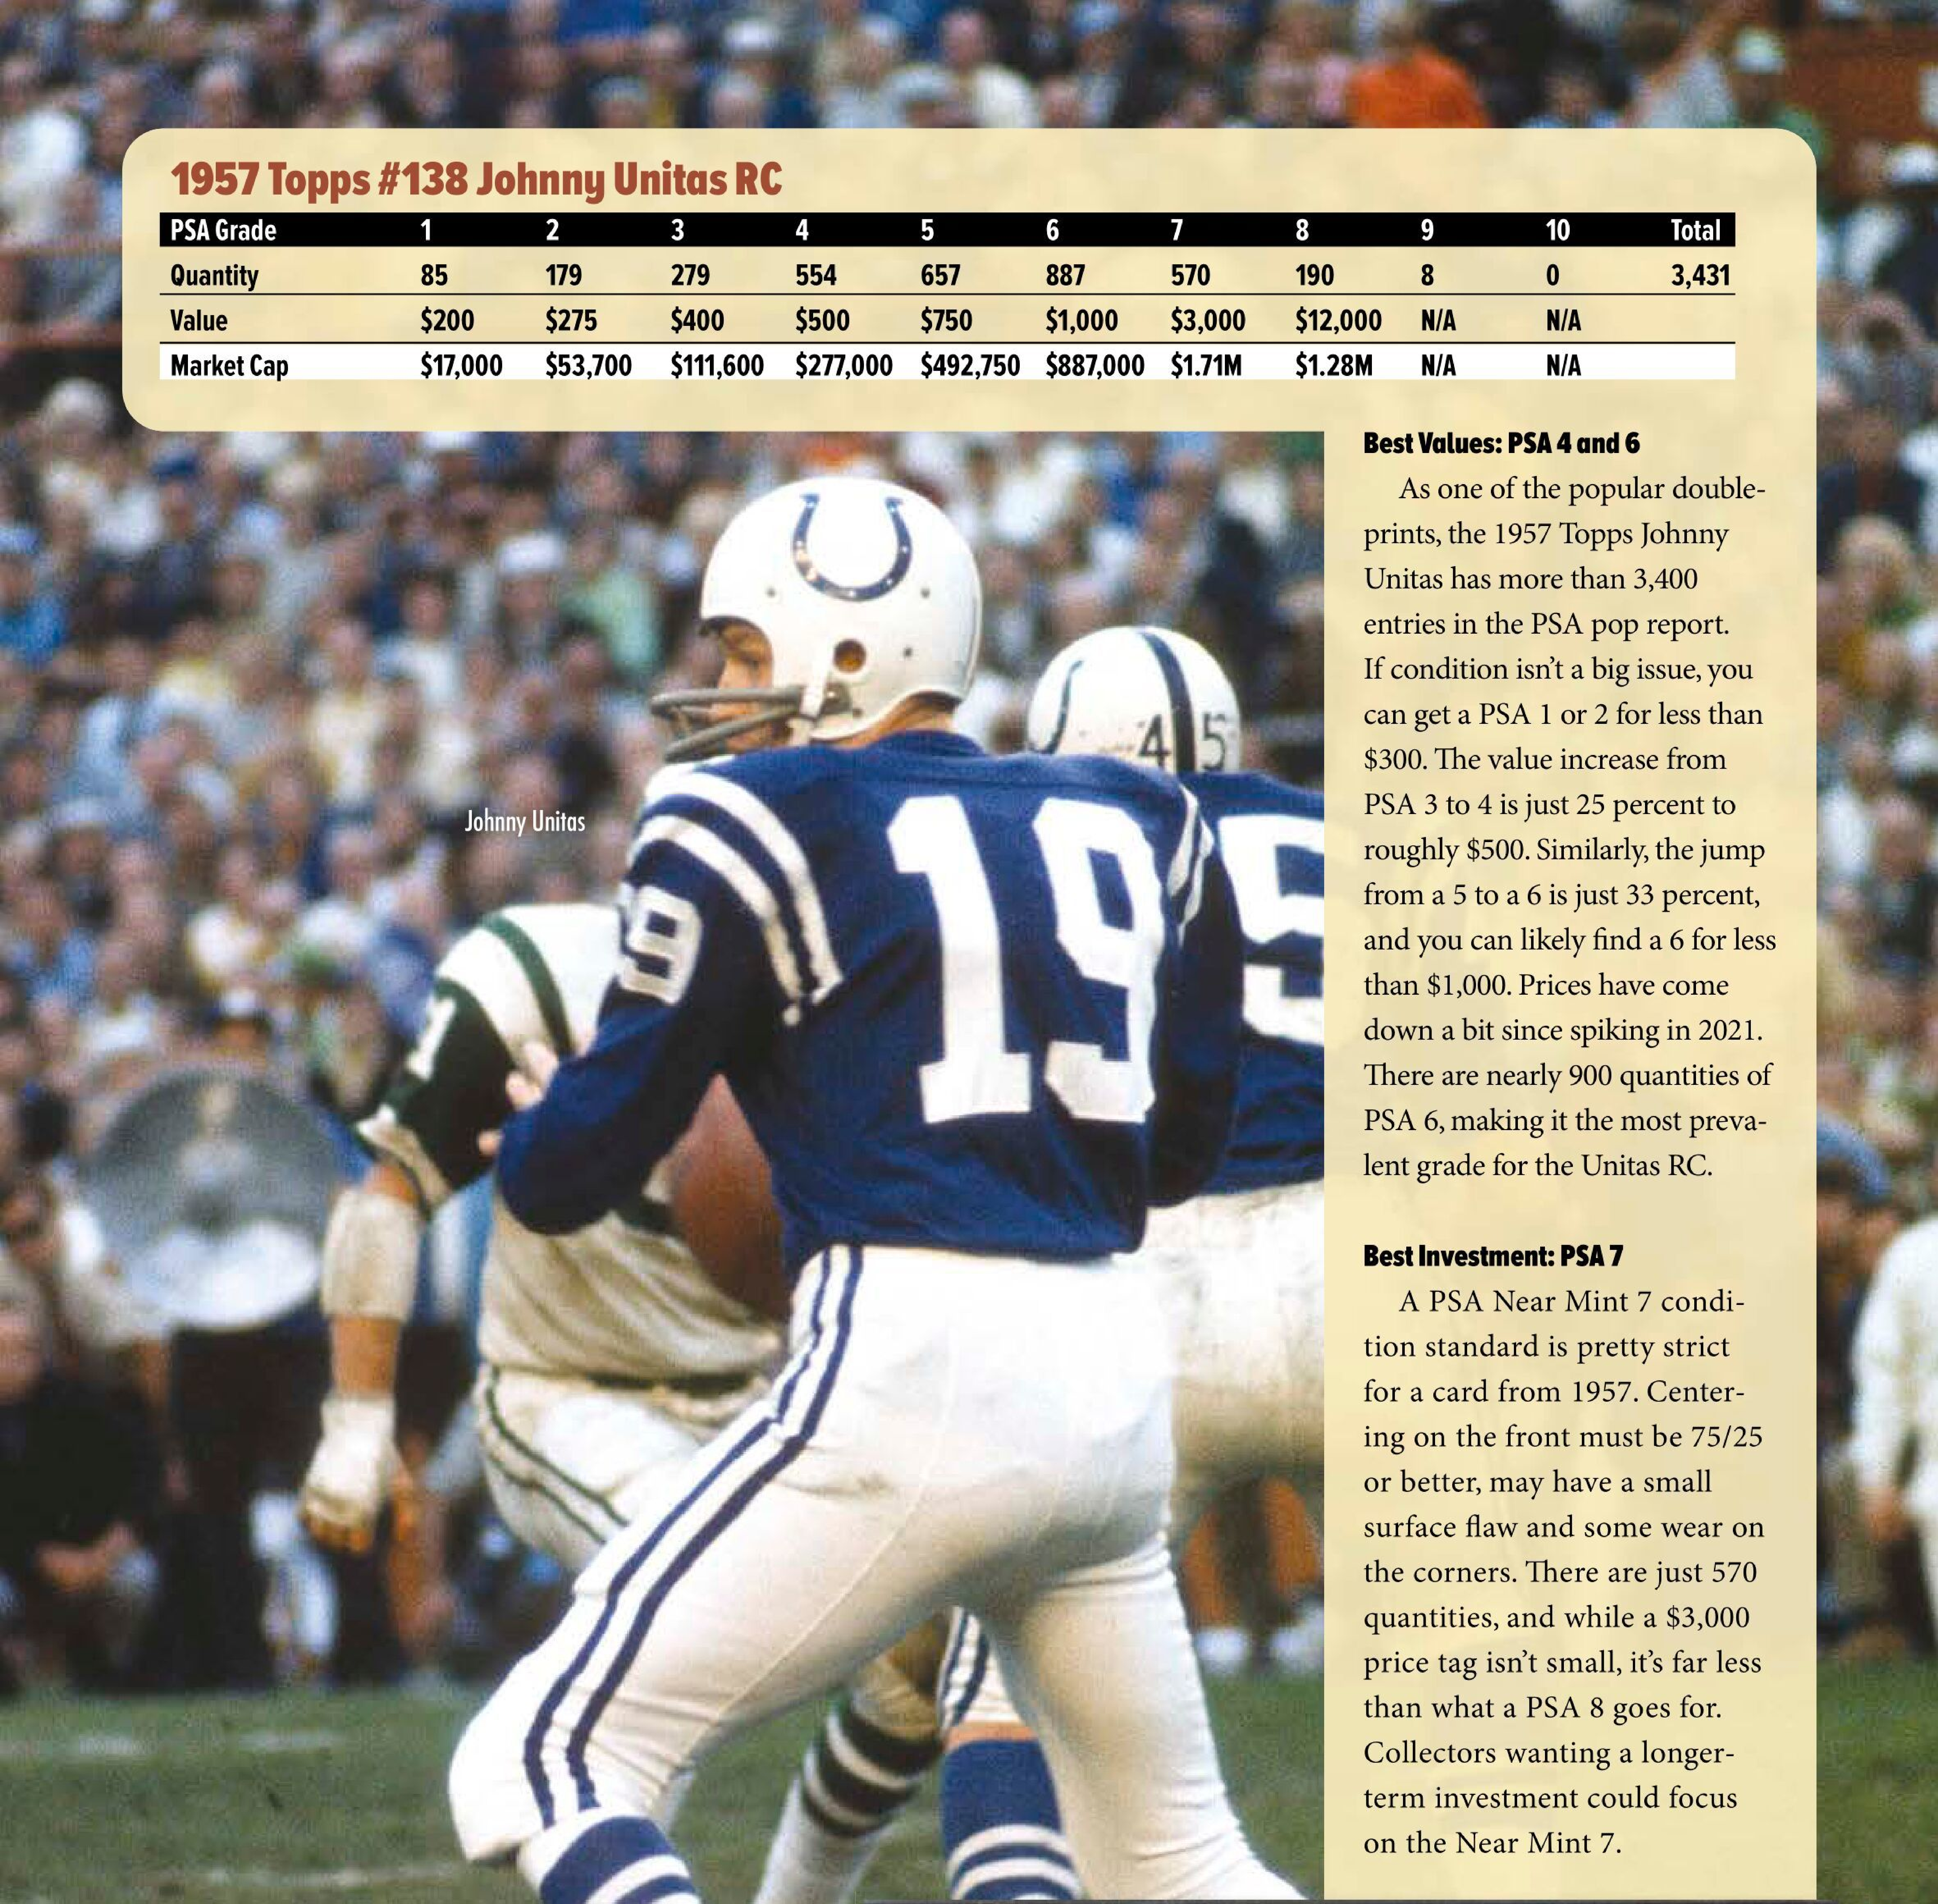


Best Investment: PSA 7

A PSA 7 checks in at four times the value of a PSA 5, but there are just 323 quantities in the pop report. It drops down to just 94 at PSA 8. So, a Near Mint 7 might become the sweet spot for investors who can't find or afford an 8. The attention for what's considered a high-grade investment might flood to the PSA 7.

1957 Topps #138 Johnny Unitas RC

PSA Grade	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	85	179	279	554	657	887	570	190	8	0	3,431
Value	$200	$275	$400	$500	$750	$1,000	$3,000	$12,000	N/A	N/A
Market Cap	$17,000	$53,700	$111,600	$277,000	$492,750	$887,000	$1.71M	$1.28M	N/A	N/A



Johnny Unitas

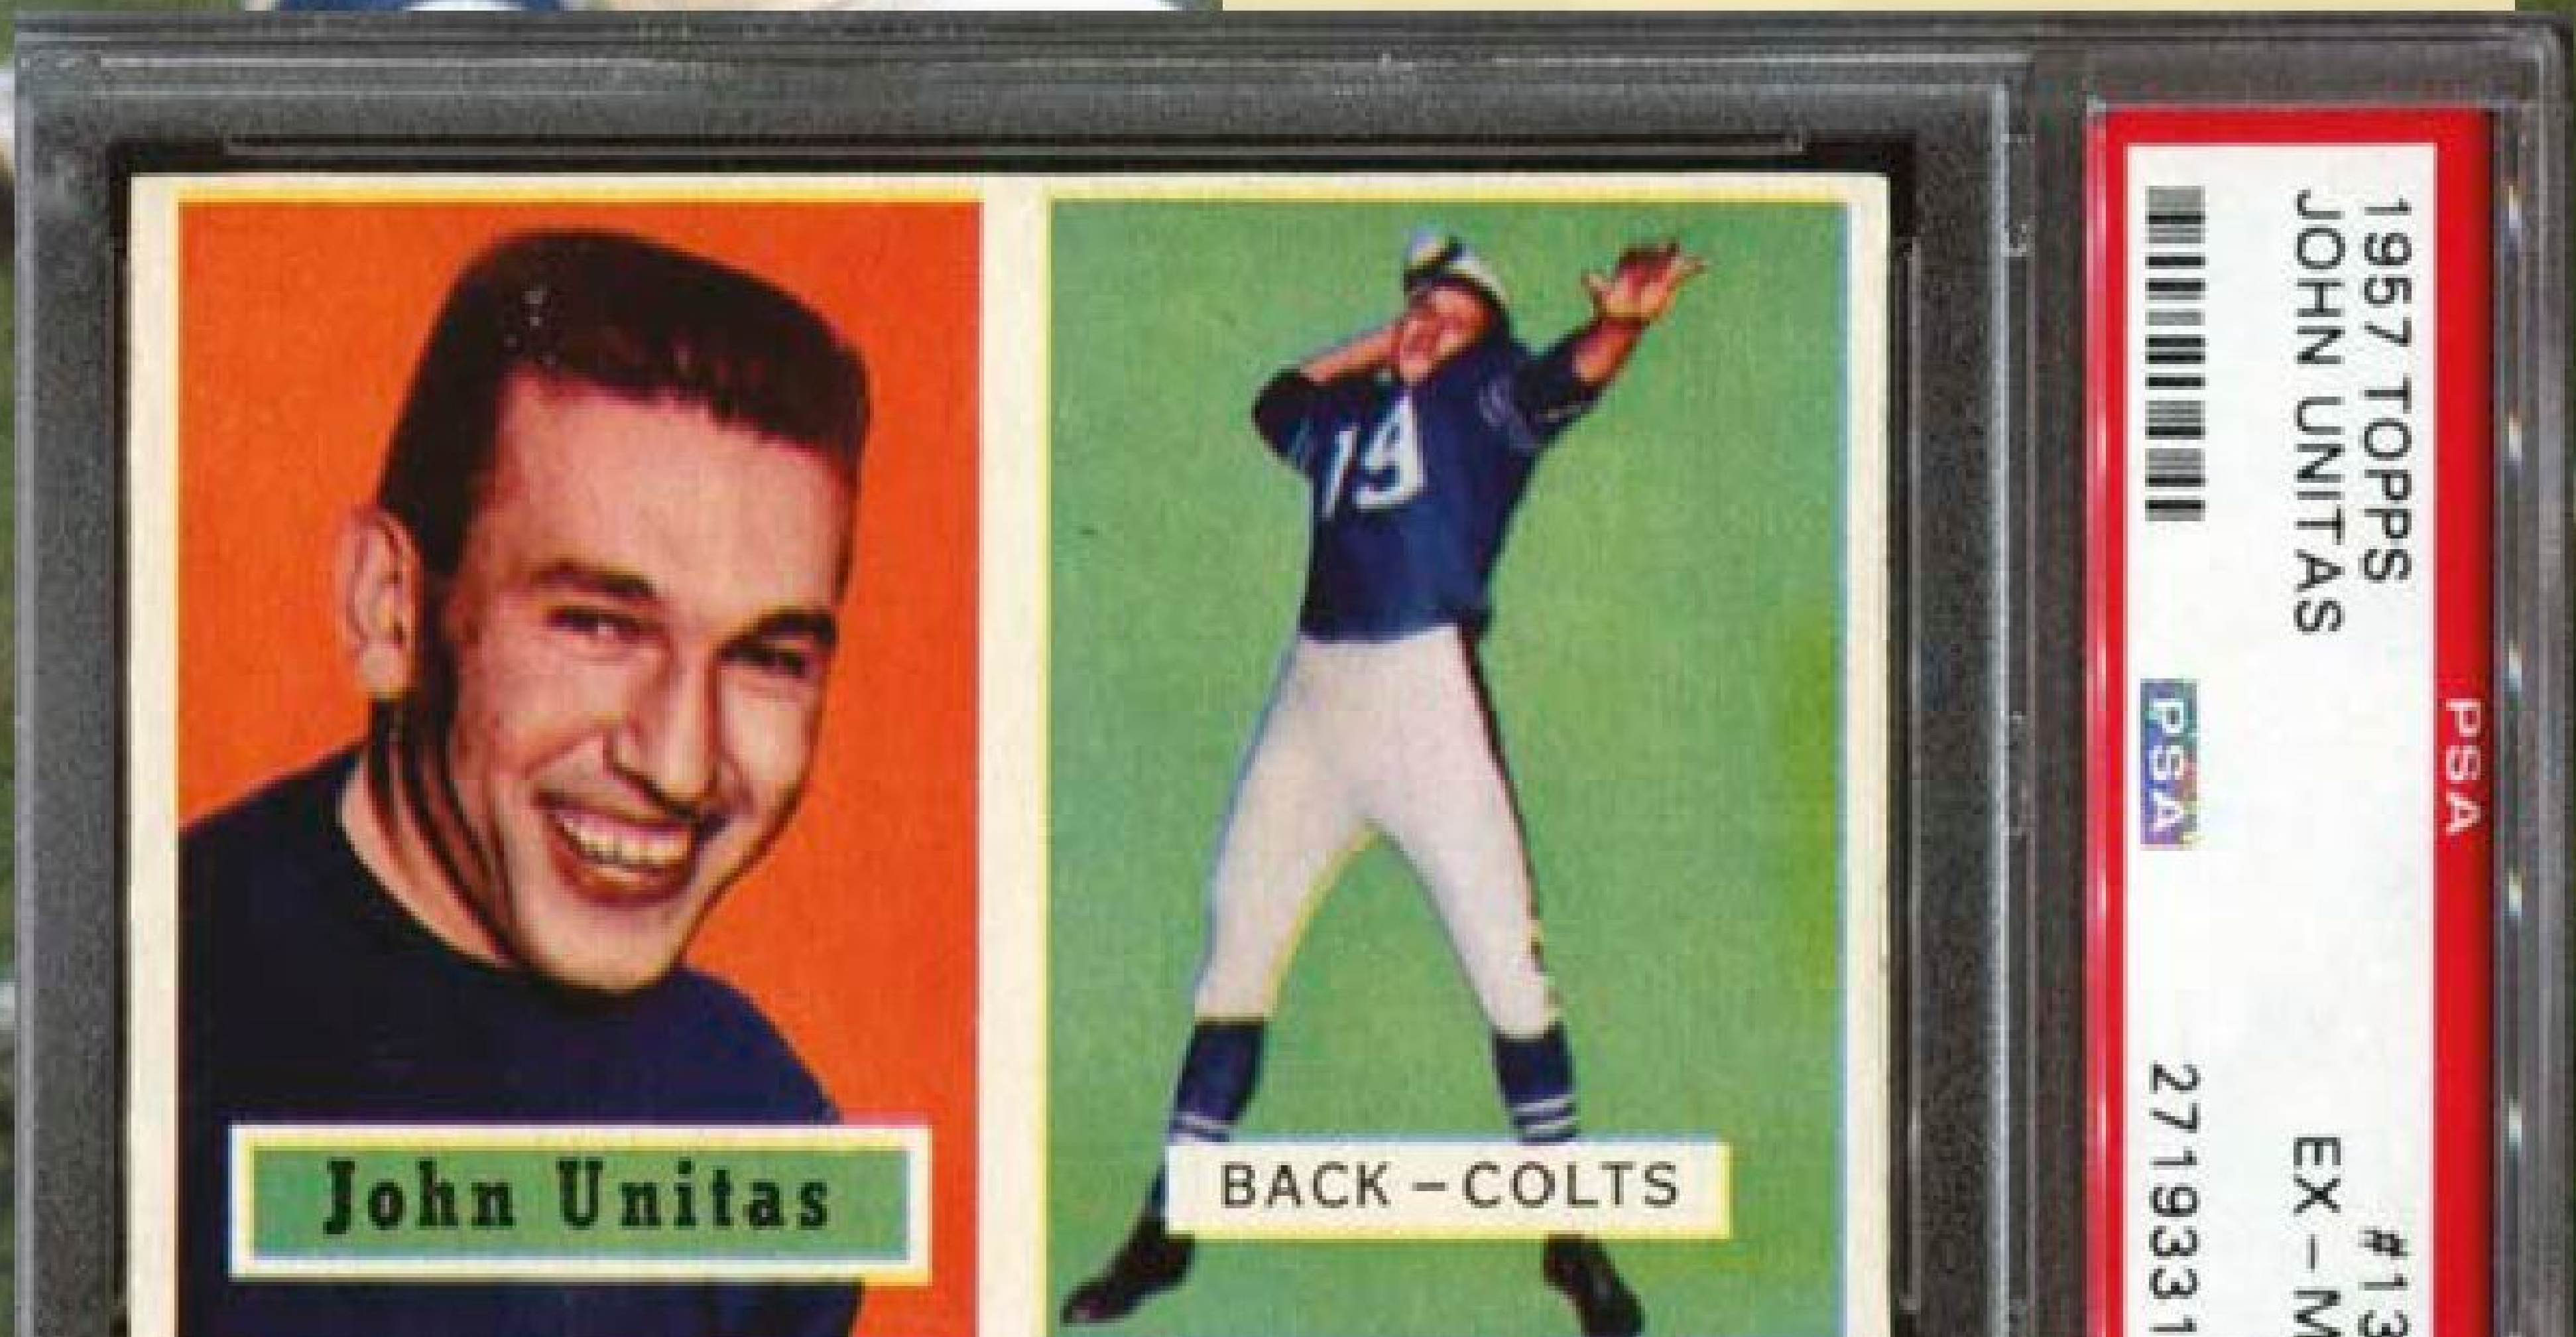
GETTY IMAGES

Best Values: PSA 4 and 6

As one of the popular double-prints, the 1957 Topps Johnny Unitas has more than 3,400 entries in the PSA pop report. If condition isn't a big issue, you can get a PSA 1 or 2 for less than $300. The value increase from PSA 3 to 4 is just 25 percent to roughly $500. Similarly, the jump from a 5 to a 6 is just 33 percent, and you can likely find a 6 for less than $1,000. Prices have come down a bit since spiking in 2021. There are nearly 900 quantities of PSA 6, making it the most prevalent grade for the Unitas RC.

Best Investment: PSA 7

A PSA Near Mint 7 condition standard is pretty strict for a card from 1957. Centering on the front must be 75/25 or better, may have a small surface flaw and some wear on the corners. There are just 570 quantities, and while a $3,000 price tag isn't small, it's far less than what a PSA 8 goes for. Collectors wanting a longer-term investment could focus on the Near Mint 7.

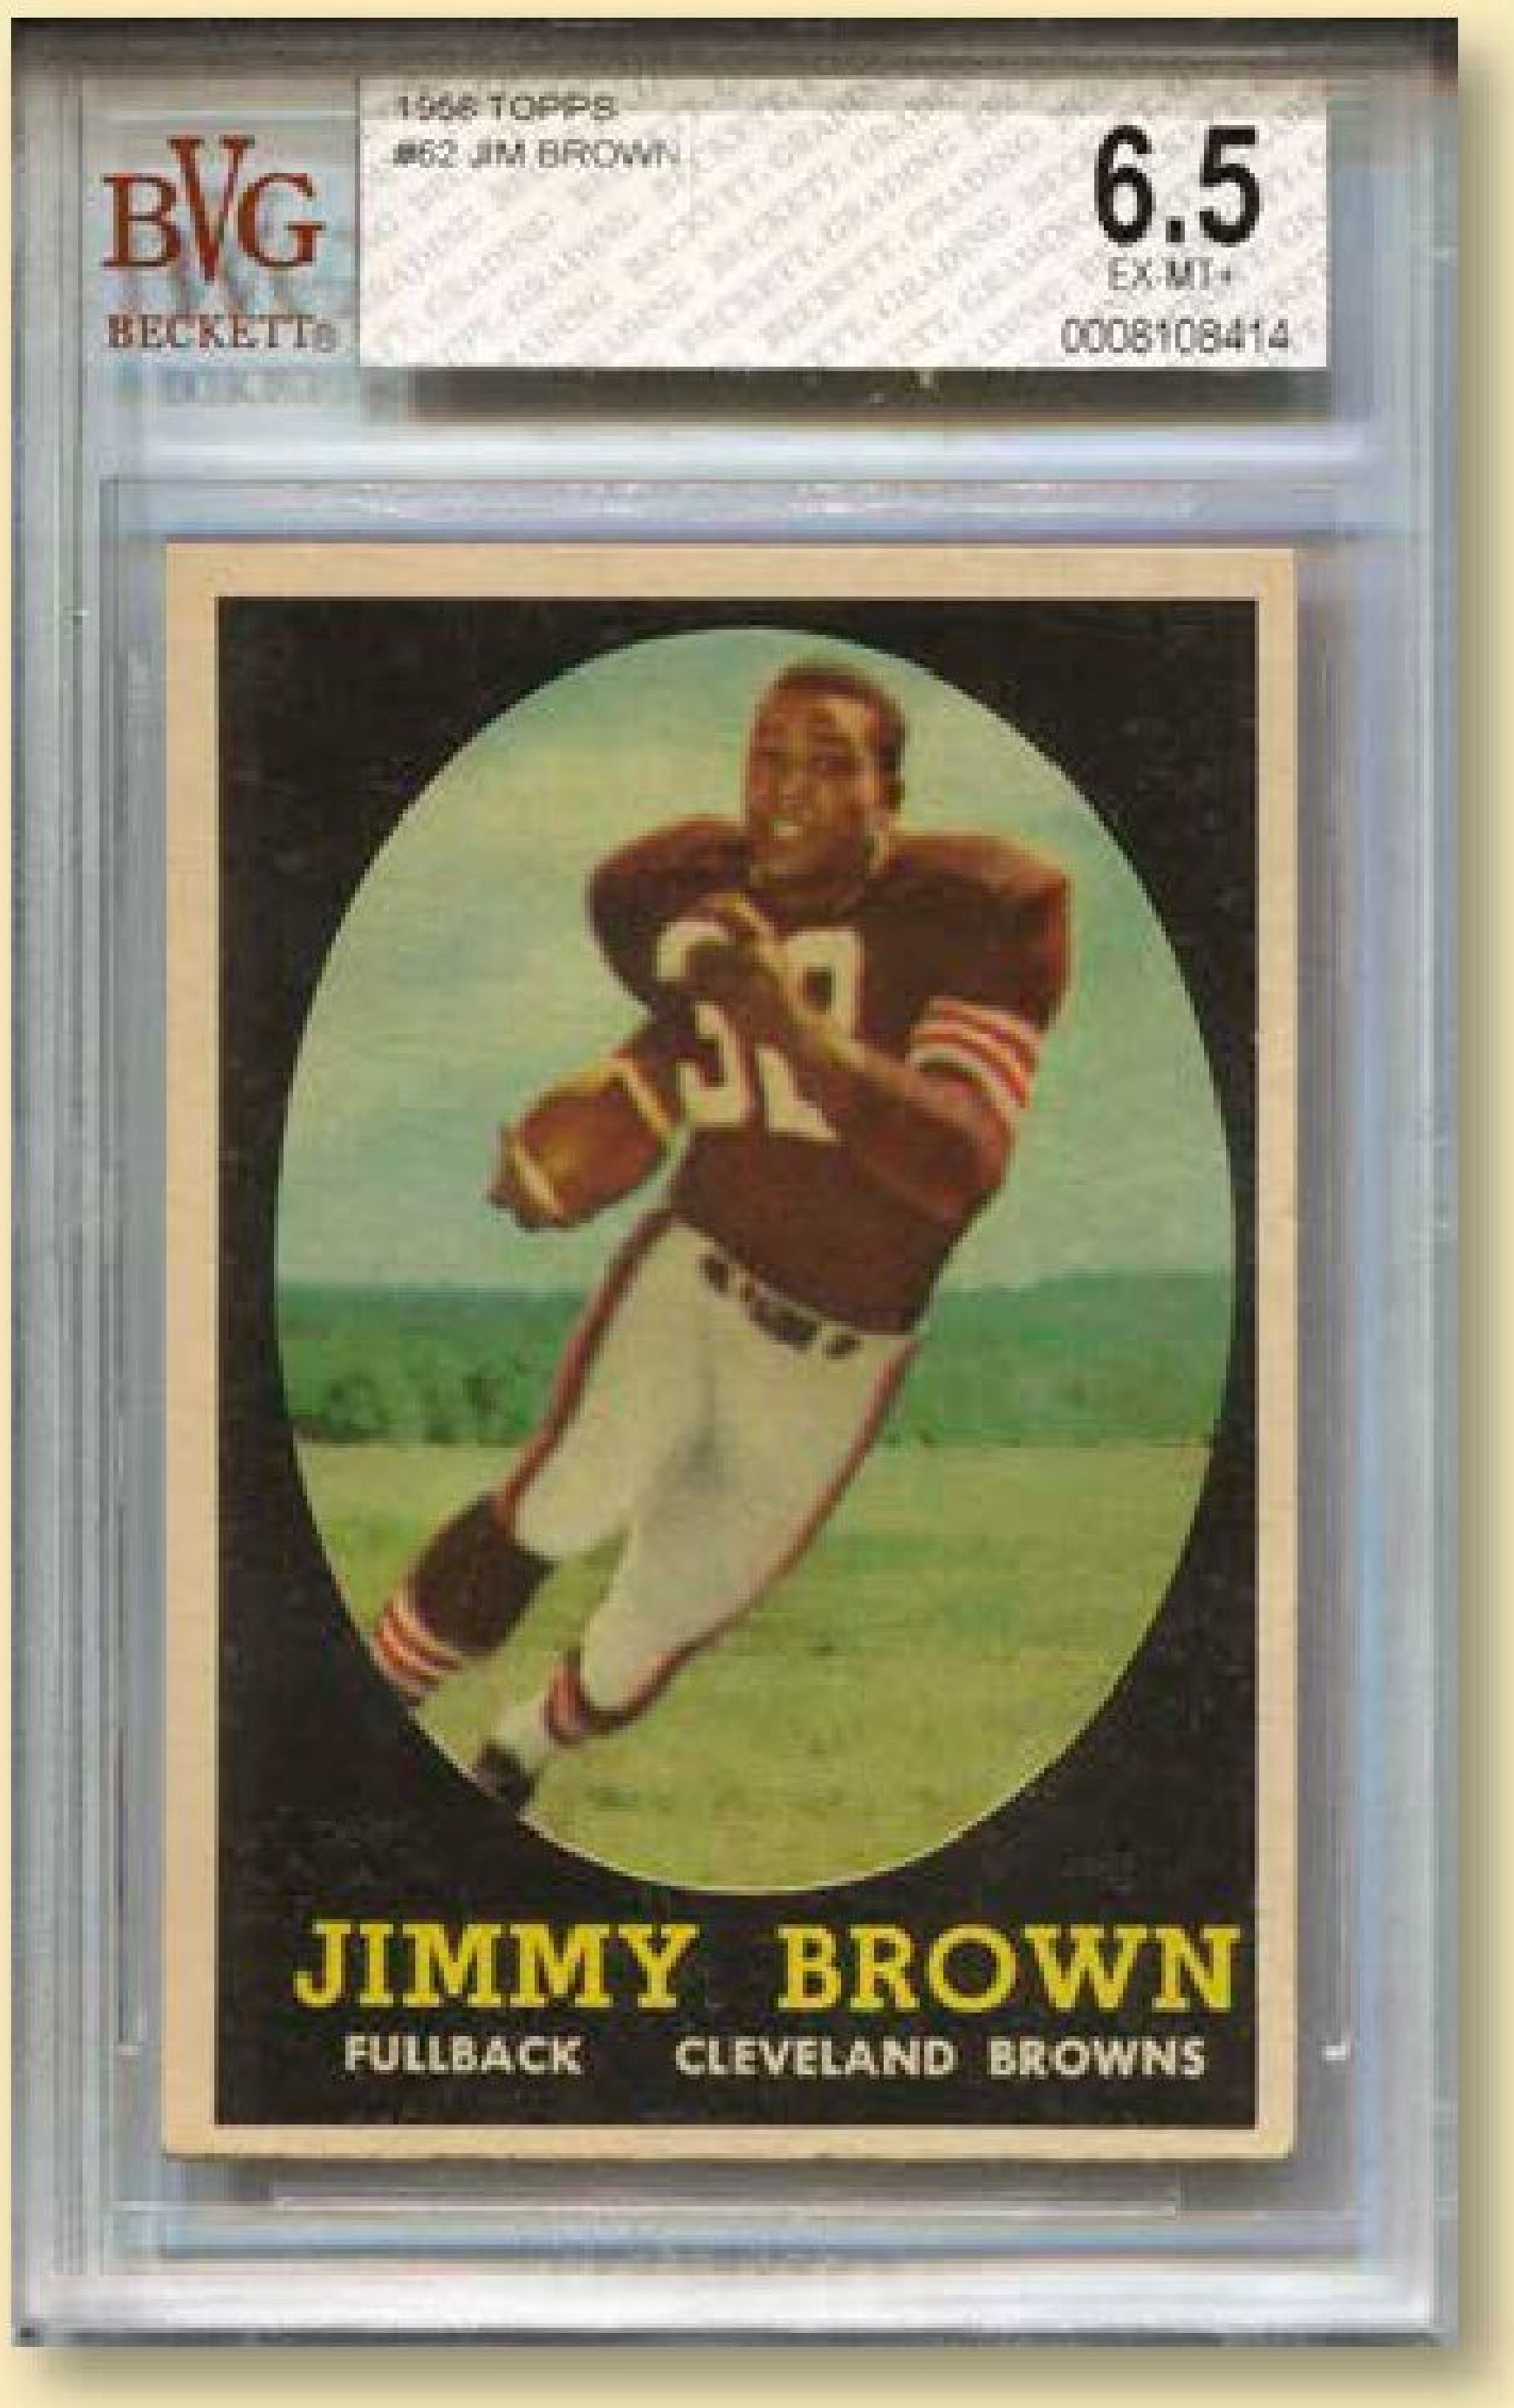


1958 Topps #62 Jim Brown RC

BVG Grade	1.0-1.5	2.0-2.5	3.0-3.5	4.0-4.5	5.0-5.5	6.0-6.5	7-7.5	8-8.5	9	9.5	10	Total
Quantity	28	93	147	203	228	108	40	7	1	0	0	855
Value	$450	$675	$1,000	$1,500	$2,000	$3,000	$6,000	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
Market Cap	$12.600	$62,775	$147,000	$304,500	$456,000	$324,000	$240,000	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A

Best Value: BVG 5-5.5

Shifting to a BVG analysis for the 1958 Topps Jim Brown, this is the second-most valuable vintage football card. Centering is a big condition issue, especially with the optic of the oval design that accentuates the borders. The discrepancy in value between grades is tight, which could indicate a strong market for grades across the spectrum. A BVG 5 or 5.5 is selling for around $2,000, which is only a 33 percent increase from the 4 or 4.5 grades. But, jumping to a 6 or 6.5 is a 100 percent increase. That's a good middle ground for collectors looking for a nice condition before prices get too high. There are 228 quantities of grades 5 and 5.5, which is the highest of all BVG grades.



Best Investment: BVG 6-6.5

A BVG 6 or 6.5 is a 50 percent increase in value from the 5 to 5.5 grades to $3,000. That's still pricy for most collectors, and it's a tough condition level to reach. However, there aren't many options at the higher grades.

1965 Topps #122 Joe Namath RC

PSA Grade	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	82	91	138	267	306	329	179	78	5	0	1509

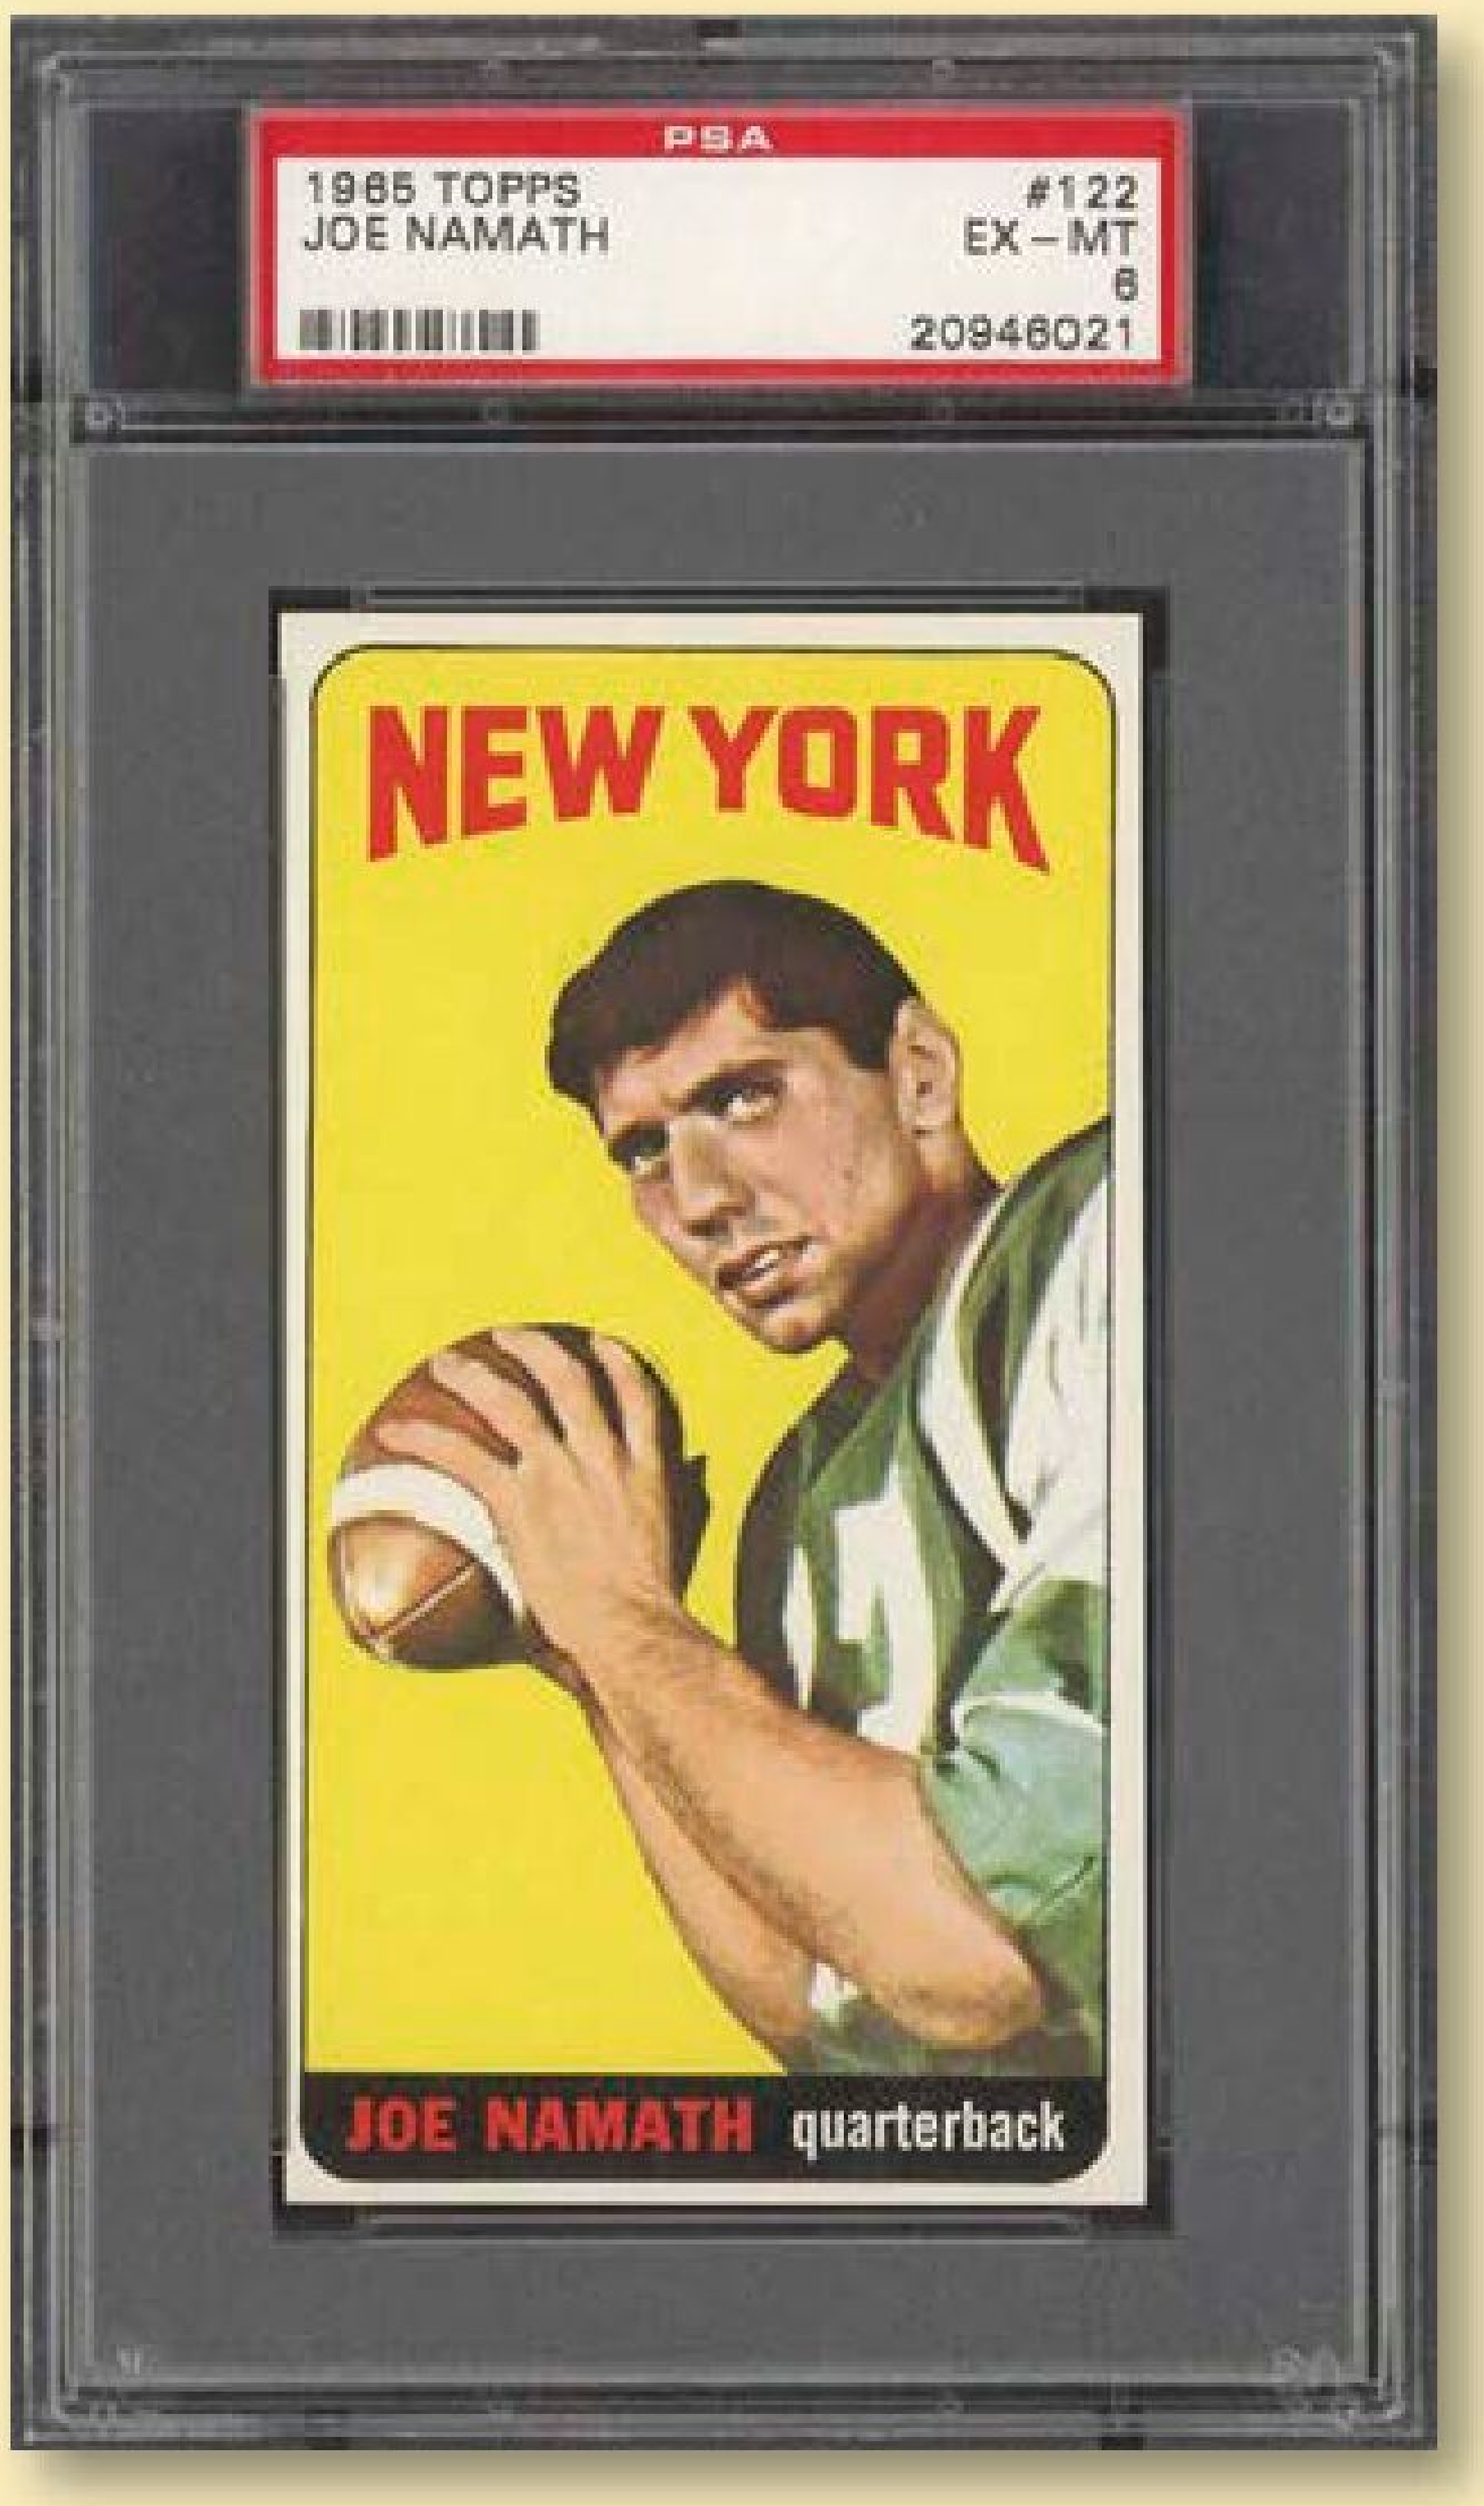
Best Values: PSA 4 and 5

Joe Namath's 1965 Topps Rookie Card is arguably the most iconic football card ever made. It's from the first of four AFL Topps sets while Philadelphia Gum produced NFL cards. The unique "tallboy" design also sets it apart. PSA 4s sell for roughly the same amount as a PSA 3, and a PSA 5 is just a 20 percent increase from a 4. Both grades bring $3,000 to $3,600. That's a tight value window that includes a total of more than 550 quantities. The PSA 5 is just 29 percent increase from the PSA 3. A PSA 6 jumps to $5,500, which is a 53 percent increase from the 5.



Best Investment: PSA 6

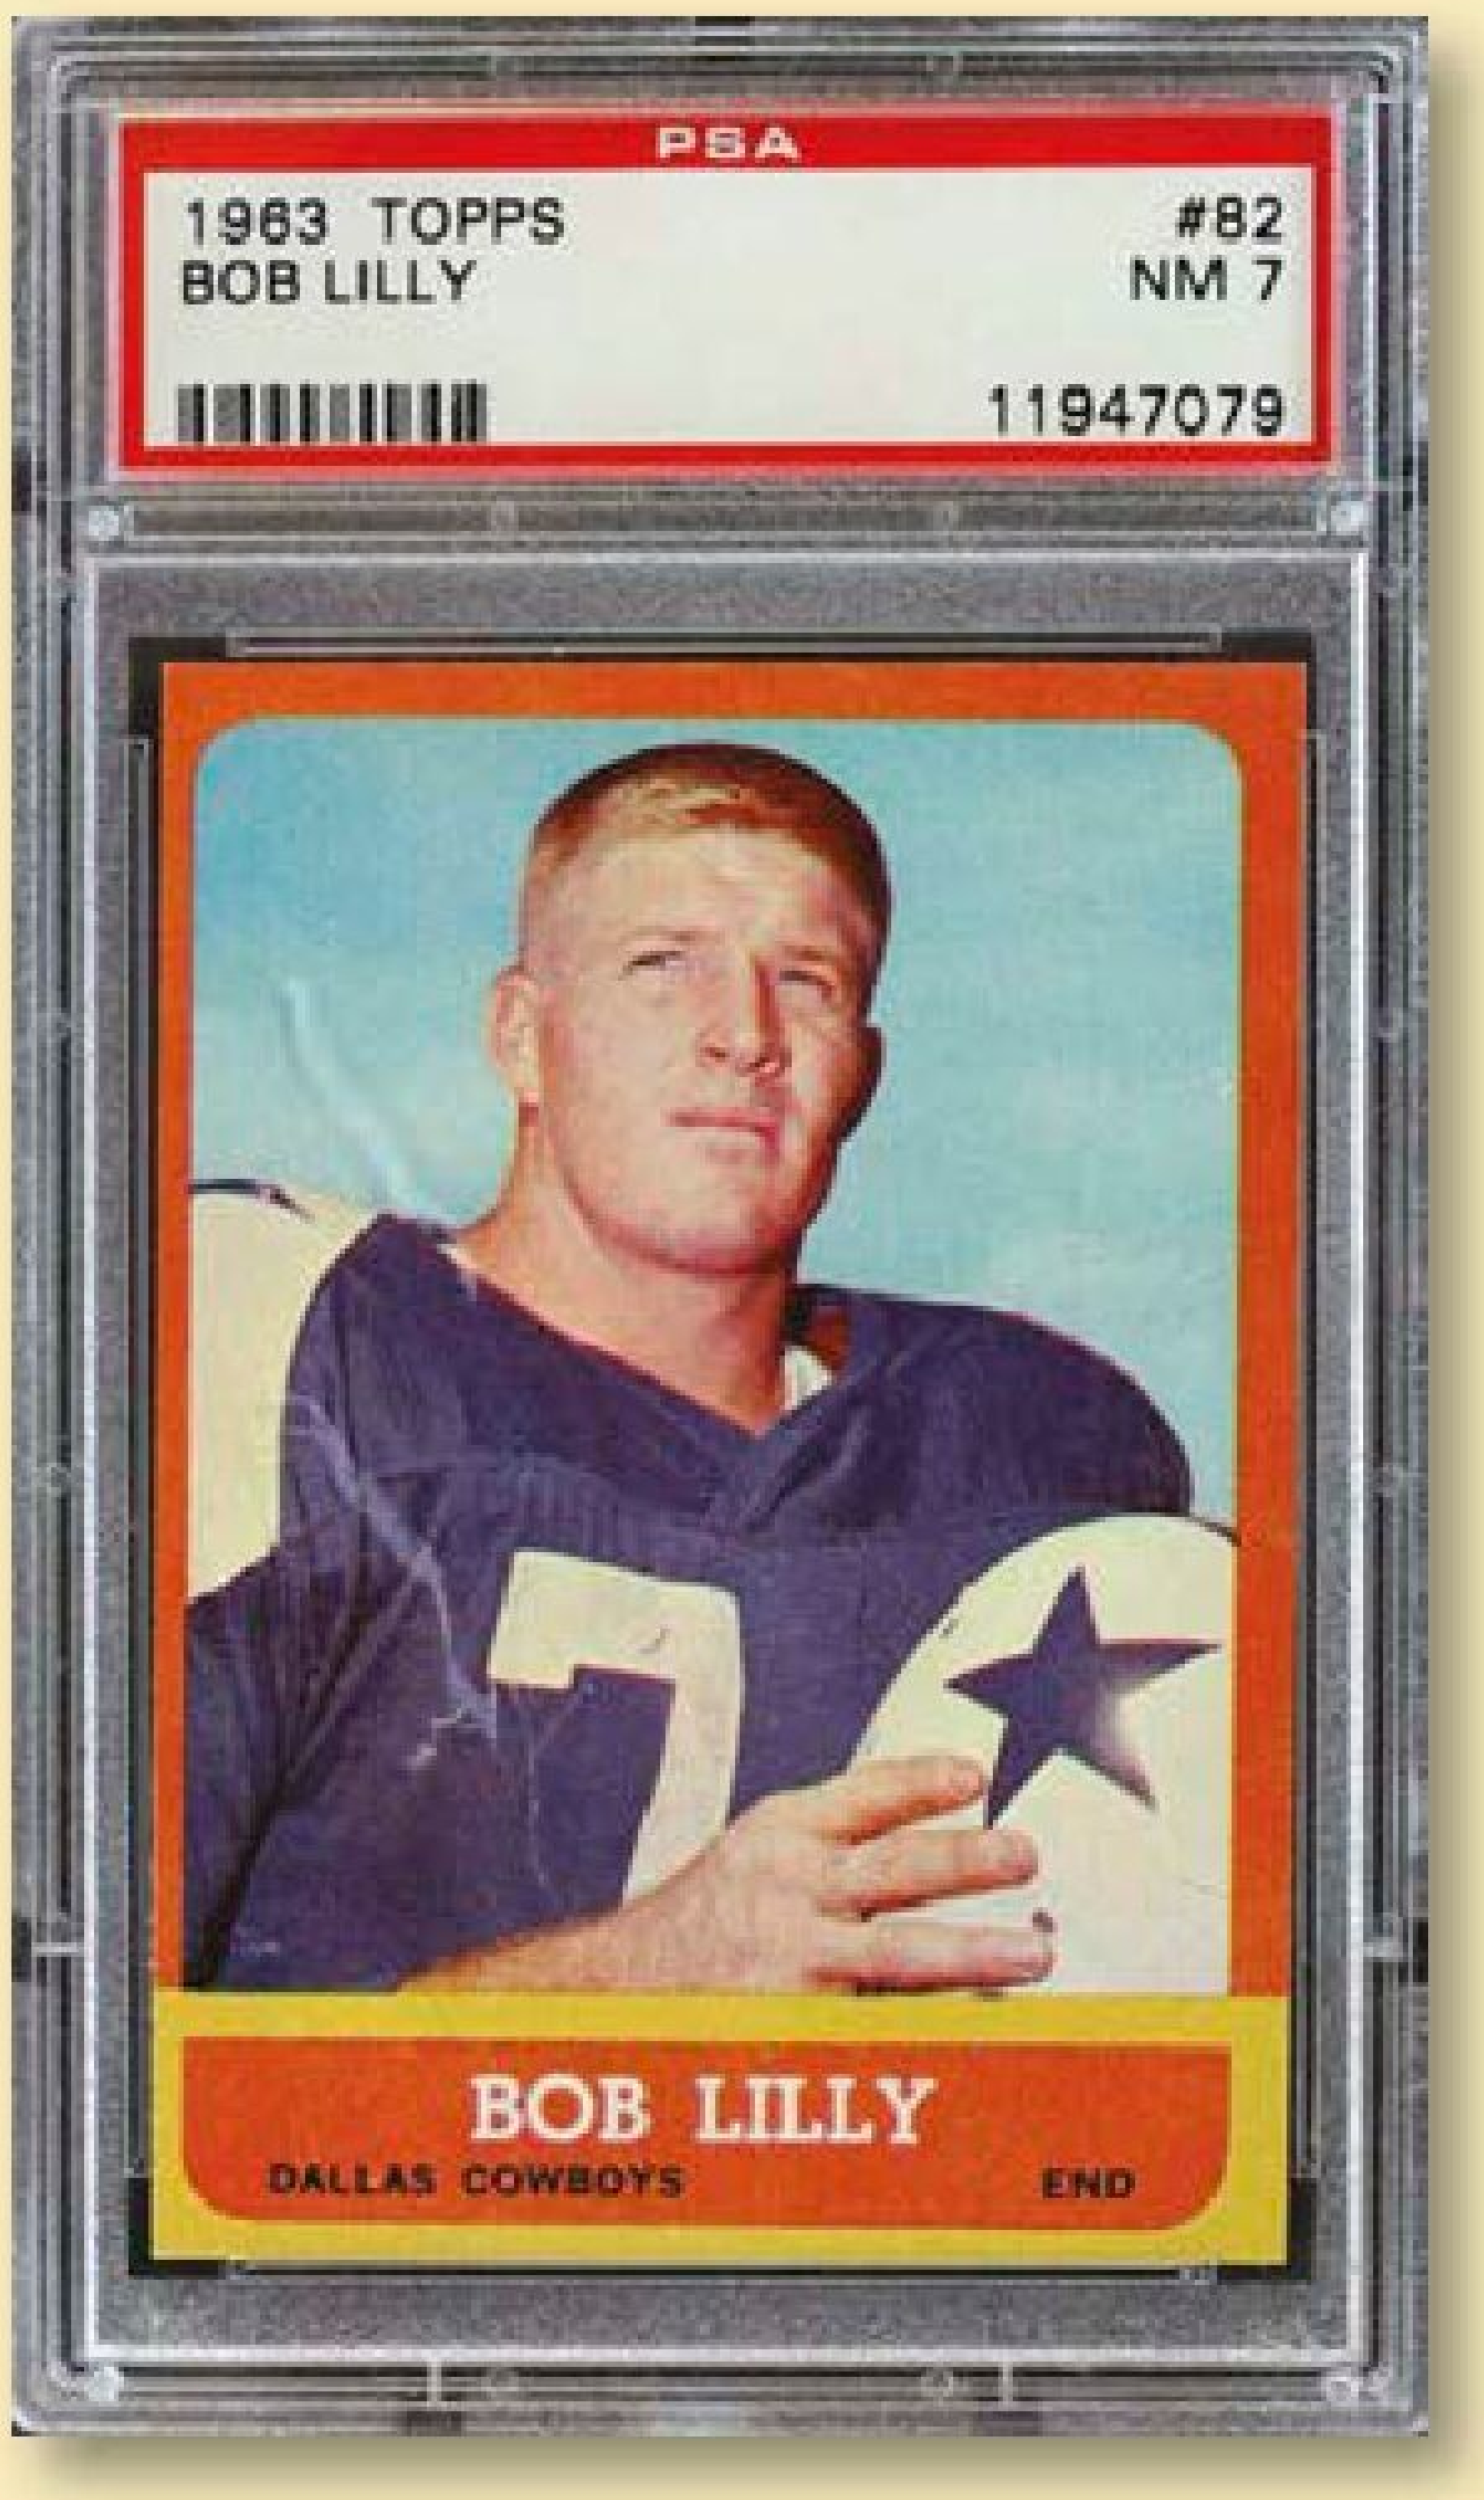
Even though the PSA 6 is a large jump from the 5, a PSA 7 is nearly 10 times the value of the PSA 6. Those who can't shell out five figures will likely go for the next highest grade, which could close the gap between the PSA 6 and 7.

1963 Topps #82 Bob Lilly RC

PSA Grade	1-2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	7	24	96	91	166	200	91	9	0	688
Value	$50	$75	$100	$200	$350	$550	$1,000	$2,000	N/A
Market Cap	$350	$1,800	$9,600	$18,200	$58,100	$110,000	$91,000	$18,000	N/A

Best Values: PSA 5 and 7

Bob Lilly was a seven-time first-team All-Pro, is a member of two NFL All-Decade teams and the NFL's All-Time Team. His 1963 Topps Rookie Card is fairly easy to find, and major condition issues include centering and corner wear that can show from the orange borders. A PSA 1 through 4 grades are no more than $100. A PSA 5 can be had for $200, which is still a great deal. Moving to a PSA 6 is a big jump at $150 more, but a PSA 7 is just a 57 percent increase from the 6 up to $550. That's not a bad price for a Near Mint grade for one of the greatest defensive players of all time. There are 200 quantities, making it a challenge to find but still attainable.



Best Investment: PSA 8

A PSA 8 is tough to find, but a $1,000 price tag isn't unreasonable, especially considering there are fewer than 100 in existence. With a Mint 9 bringing twice as much, the 8 could be the target for investors.

1966 Philadelphia #31 Dick Butkus RC

PSA Grade	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	14	33	80	208	239	309	221	160	7	1	1276

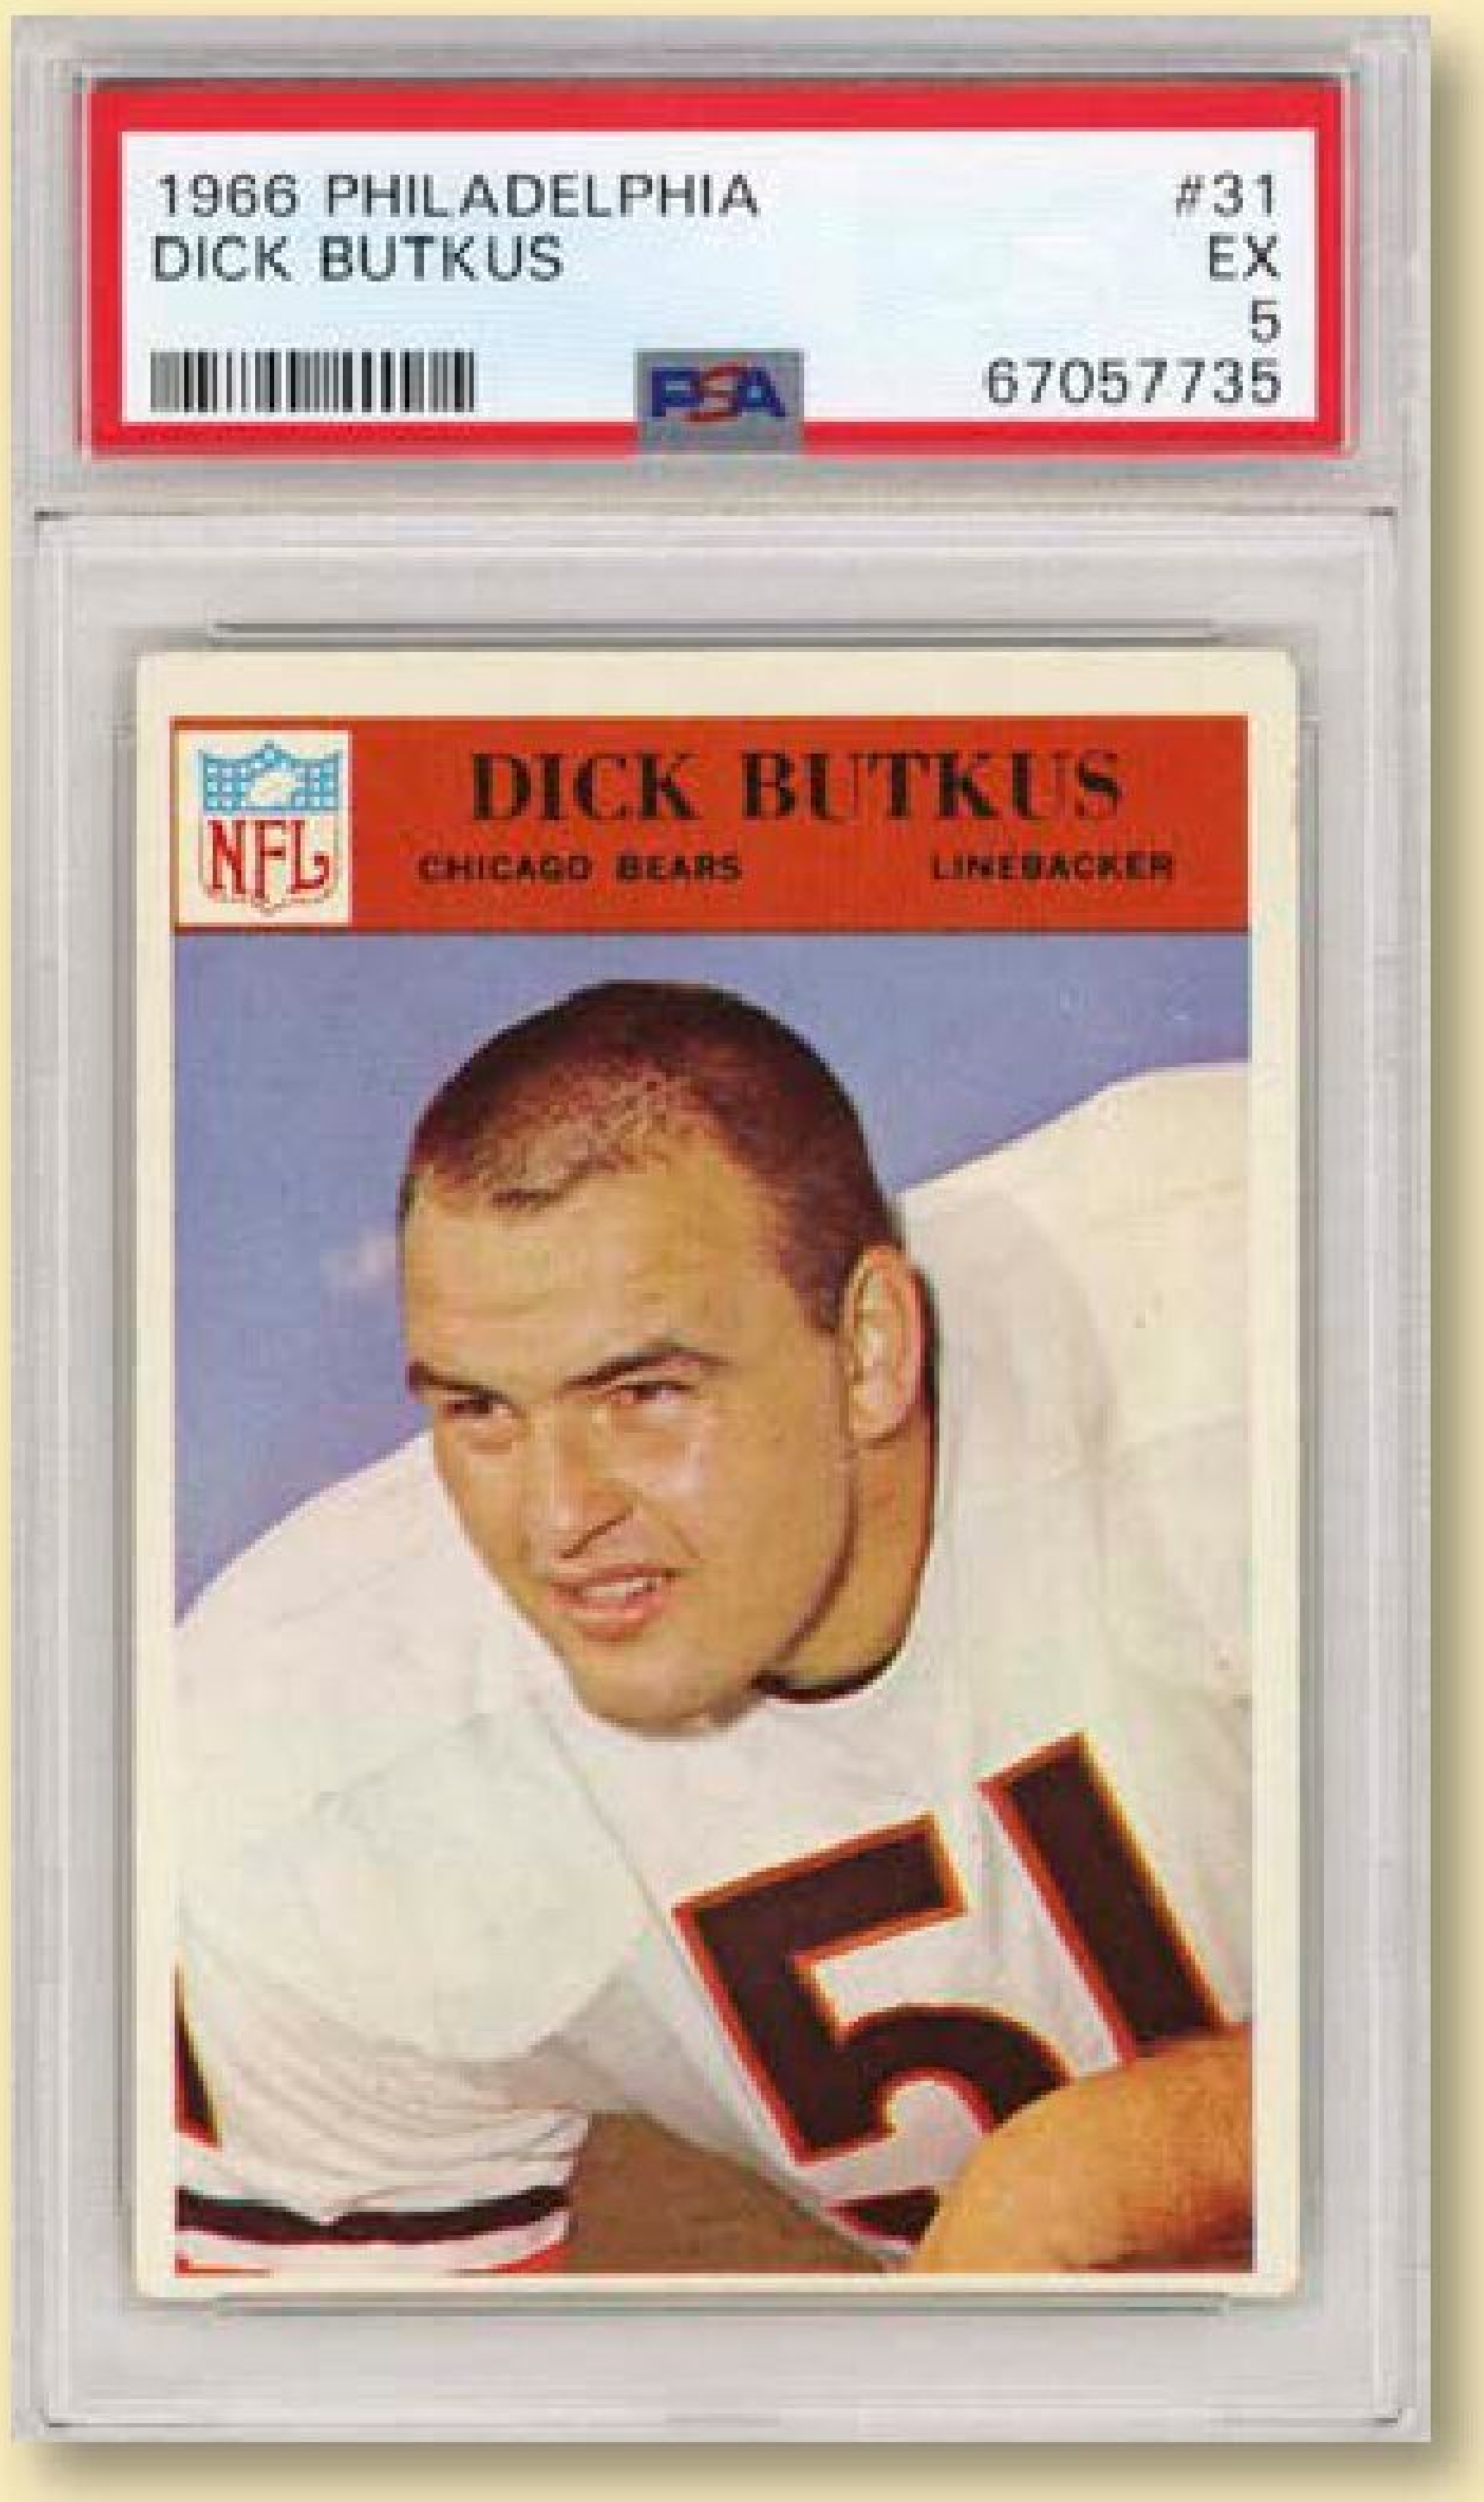
Market Cap $1,050	$4,950	$16,000	$62,400	$95,600	$169,950	$331,500	$560,000	N/A	N/A

Best Value: PSA 5

Nearly 50 years after his final NFL season, Dick Butkus is still regarded by many fans as the greatest defensive player of all time. He was an eight-time Pro Bowler, a member of two NFL All-Decade teams and a member of the NFL All-Time Team. His 1966 Rookie Card is one of the most valuable RCs of the '60s. PSA values jump $100 from PSA 3 to 4 to 5. A PSA 5 being just $200 more than a PSA 3 makes it a solid value across the graded spectrum. The jump to a PSA 6 is a 38 percent increase.



Best Investment: PSA 7

While a PSA 6 is still reasonable at $550, the PSA 7 is nearly three times that value. Still, at $1,500 and 221 quantities, it might be the best investment for the future. There are just 160 PSA 8s and seven PSA 9s. That's not much to hunt down, so most of the action for higher grades should focus on the Near Mint 7.

1966 Philadelphia #38 Gale Sayers RC

PSA Grade	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	Total
Quantity	32	98	192	411	407	555	497	351	35	0	2584

Best Value: PSA 6

Gale Sayers was ahead of his time as a do-it-all offensive weapon with a short career. But he made such a big impact that collectors still flock to his cards. His 1966 Philadelphia RC is one of the top Rookie Cards of the 1960s. A PSA 4 is a good value at $250, but for just $150 more you can get a PSA 6. There are 555 entries in the PSA pop report, so these aren't hard to find. Going from a 6 to a 7 is a huge increase at three times the value, so the PSA 6 is a great sweet spot for collectors looking for the best deal at a good condition.

Best Investment: PSA 6

It's rare when the best value at a specific grade is also the best investment for the future, but for this RC, the PSA 6 nails both. While a PSA Near Mint 7 is not outrageous at $1,200, the PSA 6 has so much more room to grow. A PSA 8 at $2,500 is the top choice right now among high grades, with a PSA 9 hardly ever coming up for sale. Opportunistic investors should consider the 6.

1971 Topps #156 Terry Bradshaw RC

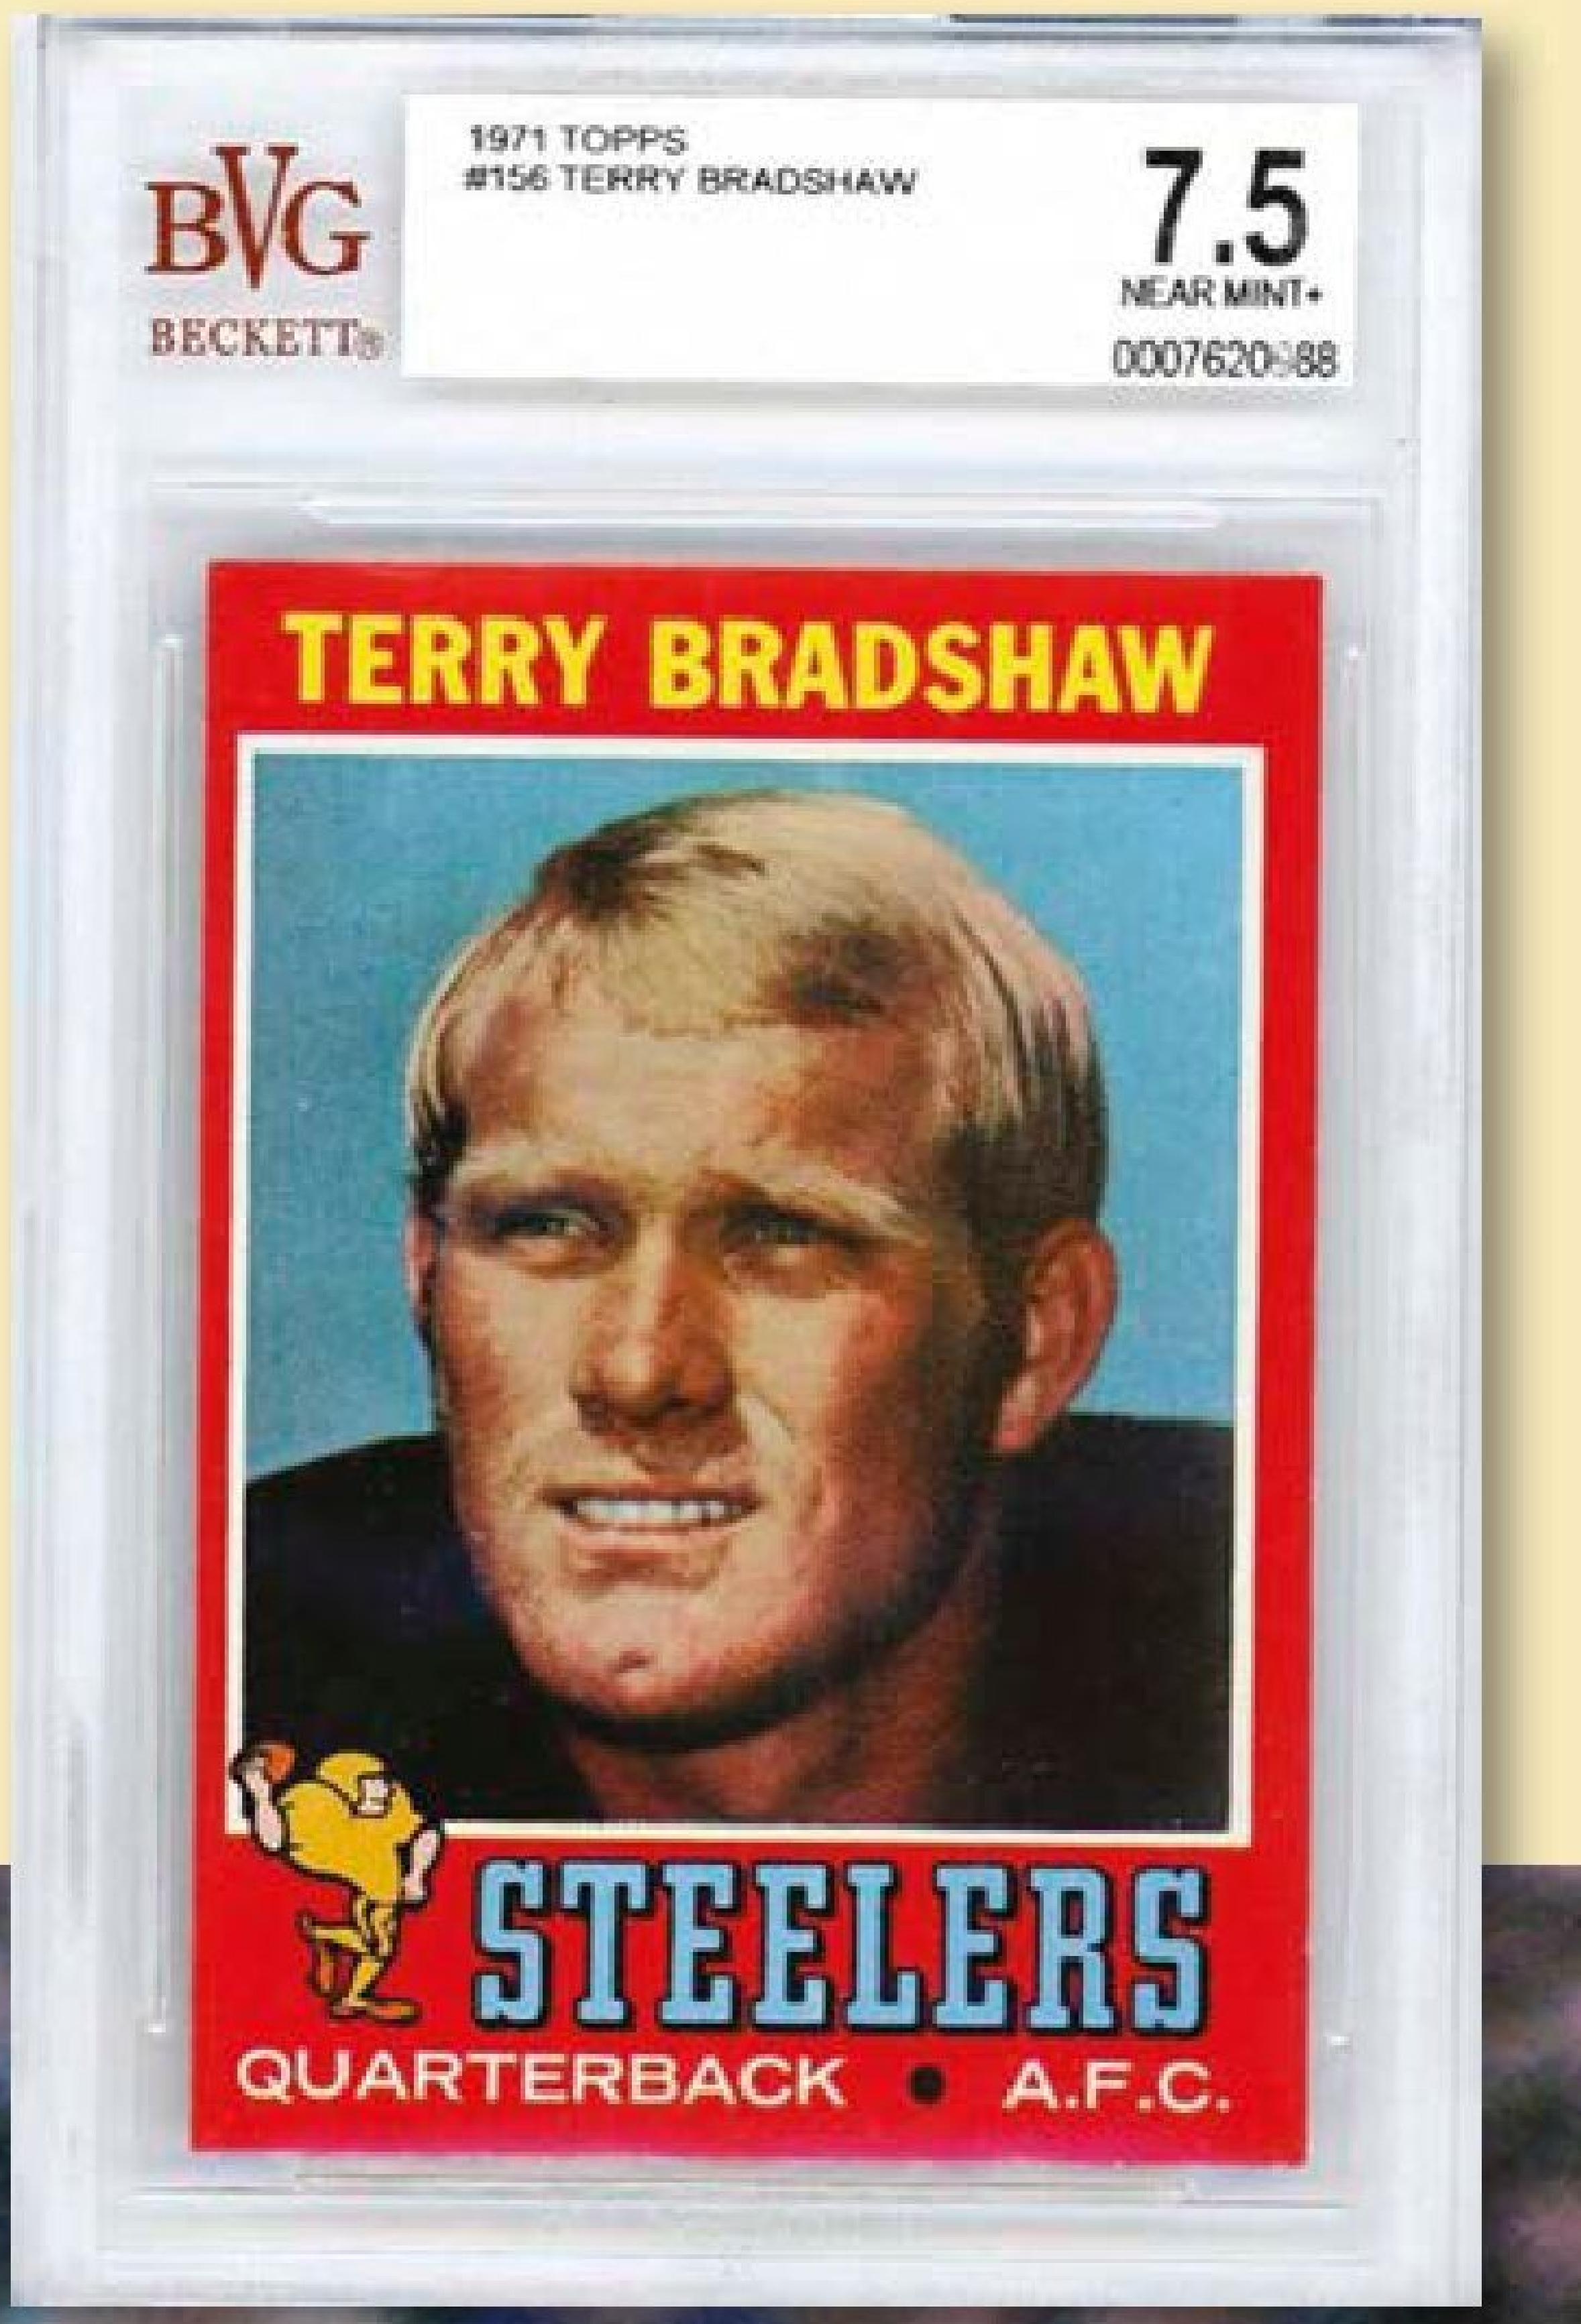
Best Value: BVG 5-5.5

Terry Bradshaw quarterbacked the Steelers to dynasty status in the 1970s. His 1971 Rookie Card has more than 1,300 entries in the BGS pop report. It's affordible for more collectors until it gets to the Near Mint-Mint 8 grade or above. The BVG 4 and 4.5 grades bring $175, but for just $50 more, you can snag a 5 or 5.5 grade. This is also the most plentiful BVG grade available on the market. Moving to a 6 or 6.5 is a 51 percent increase to $340. That's not a bad deal, but still not as good of a value as $225 for a 5-5.5.



Best Investment: BVG 7-7.5

There are just 216 quantities at BVG 7 and 7.5 grades, which is limited but not too hard to find. Expect to pay about $650, which is a deal compared to $1,700 for grades 8 and 8.5. A BGV Mint 9 is nearly impossible for find with just seven entries. So, the prime room for growth is likely in the BVG 7 to 7.5 grades.

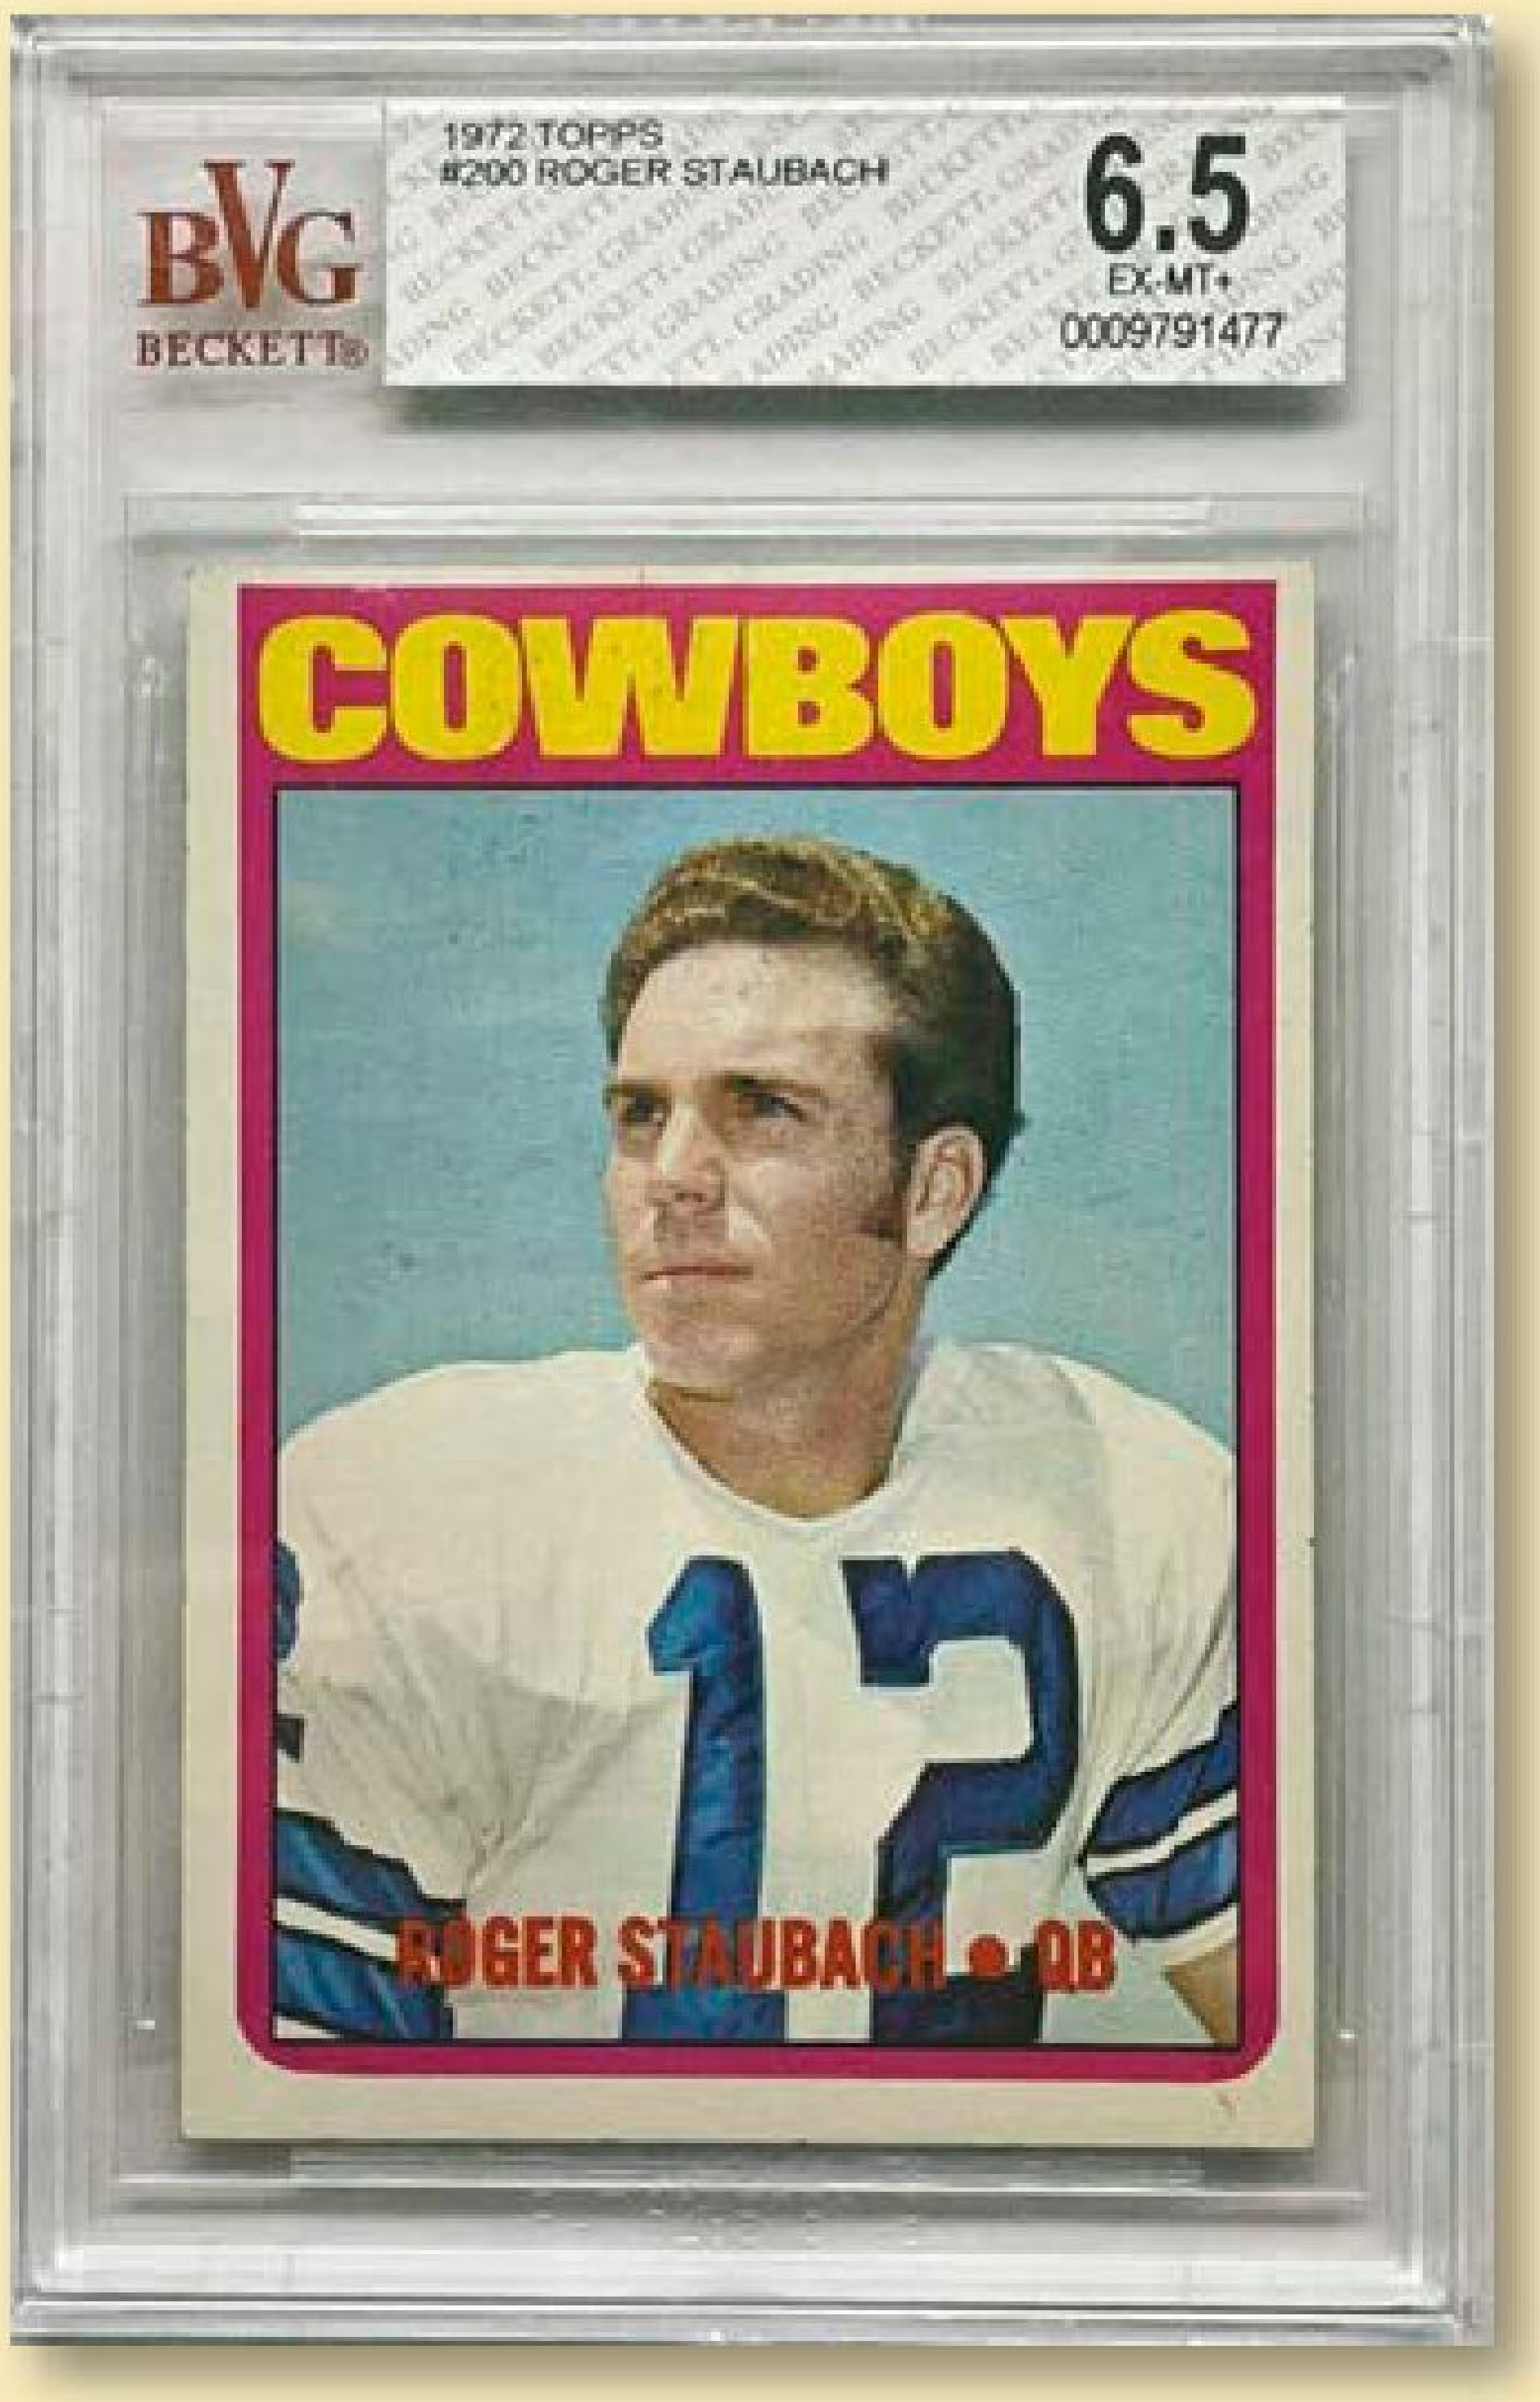
Best Value: BVG 6-6.5

The man nicknamed Captain America led Dallas to earn the moniker "America's Team" through the 1970s. Roger Staubach's Rookie Card is the key card in the famed and extra-large 1972 Topps set with three series of releases. Lower BVG grades can be found for no more than $100, which are great deals for a Hall of Famer with his impact. A BVG 6 or 6.5 is about $75 more than a 5 or 5.5, and you will pay roughly $175 more if you want a BVG 7 or 7.5. Centering tends to be the biggest issue with this card, and a 6 or 6.5 tends to be well enough for most collectors since BVG requires centering to be no worse than 70/30.



Best Investment: BVG 7-7.5

At $400, this grade is a good value but also the sweet spot for those looking for a longer-term investment. The 8 or 8.5 grades rise to around $1,000, which is still affordable but not nearly as good of an option as the 7 or 7.5.

1976 Topps #148 Walter Payton RC

BVG Grade	1.0-1.5	2.0-2.5	3.0-3.5	4.0-4.5	5.0-5.5	6.0-6.5	7-7.5	8	8.5	9	9.5	10	Total

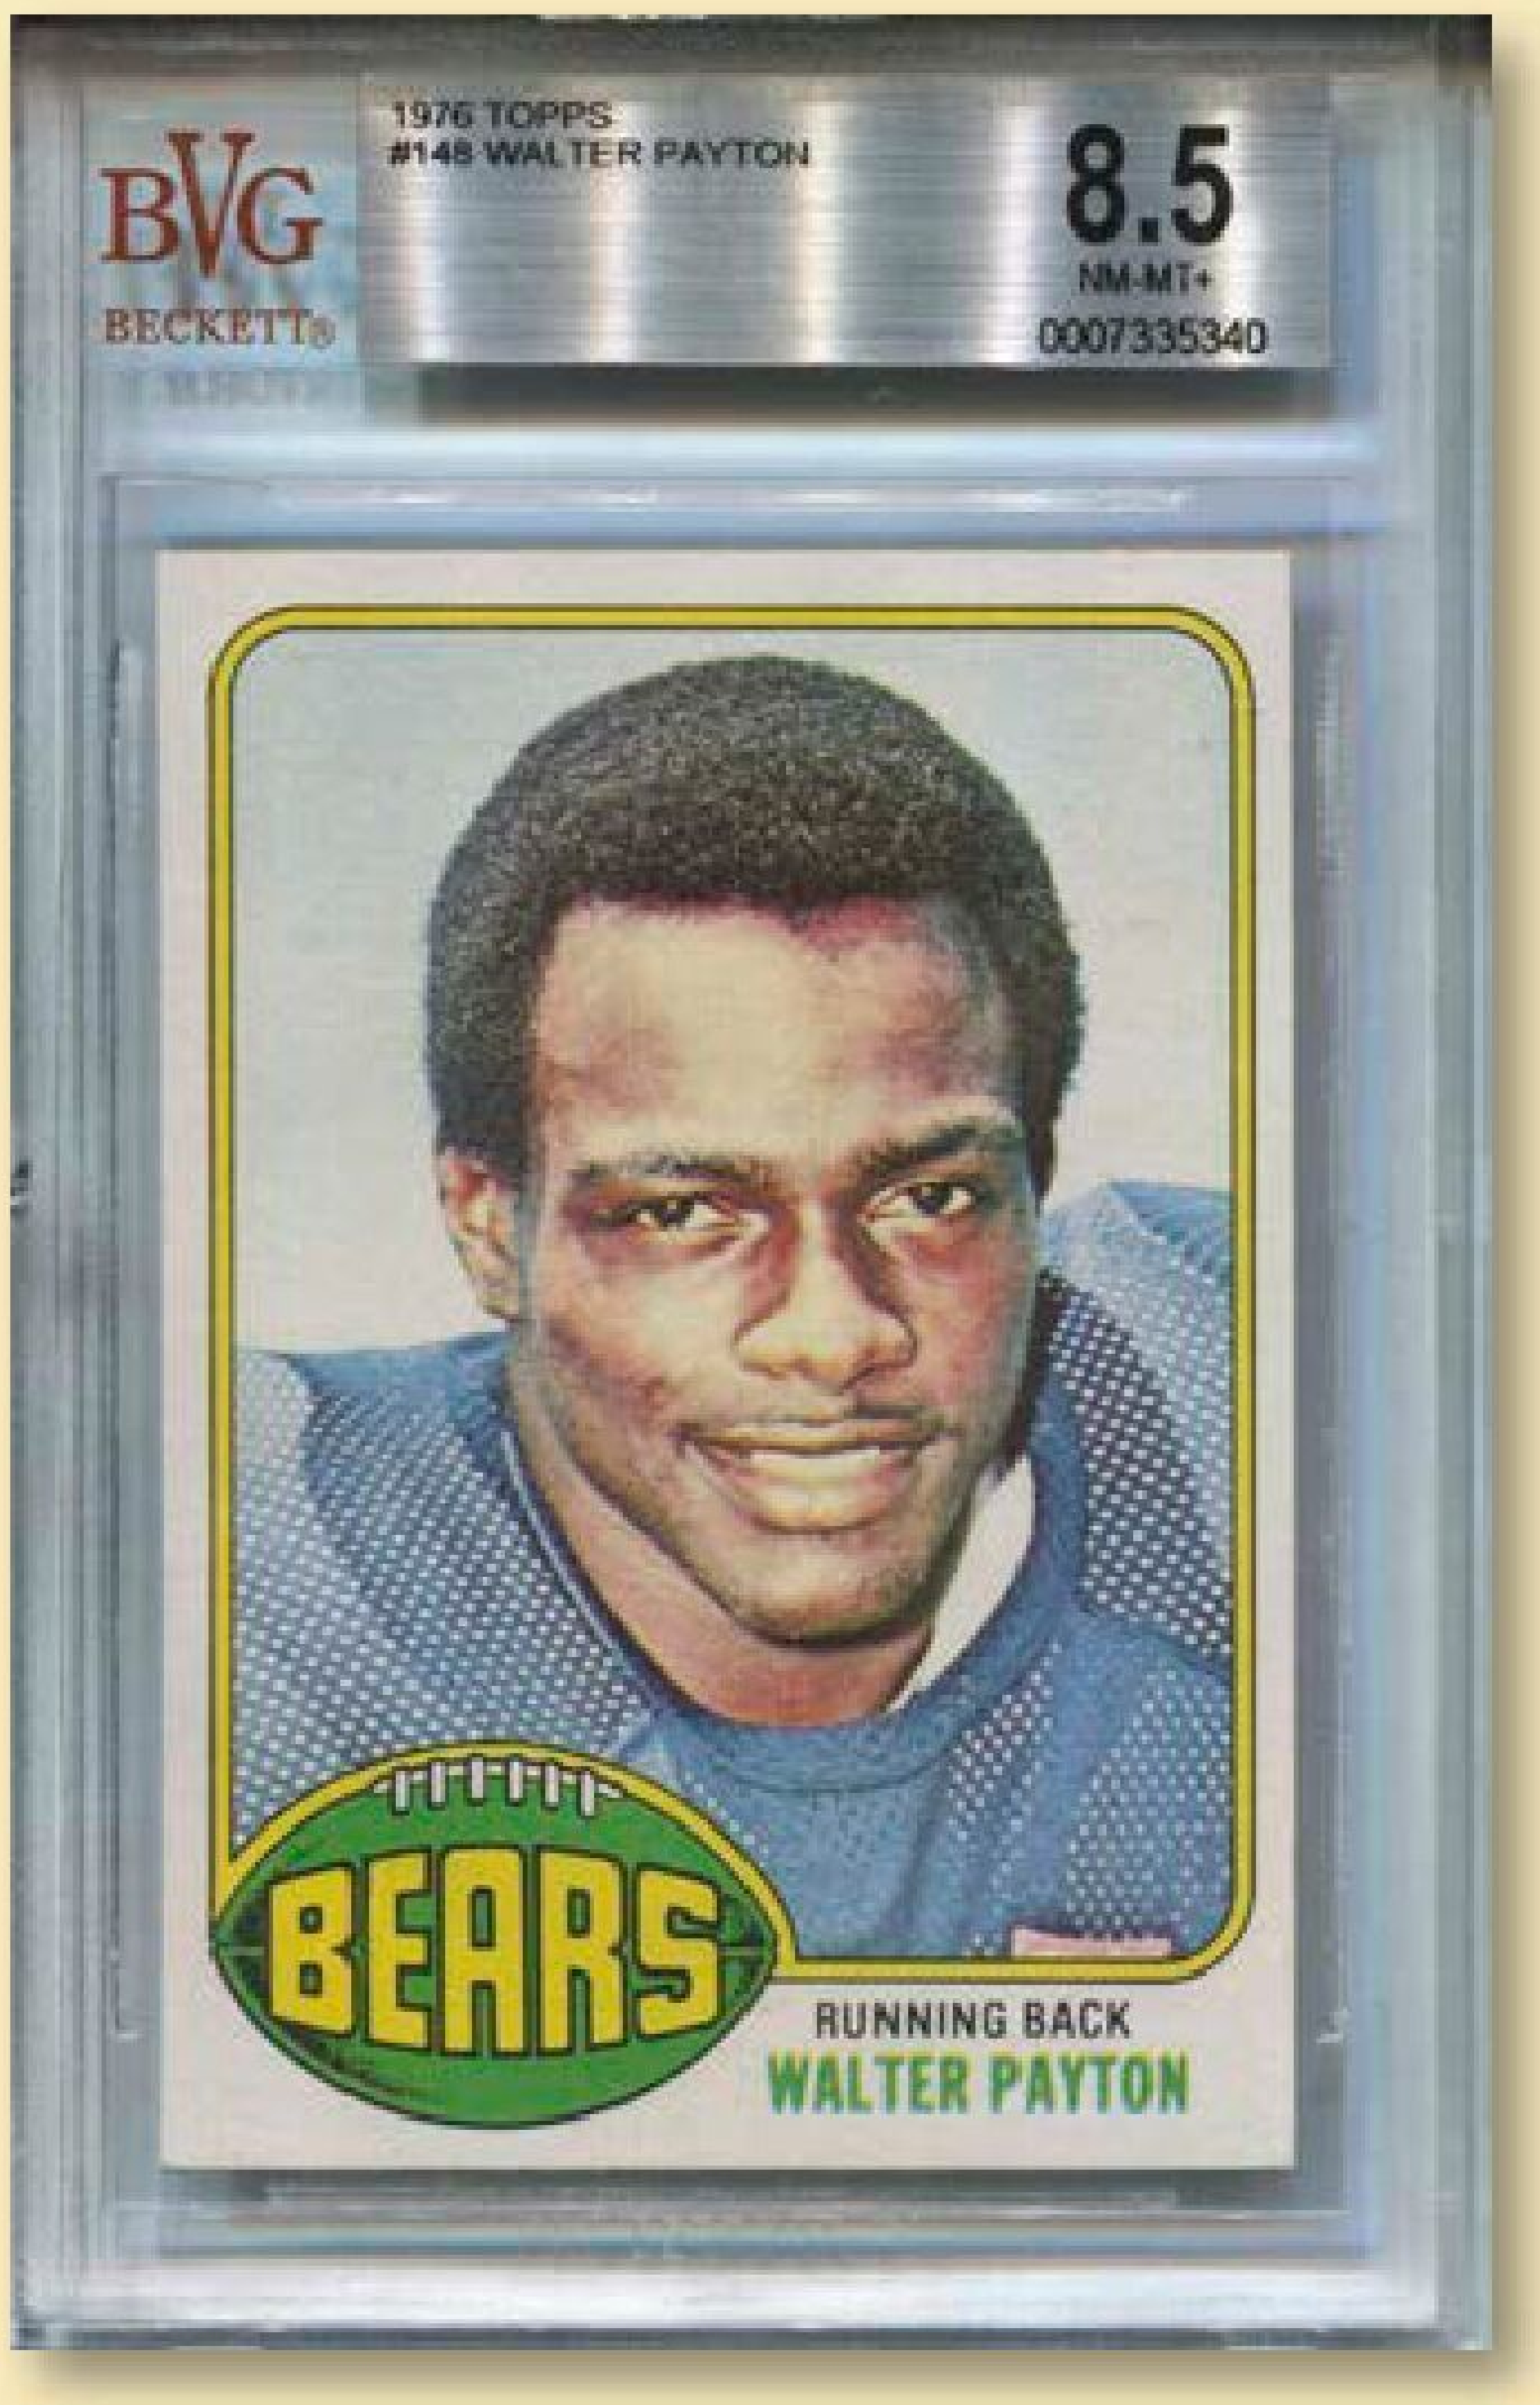
Market Cap	$500	$7,300	$22,950	$75,200	$177,100	$353,625	$613,000	$508,000	$483,600	$385,000	N/A	N/A

Best Value: BVG 7-7.5

The most valuable football card of the 1970s has a lot of graded options with more than 4,500 entries in the Beckett Grading pop report. Walter Payton was as dominant as any running back in history, and his 1976 Topps RC is instantly recognizable with his smiling profile picture. A BVG 6 or 6.5 can be had for $375, but for just $125 more, you can snag a 7 or 7.5. These grades account for 27 percent of all BVG quantities and create a total market cap of $613,000. You have to pay 60 percent more to snag a BVG 8.



Best Investment: BVG 8.5

BVG half-point grades typically don't bring significantly more value until they get into the Near Mint 7 and above range. An 8.5 has the silver slab label, and Payton's can bring around $1,300, which is roughly $500 more than a BVG 8, but still two and a half times less than a Mint 9. That puts the 8.5 grade in an interesting category for investment considerations.

GREAT SHOT

GETTY IMAGES

FEARSOME FOURSOME

Here's an all-star lineup assembled a couple years before the All-Star Game had even been conceived. This shot was taken on Opening Day 1928 in Shibe Park, on what was likely a crisp April day. Someone was smart enough to pose these four Hall of Famers together before the game. From left, Lou Gehrig, Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth.

The Yankees won the game that afternoon, with Ruth legging out a triple (the first of his eight that season) and Gehrig driving in two with two hits. For Philadelphia, Cobb – batting second – was 1-for-3 and walked twice while Speaker was held hitless. – Mike Payne

THE ORIGINAL HAMMERIN' HANK

More than a decade before Henry Aaron's arrival, Hank Greenberg was among the game's greatest sluggers. So why doesn't he have more cards from his playing days?

BY ANSON WHALEY

Hank Greenberg is one of the most prolific home run hitters of the 1930s and 1940s. While his 331 career long balls paled in comparison to the likes of Babe Ruth - and even contemporaries such as Jimmie Foxx, Lou Gehrig, and Mel Ott - he finished his career in 1947 with the fifth-most home runs by any player in the game's history.

As time went on, the home run totals for the Detroit Tigers legend became less impressive. By the 1960s, he had fallen out of the top 10 in career home runs. Today, he is outside of the top 100, being passed up by the likes of Moises Alou, Chili Davis, Joe Adcock, and a slew of otherwise fine players that would not remotely be considered his equal by any reasonable standard.

Part of the reason for his fall down the statistical ladder, of course, is that the game has changed drastically since Greenberg's exit from the sport in '47, with home runs being hit at a much greater pace. Another reason is because, like many players, he lost several years of his career due to World War II.

Greenberg initially reported to the U.S. Army in May of 1941. Despite being discharged in early December of that year, he voluntarily re-enlisted after the attack on Pearl Harbor, remaining in service until the summer of 1945. In all, the war cost Greenberg nearly 4 ½ years of his baseball career – a significant amount of his prime.

His career totals, thus, are not indicative of the player he was. But the true measure of a player comes in comparing how he performed in his era and, in that instance, Greenberg was one of the greatest players of his generation.

Four times he led the league in home runs, including clubbing a Ruthian 58 in 1938. He won two Most Valuable Player awards and led the league in numerous other categories over his career, including RBI, doubles, runs, walks, slugging percentage, OPS, and total bases. Without the missing time, Greenberg could have reasonably reached the prestigious 500 home run mark.

When it comes to cards, Greenberg has surprisingly few of them given his importance to the game. Roughly, he has only about 40 baseball cards from his playing days, though he is spotted on several non-traditional issues, such as American Card Catalog-listed premiums, supplements, and oddball items like the 1938 Our National Game pins. It's a surprisingly small number of true baseball cards for such a prominent player, but a couple of factors exist.

For starters, while Greenberg's career spanned 18 calendar years, he spent only parts of 13 seasons in the majors. One of those seasons was 1930 when he recorded only a single at-bat and a second was 1941 when he only spent the first month with the club before heading into military service. When you boil everything down, what you're left with is essentially a career lasting only a little more than a decade.

1938 Goudey Heads Up #253

The biggest factor for the lack of Greenberg cards, however, is the sheer lack of cards being produced during much of his playing days. While gum cards were very popular in the early 1930s, few were being produced by the latter part of the decade. Once the U.S. jumped into World War II with the Pearl Harbor attack, baseball cards were practically halted until a 1948 revival – just after Greenberg had retired after a final 1947 season with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The good news is that there are still some very intriguing card of the two-time MVP award winner.

EARLY RELEASES

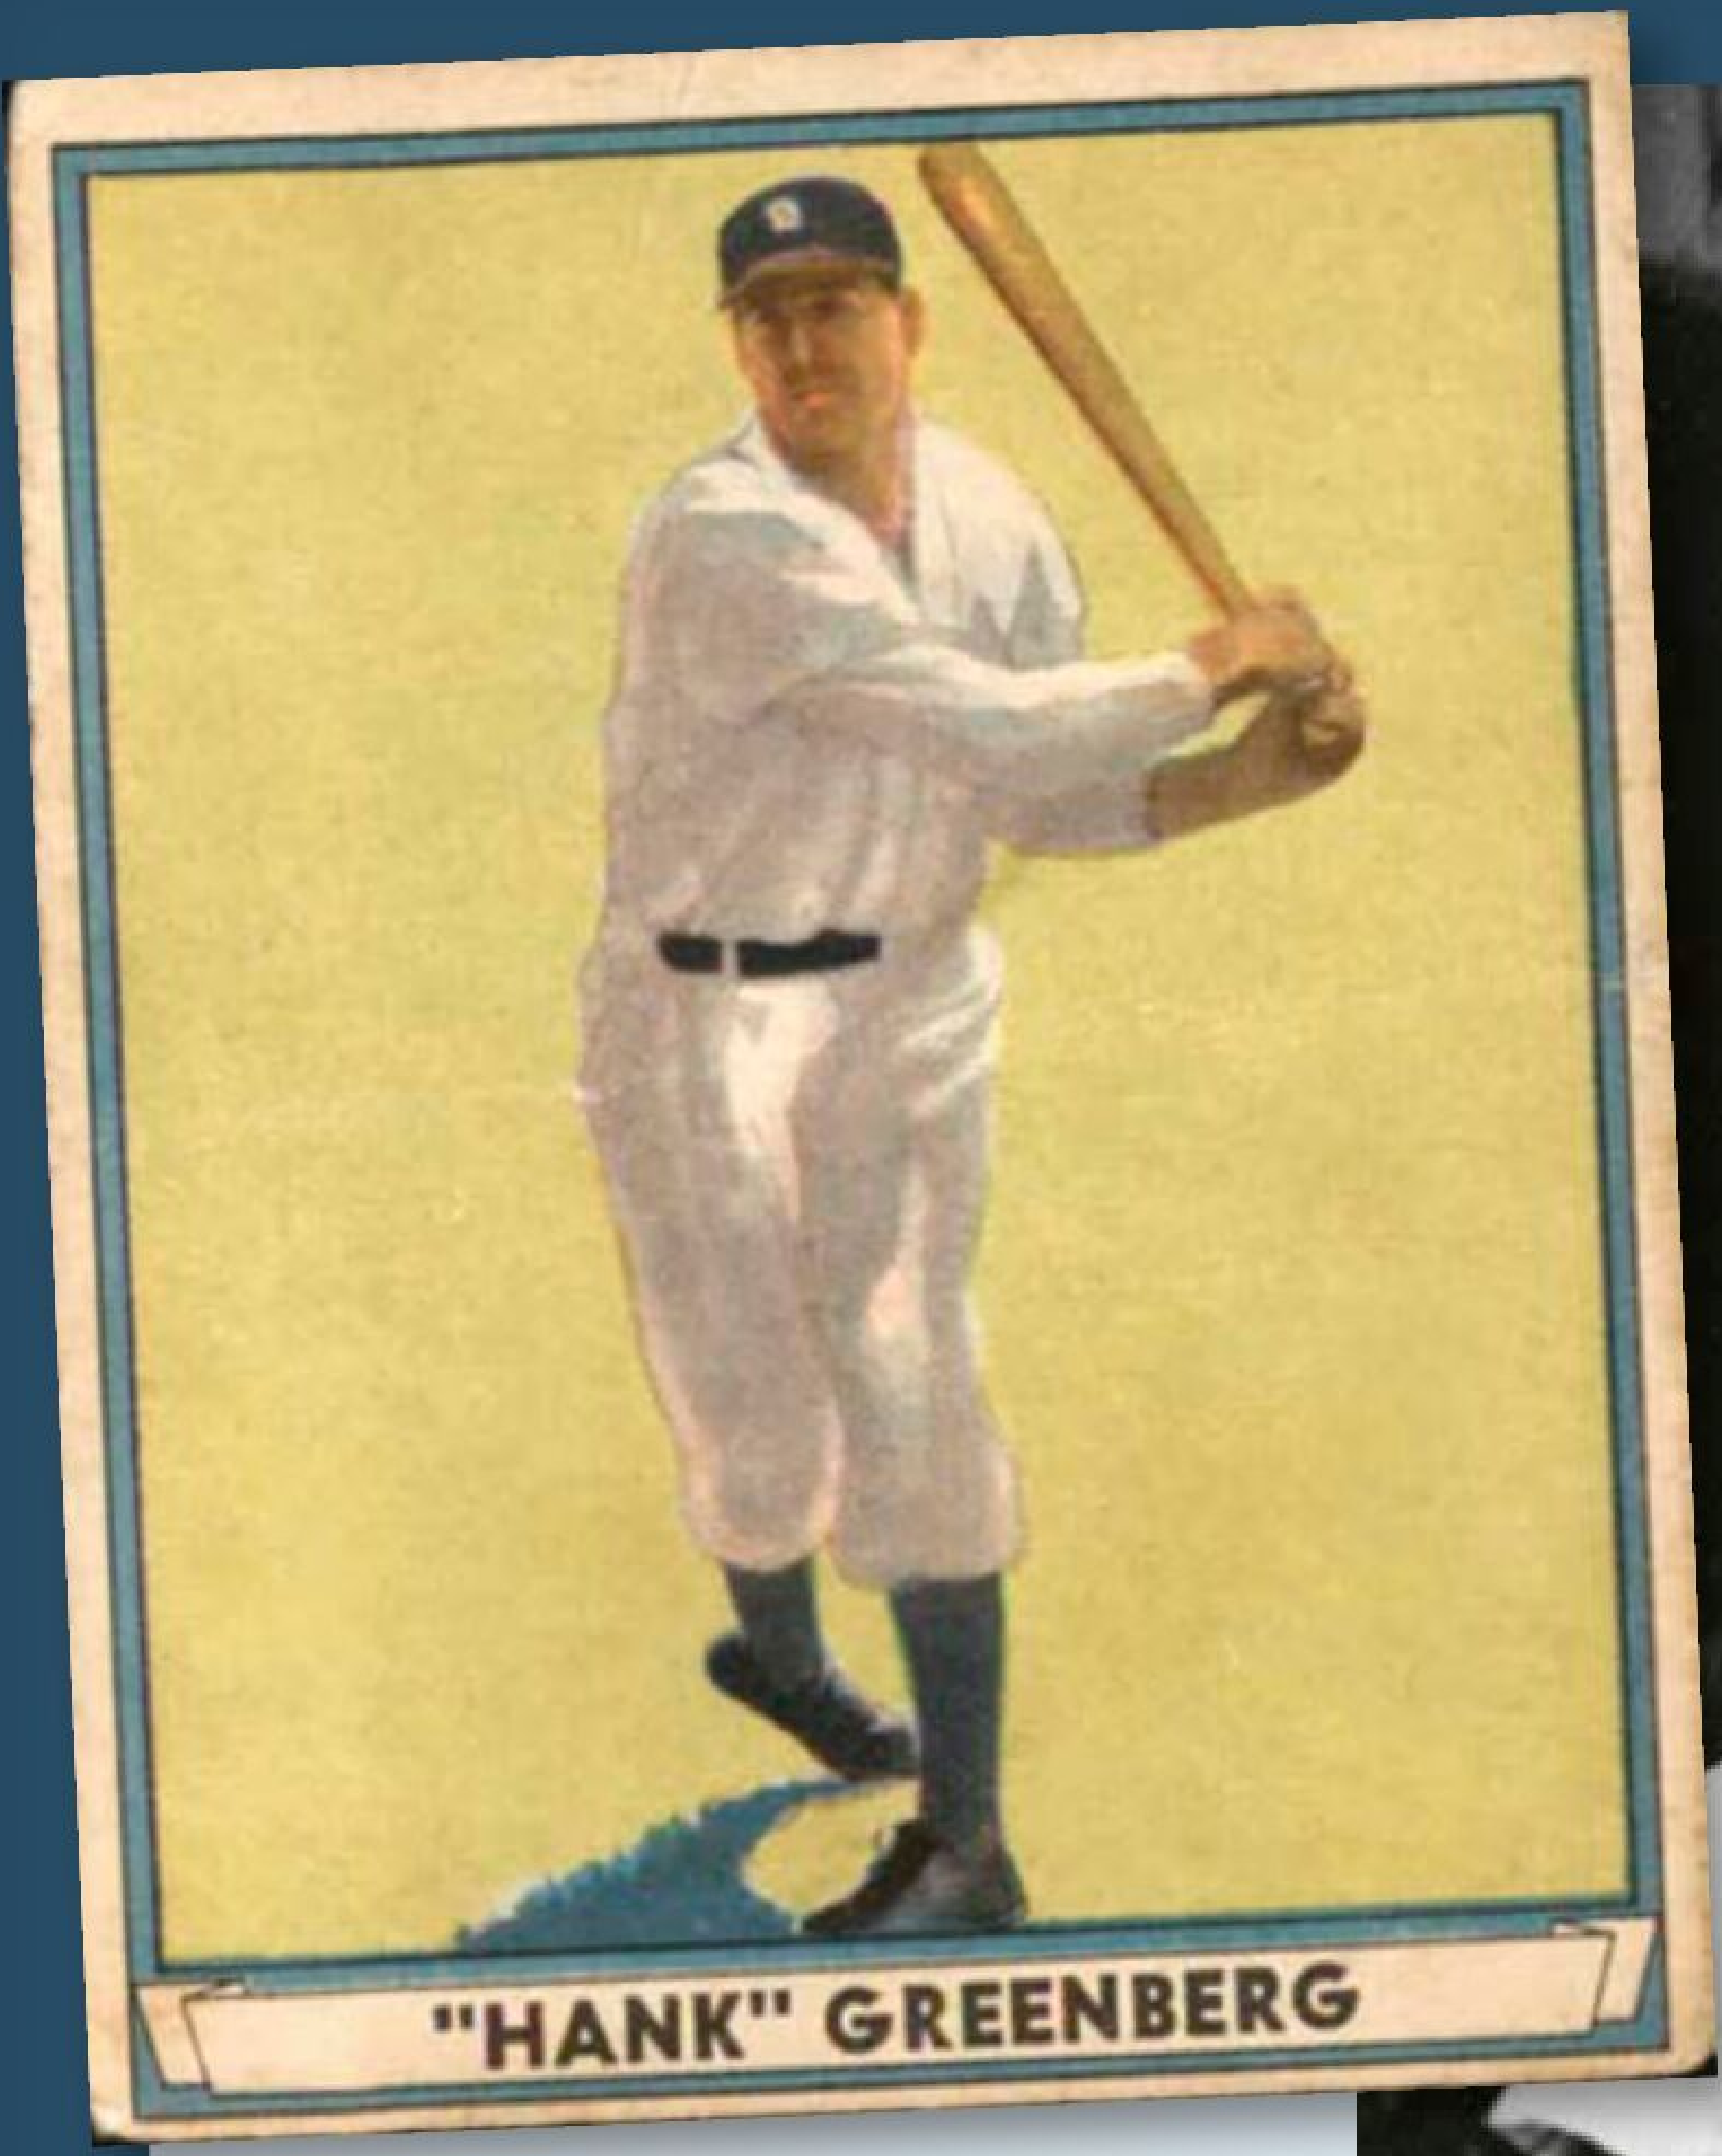
While Greenberg has some tougher issues that are viewed as rookies, including the rarely-seen 1934 Annis Furs card and a card in the quirky Batter Up set (believed to have been issued from 1934-36), his most accepted rookie card is his 1934 Goudey. Coincidentally, it is also his easiest rookie issue to find, though that has not stopped prices from soaring in recent years. These days, decent low-grade examples typically start in the $500-$700 range. Even 'slightly better but still modest' examples top the $2,000 mark fairly easily.

Greenberg's Diamond Stars cards from the 1934-36 National Chicle set are among his most interesting. They are commonly called rookie cards by collectors, though that is not really the case. While the first Diamond Stars cards were, in fact, produced in 1934, Greenberg's cards were not printed until 1935, coming a full season after the initial Goudey release. Still, these are attractive, early cards of the superstar.

An additional oddity with the Diamond Stars issue is that some examples have a typo. Some of the Greenberg cards have his name misspelled as 'Greenburg' while others have the proper spelling. The error card is the tougher of the two variations with prices for those generally a bit higher than those of the corrected version. Low-grade cards with the corrected spelling often begin in the $350-$450 range.

While Greenberg's rare, desirable 1936 World Wide Gum Canadian card is expensive (prices can easily top $1,000) and difficult to find, his 1930s Goudey cards some present good opportunities for collectors.

There are the 1935 Goudey cards, which are perhaps Greenberg's earliest multi-player cards. In that '4 in 1' set, he is pictured on a card with other Tigers players, Pete Fox, Gee Walker, and Schoolboy Rowe. Cards featuring more than one subject often sell for less than single-player cards and that's generally the case here. While those aforementioned Diamond Stars cards start at much higher amounts, Greenberg's 1935 Goudey cards in low-grade condition can sometimes be had for less than half the price. The same can be said for the slugger's 1936 and 1938 Goudey cards. While not multi-player cards, his examples in those sets start at roughly $200-$250.



1941 Play Ball

PLAY BALL

In terms of other popular Greenberg staples, those would include his cards in the Play Ball sets. Greenberg is one of the players that found his way into all of the Play Ball sets distributed in 1939, 1940, and 1941. Not surprisingly, he is one of the bigger stars found in all three issues. However, it is notable that he is dwarfed by bigger cards in all three sets.

In 1939, the Play Ball set included the rookie card of Ted Williams, as well as an early card of Joe DiMaggio. Similarly, his cards are not as valuable some in the 1940 series, which includes both Williams and DiMaggio, as well as retired legends, such as Shoeless Joe Jackson. In the shortened 1941 issue, his card is again a second fiddle to Williams and a rarer high-number DiMaggio card. Still, these remain some of the more popular Greenberg cards with values beginning around $100 for decent low-grade examples of each.

Beyond Play Ball, Greenberg also made his way into the well-known Double Play series from 1941, where he surfaces on two cards. True to the name, these are also multi-player cards, which aid in keeping prices down. Greenberg's low-grade cards in this set can often be found for less than $100.

After 1941 when card production was slowing down, there are few opportunities for contemporary, playing-day Greenberg cards. One exception to that is his card in the relatively ugly 1943 M.P. & Co. series, with those cards starting under $100. A 'last frontier' of sorts is Greenberg's appearance in the tough 1946-47 Propoagandas Montiel set produced out of Cuba. While it is one of his final cards (which often makes for lower-valued issues), the rarity of this card can sometimes drive prices higher.

Collectors seeking bigger bargains on Greenberg issues will do well by considering some of his non-traditional cards.

In terms of popular, inexpensive issues, chief among those are his 1935 Goudey Wide Pen (Type 1) and 1936 National Chicle Fine Pen premiums. Those typically start around $100 each.

Collectors should know that these are not your typical baseball cards. Really, they are slightly larger premium photographs issued by Goudey and National Chicle printed on a thinner paper stock. But both issues have American Card Catalog designations and are still heavily pursued by collectors. Greenberg is also spotted in several other Goudey and National Chicle premiums throughout the 1930s for collectors really anxious to sink their teeth into his issues. A highlight there is his rare second-year 1935 Goudey premium, which is a difficult find.

Greenberg's best bargain, however, might be found in the 1939-46 Salutations Exhibit set with his card featuring the 'Truly Yours' greeting. That card is an easier find than his 'Very Truly Yours' variant with a different, front-facing pose, and is a relatively easy buy with prices starting around $50 or less. These postcard-sized cards make excellent additions for minimal investment.

Poor timing with much of Greenberg's career occurring during a baseball card drought means that he didn't have as many cards as he deserved. Greenberg is also conspicuously absent in several mainstream sets, such as the onslaught of 1933 issues or Goudey's 1941 release, where his presence would have been welcome. Still, he has a number of fascinating cards for the taking and remains a good alternative for collectors seeking stars from the pre-war era.

In the 1977 Michigan Class A High School Basketball state championship game, Earvin Johnson – he was still, mostly, Earvin then – poured in 34 points as his Lansing Everett team came from behind in the game's final five minutes to win the state championship. It would be Johnson's final high school game. He would, of course, stay local and play for Michigan State, leading them to an NCAA championship.

This ticket to Johnson's final prep game was a part of Heritage Auctions' 2022 Nov. 17-19 Fall Sports Catalog Auction. The PSA VG 3 designation is at the top of the population report for tickets from this historic game. The ticket sold for $3,000.

In this era of pack shredding and case ripping, it seems impossible that 40 years ago NBA trading cards were dead. Literally. As in nobody producing anything.

Topps released its tri-perforated curiosity in 1980-81, and followed that with a standard release in 1981-82. But Topps saw basketball cards as a losing proposition. Bad business. Few seemed to care.

So, they didn't renew.

Thus, as the 1982-83 season tipped off, there was no official NBA licensed basketball card set.

Robert Levin saw the mistake – saw a market powered by the raging Celtics-Lakers rivalry, but not one being served at the time. He wanted in.

Levin petitioned the NBA to secure a league license and agreed upon minimum guarantees, with the license running from 1983 through 1986. "That era of players just entering their primes was significant," says Steve Taft, a longtime recognized expert on all Star Company-related basketball issues who has also consulted with NBA investigators on Star matters. "Magic and Bird . . . Wilkins, Drexler, Barkley, Isiah Thomas. Those three years [of Star] offered a lot of the key players, including Jordan."

The presence of Jordan in Star sets beginning in 1984-85 is significant because it offered the first licensed trading card look at the kid who was taking the league by storm. As Jordan became a brand ("Like Mike," "It must be the shoes," etc.) the Jordan #101 card became arguably the most important basketball card in history, if nothing else because it was his first. But it also became one of his most counterfeited cards, although those have been fairly easy to spot as the original plates were never used to fire the presses back up for Jordan #101.

"While fears persist about #101 Jordan counterfeits, thus far they tend to be pretty easy to spot," Taft says. "Concern that a new, higher quality counterfeit will eventually appear is something to consider. Of course, that's true for all significant cards.

"While these issues should be of concern, in total it's a fair estimate to suggest there's a greater quantity of 1986 Fleer counterfeits than these Star counterfeits," Taft adds. "And with a little study time, and/or reliance on BGS and PSA grading, you can get to a 99.99% assurance of getting it right."

The name Star Company in basketball card history has been both cheered and jeered. The brand was a revelation at its introduction, yet the brand name was destroyed by the man who created it – Robert S. Levin – who printed fake Star cards for sale on Shop at Home in 1997 . . . although Star's NBA license had expired after the company's 1986 releases.

The NBA didn't find it amusing that Levin and his company were printing cards in 1997 and dating them in the mid-1980s to appear as if they were lost, but now "found." Of course, it didn't work. And the world was introduced to the term "Shop at Home scandal."

It was officially the end for Levin's little basketball card empire. The NBA sued both Star Co. and Shop at Home.

If Star Company Basketball Cards got the Master Class treatment, Taft would be the professor. Come to think of it, he's already taught the course to others, including BGS which has been grading Star cards since December 2008. He's gained some of his knowledge through handling the cards himself, as well as comparing notes with fellow Star experts Todd Crosner and Bill Schonsheck.

Taft's message to collectors is simple: There are far more good, authentic Star Basketball cards than bad. Far more. Misinformation paralyzed the market for Star, but led by Jordan, Magic and Bird and a current market hungry for that era of basketball, the cards are back on the radars of collectors who are viewing them like never before.

STEVE TAFT'S TOP 10 KEY STAR CO. CARDS

1. 1984-85 Star #101 Michael Jordan - Why? Just because . . .
2. 1985 Star Slam Dunk Supers #1 Checklist/ Group Photo - Jordan, Drexler, Dr. J., Wilkins all on the same card. Huge demand for this card.
3. 1984 Celtics Champs #11 Bird / Magic - Two legends locked up, fighting for rebounding position. Every Magic collector wants this one, every Bird collector wants it, too. Huge demand.
4. 1985-86 Lakers Champs #18 Ronald Reagan - Would this be the RC of a very popular president? Why can this card be found for $10-$25? One of the most undervalued cards of the last 50 years in my opinion.
5. 1984-85 Court Kings 5x7 #26 Michael Jordan - A pretty tough card to get in high grade, and one of the best on-card photos.
6. 1986 Best of the OLD Original Factory Sealed Bag - Probably the lowest production of any bagged set.
7. 1984 Arena Bucks #6 Bob Lanier - While a fair amount did get out to the hobby, this card was pulled due to Lanier's retirement. Not a super rare card, but a decent level of scarcity.
8. 1985 Crunch 'n' Munch Original Factory Sealed Set - This has always been one of the tougher bags to acquire.
9. 1983-84 Dallas Mavericks Original Factory Sealed Bagged Set - Also considered one of the tougher sets to acquire in the original bag. There are some re-bags.
10. Tie between first cards of Barkley, Wilkins, Stockton, Olajuwon, Drexler, Thomas.

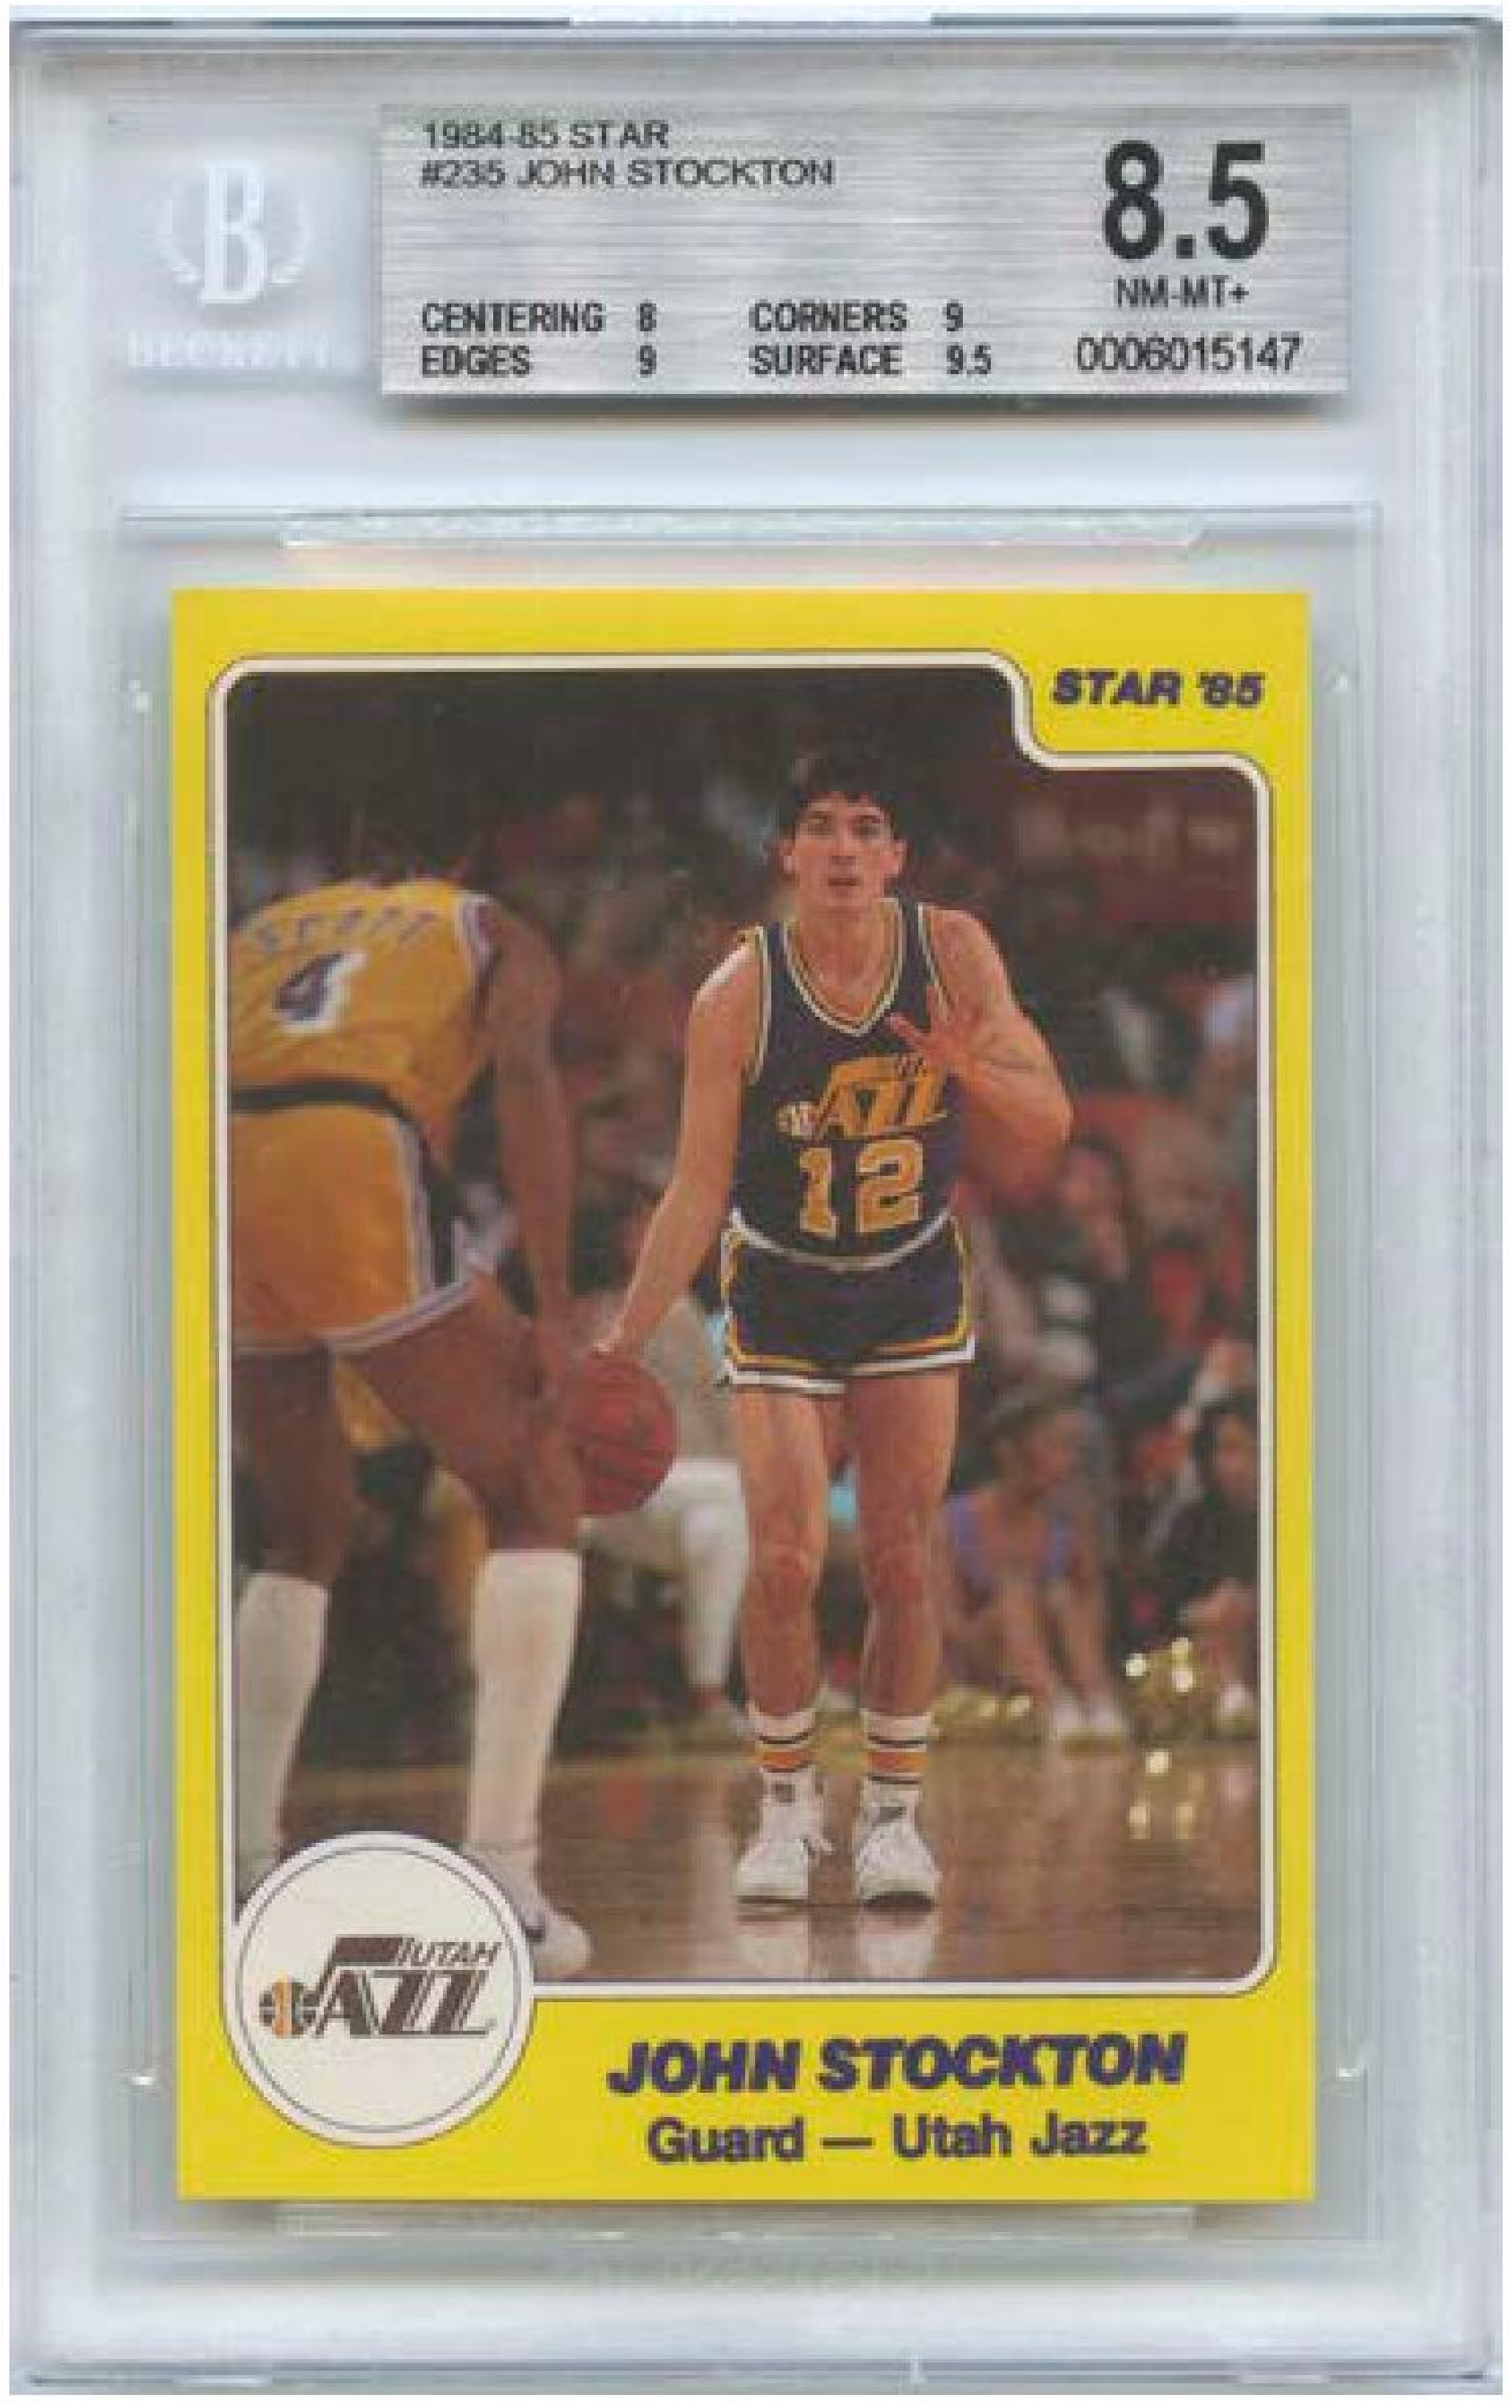
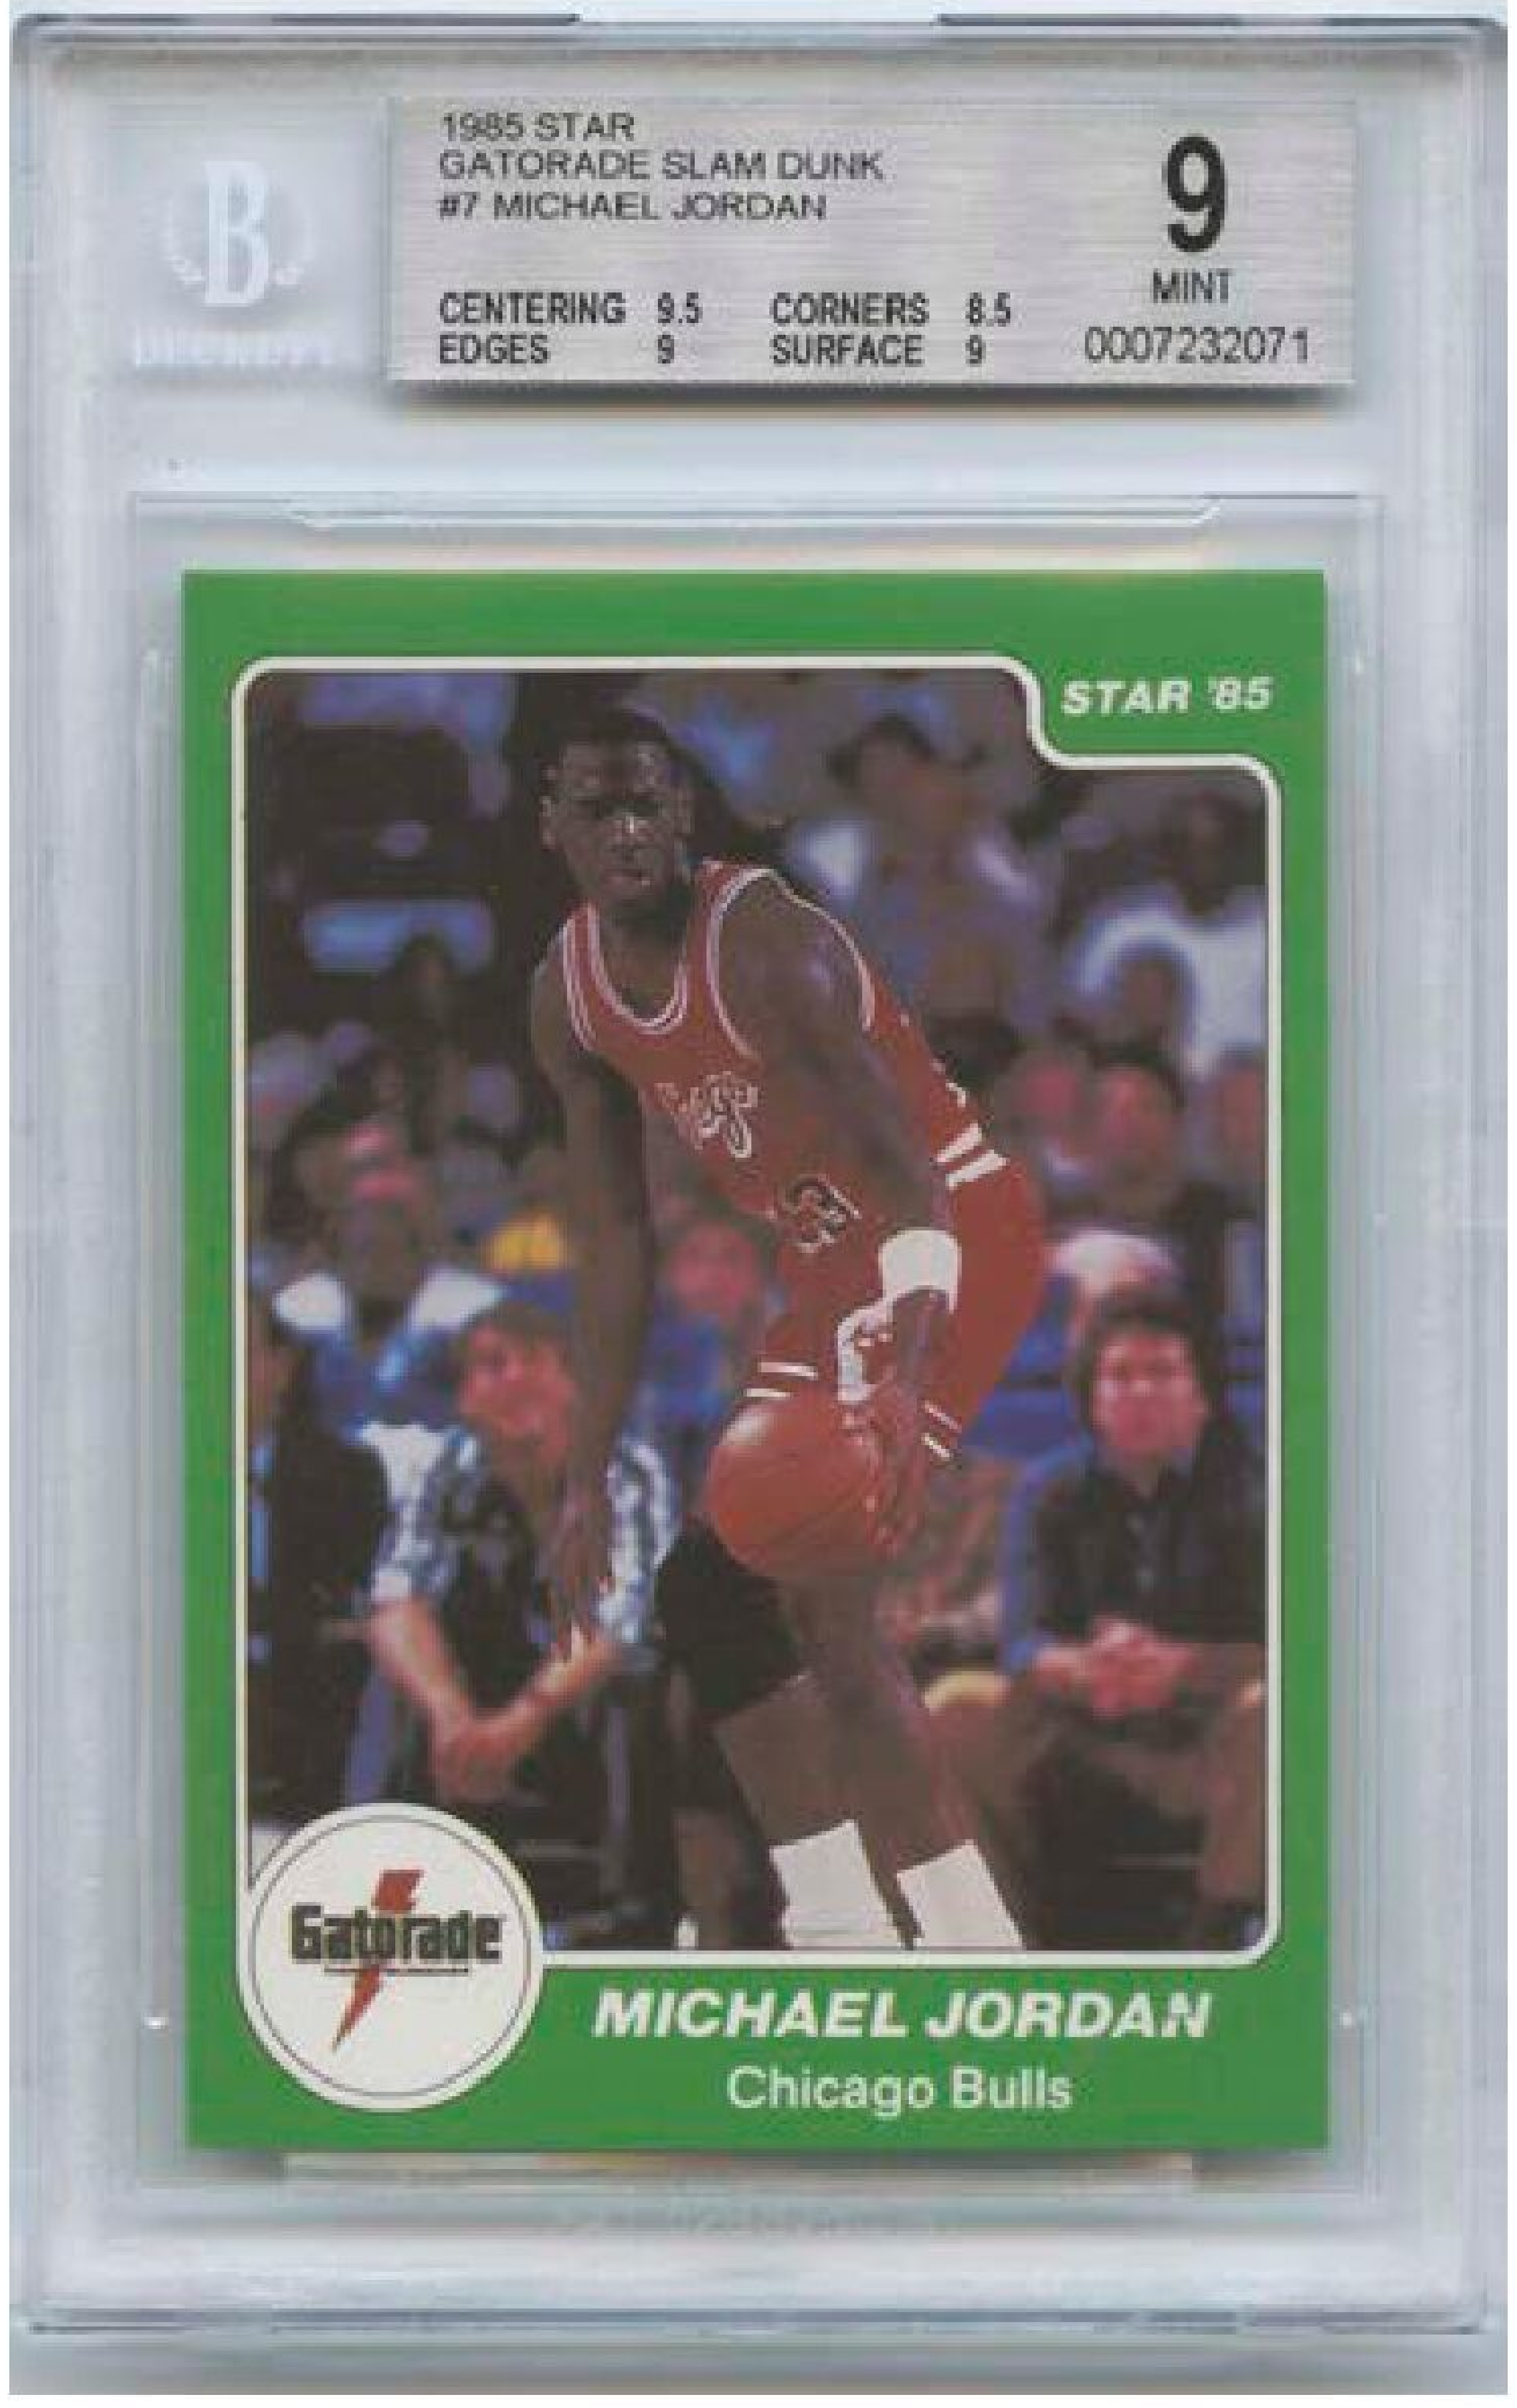
THE 1985
NBA ALL-STARS
Starting Line-Ups





STEVE TAFT: "It's a combination of things. While Jordan cards have been on the hot list for quite a while, I'm seeing more interest in Bird, Magic, Barkley, Kareem, Dr. J., Stockton, and many other star players from the Star Co. era of the mid-1980s. I'm even seeing an uptick in sales of Star Co. commons. And the announcement from PSA that they are starting to grade Star Co. certainly has added to the interest level. I think it's a pretty big deal to finally have PSA and BGS both on board to grade these cards, and that really brings a stronger level of confidence to the hobby that these cards can be graded and authenticated."

BB: How bad did the flurry of misinformation surrounding Star Co. affect the NBA sets?

ST: "The simple answer is it hurt a lot. Demand and card values dropped quite a bit. It has been a long, slow build to get the correct information out to the hobby, but I think we've been pretty successful turning things around, and now that the two biggest grading companies are taking Star Co. submissions, I think basketball collectors can be pretty confident in adding Star Co. cards to their collections."

BB: You've handled Star Co. basketball cards from the company's very first release in 1983. What were the early days like?

ST: "I ordered 50 sets of the 1983 All-Star Set, Star Co.'s first basketball issue. I skipped a few order forms when cash flow was tight, but I remember ordering a batch of 1985 Lite All-Stars, 1985 Gatorade, 1985-86 All-Rookie Team, and many others. I think those were $1.25 per set. There were some minimum order sizes to get the dealer pricing. With the Star Co. NBA team sets, my recollection is you had to order five of each team to get the dealer pricing. Pretty amazing to look back at having bought many of those Jordans at $1.25 each. Of course, I was selling them for $2-$5 a set for the first couple years. They didn't start to make the value move until about 1988."

BB: The 1983-84 Star set carries a lot of short prints. Why is that, because of centering or some other problem?

ST: "What actually happened with that first series of cards, you'll see a lot of surface ink problems. Levin had to toss a lot of cards because the surface ink ruined the card."

BB: Was the packaging of team sets in polybags ever a point of contention with collectors at the time? How much did those bags hurt edges and corners?

ST: "I actually thought it was a rather innovative move on the part of Robert Levin, the Star Co. owner, to package the cards in team bags and subsets (like the All-Star sets, Slam Dunk sets, etc.). I'm holding many of the original dealer order forms from Star Co. I've barely skimmed thru them, but you can see where store owners/dealers would order extra sets of their hometown team compared to the other teams. This was an area where this packaging was very helpful. I don't think the Star Co. bags impacted condition any more than the typical wax pack. It still gets down to handling, or, hopefully, a lack of handling."

BB: Are there still any raw legitimate copies of Jordan's 1984-85 #101 card? Or have the majority been graded?

ST: "There's certainly a lot in BGS holders with approximately 15 years of grading Star. And PSA has already slabbed a few. The answer is yes, there are still some sealed bags and raw, original Jordan 101s. I don't see as many [sealed] bags as 10-plus years ago, but there still are some being held by collectors."

BB: What is the level of interest for players who did not make the 1980-81Topps set but appear in 1986 Fleer?

ST: "I'm seeing a pretty solid level of interest at my Beckett Marketplace Store in sales of the minor stars and commons. One of the great moves made by Star Co. was to go 10-12 players deep per team with their first two NBA sets. Some of these players never made it to a Topps card previously, or never made it to a Fleer card in later years."

BB: Are there still bargains to be found for players like Larry Bird, Magic, Isiah, Barkley, Olajuwon, etc.?

ST: "The superstars can be expensive from the NBA team sets, but there's some great values still available in the subsets. If you look at the 1984 Award Banquet, or, the 1984 Celtics Champs, or the 1985-86 Lakers Champs, there's at least two cards of Bird and Magic in each set. These can be bought for a lot less than the price of the Bird or Magic cards in the team sets. Besides Bird and Magic, these subsets have many other big stars included like Kareem, Dr. J. and others."

BB: What was the first sign of potential issues with some of the nefarious things going on with the cards, and what was that?

ST: "The first thing that shook up the hobby was what we refer to as the "Type II Counterfeits." These were cards that an employee at the print shop most likely stole. The layering of the film negatives was off register a bit, and these were most likely cards that should have been destroyed. There are a couple other telltale signs to differentiate these cards from the original issues. In an SCD interview, this employee claimed to have bought the cards from Star at the Hawaii Trade Show. What he didn't tell SCD was that he was an employee of the print shop. I got this bit of info when I was discussing counterfeits with the NBA lawyers. This "Type II Counterfeit" situation had the attention of law enforcement, the NBA lawyers, SCD's Bob Lemke, and I got involved, too. A very important point to consider is that with all the research that was done between all of us - both together and individually - I never found any sign that the Star Co. owner, Robert Levin, ever had possession or sold any of these Type II Counterfeits. Nearly 40 years later, it still looks like these cards were solely distributed by that former employee of the print shop.

"These are the cards that do require some knowledge to differentiate from the originals, but, with a little study time, it can be done. It's probably easier than learning the 30-plus counterfeit variations of the Jordan Fleer RC."

BB: What sets were affected by these quality-control rejects finding their way onto the market?

ST: "The Type II Counterfeits consist of 1985-86 Star NBA #'s 95-172, 1986 Best of the NEW, and the 1986 Michael Jordan 10-Card Set. The general telltale signs are the originals have a slight amount of front border color bleed onto a back edge(s). The Type II's do not bleed. The border framing lines tend to be different than the originals. Ink on back 'tends' to be brighter on the Type II's. Note I said 'tends' and not guaranteed. Gloss 'tends' to be more noticeable on the Type II's than the originals. Again, note 'tends' and not guaranteed."

BB: What was the moment of reckoning with Star cards? Was it the Shop at Home situation?

ST: "That happened in 1997 and caused the most harm to the brand. The way it was perceived at the time was that Star had reprinted their original cards. However, that was NOT what happened. Brand new cards were printed, but they were backdated to 1985 and 1986, with the explanation these cards were left in the warehouse storage all these years. Possible confusion stemmed from using similar set names. A good example is the 1985 Lite All-Stars set. The original set has blue front with blue and white back with dark blue ink. Most of the cards have different pictures. The Jordan card appears to have the same picture, but it was cropped slightly different on the Shop at Home issue. Ultimately, these sets were unlicensed fantasy sets, as they were not copies of the original sets.

"I received a call from the NBA's Private Investigator shortly after these sets started appearing on Shop at Home. The NBA thought there was likely some illegal use of their licensing going on, as they didn't think the sets were printed back in 1985/1986. I have some awareness of the Star Co. office and what was stored there around the time of the private auction, and was pretty sure these cards were not in storage. Ultimately, a search warrant was served on the Florida print shop Star Co. was using and these Shop at Home cards were found in the process of being printed and ready for pick up."

BB: They were essentially 'Sets That Never Were' because they were new creations, right? But they didn't go back and reprint the original mid-'80s cards . . . why?

ST: "While the Shop at Home scandal was the dark moment in Star Co. history, it also provides some pretty strong evidence to suggest the purity of the original 1983-1986 Star Co. Basketball cards. My thought is IF you could successfully reprint your original cards, why would you bother to spend the labor time and money to design and print brand new cards? At the time, if Star could have successfully reprinted Jordan 101 RCs, they could have easily sold a few each month for about $2,000 each. This would be a much easier way to make money than designing new sets, paying the set-up and printing costs, then using middlemen to get your product to Shop at Home.

"The rumor of Star reprinting the original 1983-1986 sets was still making the rounds, despite a lack of evidence to support the rumor. The NBA attorney's and Private Investigator never found that to be true, and I never found any evidence of that in my research efforts. Ultimately, it's important for collectors to know the Shop at Home sets were new sets that were backdated, and none of them were reprints of the original 1983-1986 sets. I should add this . . . if you want to know if a set is an original, get a copy of Beckett's Annual Basketball Card Price Guide. It lists ALL the original 1983-1986 Star Co. sets. If you do not see the set listed there, it's one of the illegal sets."

BB: What was your role as a consultant for BGS, and how did you work with them when they started grading Star Co.?

ST: "Mark Anderson, the former Director of Grading at BGS, called me to discuss my thoughts on training BGS on Star authentication. A few weeks later I went to Dallas and spent a day with the BGS grading staff. We discussed some Star history, went over the Type II counterfeits and Shop at Home situation, and went over all the things to look for in identifying counterfeits. We had a few phone calls for a couple months, and I remained available for a couple years in case there were any questions, though I was rarely called. I was able to work with graders at three companies over the years, and it never ceased to amaze me how good their eyes were at picking up the little things.

"I consulted with Sports Collector's Digest, GAI /Global Authentication, Inc, and Beckett/BGS on Star authentication. I had an agreement just about ready with PSA, but we didn't get to complete that one. For clarity, I did not grade cards for any company in my role as an authentication consultant. I just provided authentication training and information."

BB: PSA has begun to grade Star Co. cards again. Is this a sign of wider acceptance and growing market for the cards? Will you be consulting with them, or any other grading company, in some capacity?

ST: "I had a few discussions with PSA's former management about providing training on Star Co. authentication, but it never went anywhere. I received a call over a year ago from the new management that they wanted to begin grading Star Co. So the first thing for collectors to understand is there's NEW management/ownership at PSA, and one of their first projects was to grade Star. I've heard so many complaints over the years from collectors about PSA avoiding the Star Co. authentication process, but you have to separate the old ownership from the new. Credit should be given to the new team for taking this project and getting started. I've been getting asked a lot if I trained PSA. The answer is no and almost. We discussed a contract, but my personal and work-related scheduling issues caused too long of a delay. The bottom line is the new ownership recognized the importance of grading Star and they have started on a limited basis. I would assume they will add more sets to their acceptance list as they complete their research. And yes, this is another major sign of acceptance of Star Co. cards."

ST: "I guess I've had every card from the 1983-1986 run at least a few times, and some many, many times. But I'm a card dealer, so, they go in and out of inventory. I do have a partnership with Bill Schonsheck on the key historical pieces from Star Co. In 1996, Bill made a deal with Robert Levin to buy out the office records and production transparencies used to make the original Star Co. cards. Bill tucked these away for over 20 years and contacted me about this about three years ago.

"Recently, I've started to market the Production Transparencies. They're similar to film negatives and these were used in the production of the cards. We've recently sold the Michael Jordan 1984-85 Star #195 and #288 Transparencies, but we still have the #101 Jordan RC Transparency, a couple other Jordans, and approximately 500 more commons, stars, and rookies. Production on the various Star Co. sets was between 3,000 and 10,000 sets per issue.

These Production Transparencies are one of a kind, and the significance of having the exact image used to make these cards is quite special. Bill's personal collection contains original artwork and images used for 1961 Fleer Basketball, early Topps, and this very large collection of the Star Co. Production Transparencies. This batch also includes some original artwork that sets up the border designs, and, I have a big box of original invoices and cancelled checks.

"It's interesting to go thru the checks to see royalty payments to the NBA, payments to printers and design companies. Going thru the invoices is also interesting. I see many names that I don't know, but every once-in-a-while I'll see an order with a familiar name. I don't think this batch includes every invoice in their history, but at some point, I'd like to go thru them in better detail. There's a debate about whether the Jordan #101 or the blue bordered 5 x 7 Court Kings was the first card shipped of Jordan by Star. I just don't remember, but one of my old dealer friends claims it was the Court Kings. Others have disputed that and said it was the #101 in the Bulls team bag. There's a chance these invoices could provide some evidence to figure this out.

After all the research I did many years ago, to have the Transparencies and office records of Star Co. now is really special to me. But there's the old problem that I am a sports collectibles dealer and have to sell the Transparencies, though, I'll likely keep a couple for a keepsake memento."

ST: "As each year goes by, there's more collectors that see BGS and now PSA handling the Star Co. brand. I've done quite a few online interviews and articles discussing authenticity, etc. There are websites and forums dedicated to Star Co. Basketball cards. When you add all this up, the knowledge base is now quite large to help collectors navigate the issues, and most importantly, clear up some of the false rumors that persisted in the past. With Jordan, Bird, and Magic cards running throughout Star Co. sets, I think we can expect the market to continue to grow. In my discussions with collectors, I see how much interest there is in the players from these sets, and as these collectors learn more about the cards and see the two major grading companies both saying, "we will grade and authenticate your Star Co. cards," the future looks promising to me."

BB: What is Robert Levin's legacy with Star? Did he do more harm or good?

ST: "Levin's legacy . . . that's tricky . . . You can't dismiss his role in the Shop at Home scandal because of the problems that it brought to the hobby/industry of sports collectibles. So, while I have to acknowledge the negatives, perhaps we should take note of the innovative marketing of the basketball cards he developed. Doing sets that contained players at the end of the bench, making 10-12 players deep in team sets, the All-Star, Slam Dunk, All-Rookie, NBA Champs subsets that featured the bigger stars. Going direct to hobby dealers with offers and low minimum quantity purchases. Looking back, he did a tremendous job showcasing the NBA. So, despite the problems that developed long after his 1983-1986 run ended, you can't dismiss the outstanding coverage his products gave to the hobby in the mid-'80s."

BB: And finally, what is Star's legacy with the collecting public, especially now with more knowledge about the cards?

ST: "Around the early '90s, I would refer to the 1980s as the NBA's Golden Era. I don't think there was a better era for the NBA, before or since. The Lakers/Celtics rivalry with Magic and Bird was probably the most competitive team basketball ever played. And the 76ers and Pistons got in on the action a bit, too. Ultimately, Star's legacy is covering the NBA's greatest era with all those team sets and subsets. Jordan, Bird, Magic, and the rookie cards of Barkley, Ewing, Stockton, Olajuwon, Drexler, Wilkins, Thomas . . . lots of cards of those superstars throughout the Star Co. checklists."

SHOP AT HOME COUNTERFEIT SETS

Confirmed sets created for Shop at Home in the late '90s, but marketed as a "find" from the '80s

- 1985 Bulls Arena
- 1986 Bulls Arena (Bulls were not part of the real 1984 Arena Set)
- 1984-85 Olympic Gold Medalist Set (Blue Border that includes Ewing, Mullin, & Tisdale that went back to college AFTER their '84 Olympic appearance). Not to be confused with the smaller red bordered Olympic cards #195-200 in the '84-5 Star NBA Set.
- 1985 Michael Jordan Olympic Set (10 cards)
- 1986 Crunch n Munch (real set is dated 1985)
- 1985 Lite All Stars (white border) - Real set has blue borders
- 1985 Last 11 R.O.Y. - Shop at Home set has red lettering (original set has blue lettering). Different photos used for the Shop at Home set.

MOTOWN'S OTHER HIT

As unsung as they come, Tiger lefty Mickey Lolich dominated on the biggest stage - the World Series

BY CHRIS STEVENS

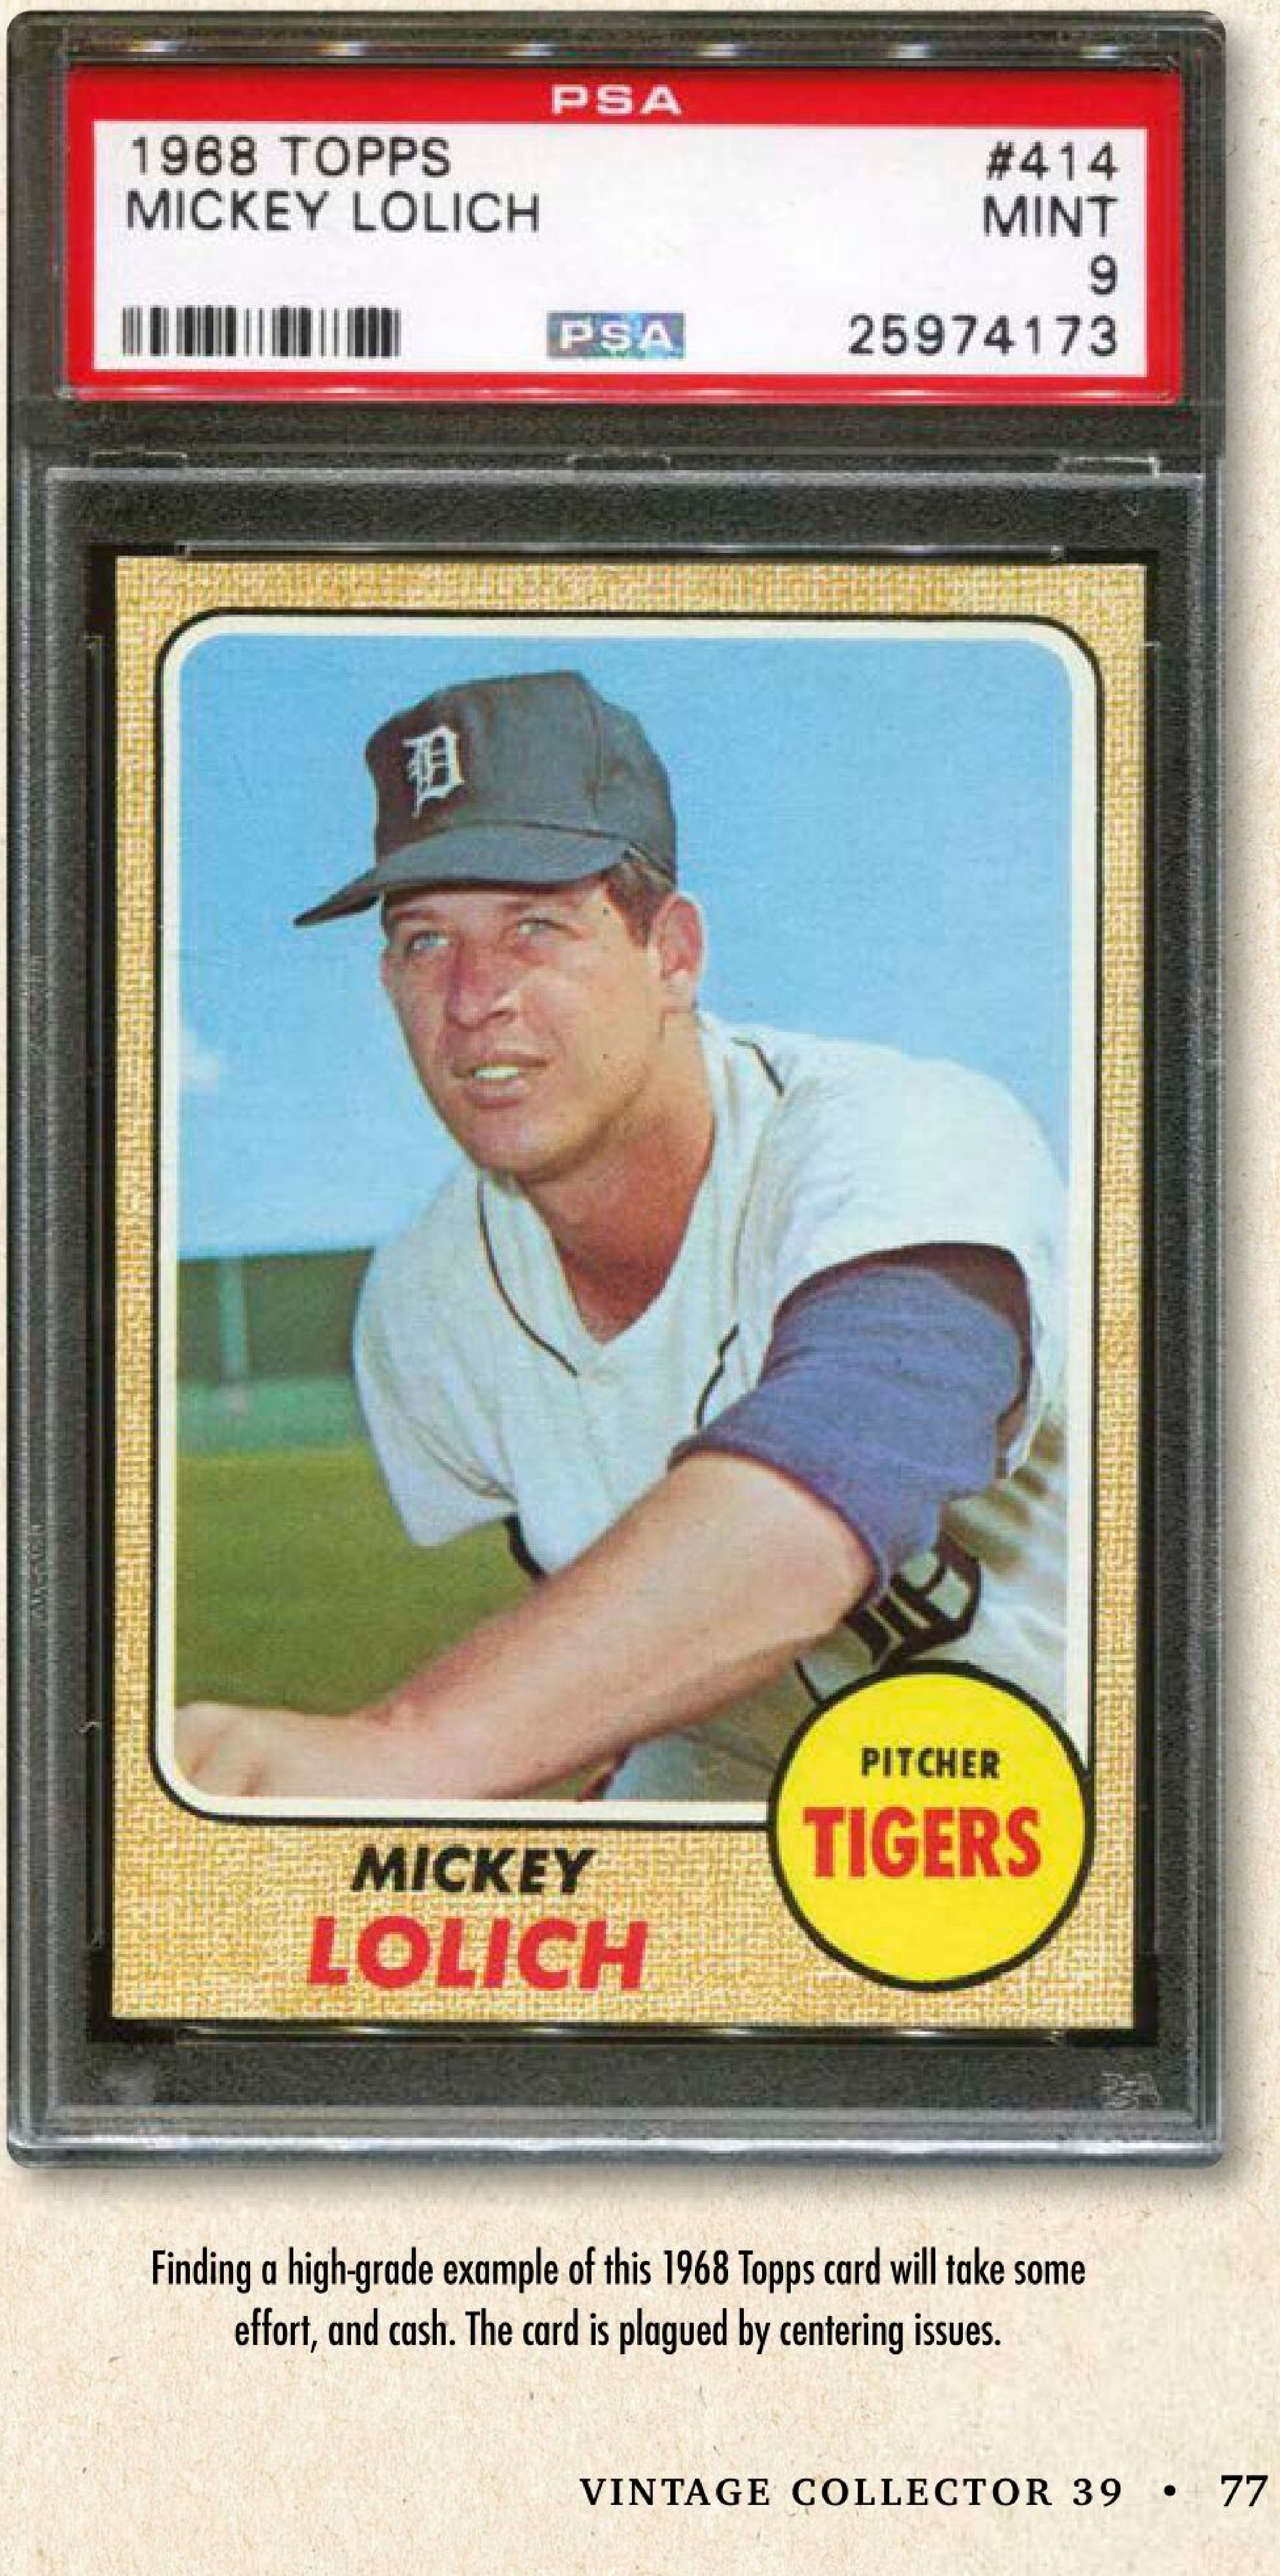
The list of pitchers who can say they have gotten the best of Bob Gibson in his prime is short – extremely short.

Mickey Lolich is one of the few on that list.

Lolich, who spent the bulk of his 16-year career with the Detroit Tigers in the 1960s to mid- '70s, outdueled Gibson in the 1968 World Series, winning three of the Tigers' four games. He also went toe-to-toe with Gibson in Game 7, a brilliant outing from the 27-year-old lefthander who was pitching on two days' rest. Lolich tossed a five-hitter in Game 7, going all nine innings as the Tigers captured the Series.

Lolich went 3-0 over his three complete games, while allowing just five runs to the high-caliber Cardinals. For his efforts, Lolich was named World Series MVP.

"I didn't know how long I could go," Lolich recalled of his Game 7 performance. "After the fifth inning, [Manager] Mayo [Smith] looked at me every inning and I would tell him I was okay. Then, when we got me some runs in the seventh, I told Mayo I would finish it."



Finding a high-grade example of this 1968 Topps card will take some effort, and cash. The card is plagued by centering issues.

1968 WORLD SERIES SPECIAL

LOLICH SERIES HERO OUTDUELS GIBSON

Mickey Wins His 3rd Game

After six scoreless frames, Mickey and his mates broke through to wrap up the 1968 World Series.

Series hero Lolich was awash in celebration after dispatching the Cardinals in Game 7.

Gibson, who had struck out a Series-record 17 batters in Game 1, tossed an eight-hitter with eight strikeouts in the finale. That loss capped a brilliant season for the Cardinals' legend.

"I got beat because the other guy pitched a better game," Gibson said after Game 7. Keep in mind, beating Gibson that year was no small task. He finished the regular season 22-9 record with that ridiculously minuscule 1.12 ERA.

Lolich was quite aware of his moment in baseball history.

"Mickey Lolich always has been a number on a roster. Finally, somebody knows who I am," he said after winning the MVP.

Many years later, Lolich recalled that Smith had demoted him to the bullpen in August because he was not pitching well. He talked about his frustrations with that move in a 2018 interview with the Detroit Free Press.

"I was really upset, and as he walked away, I told him, 'You're really going to need me one of these days,'" said Lolich, who after six successful relief appearances returned to the rotation to finish the regular season with a 17-9 record and 3.19 ERA.

"While I was being interviewed during the locker-room celebration [after the World Series], I stepped away for a moment, walked up to Mayo who was talking to a reporter and said, 'I told you that you would need me.' He said, 'I sure did.'"

His World Series stardom helped Lolich emerge from the shadows, not only from Gibson's immense presence, but also of his Tiger teammate, Denny McLain, who won an amazing 31 games that season and was named the American League Cy Young Award winner.

If anyone was expected to be dominate in the World Series for Detroit, it would have, naturally, been McLain. Thirty-One wins! But

1964 Topps RC

Denny won just one game in the '68 Series. It was Lolich who paced the Tigers against the Cardinals – and he hit the only home run of his career during a Game 2 victory!

His success was not lost on American League hitters.

From 1963-1975, Lolich, who stood 6-foot-1 and was known for a portly build, was a rock-solid left-hander. Even if he didn't look like a prototypical athlete, Lolich possessed pinpoint control, a biting slider, a wicked curve and a fastball clocked at 96 mph. And he was a gamer.

While they were a 1-2 tandem in Detroit, McLain and Lolich were more different than similar. The talented but controversial McLain received the majority of the team's headlines (most of them good) before being traded to the Washington Senators in 1970 – that after back-to-back Cy Young seasons. Lolich, in Detroit, continued to prove he was the real deal.

"Lolich was the best left-hander in the league for eight seasons," Hall of Famer Reggie Jackson told Baseball Digest in 2014. "Every time I played Detroit I had to face him. His fastball could knock your [expletive] off. He was a gallon of ice cream when you only wanted a cone, and when he took the mound at 1 p.m. you knew he would be there until the end. I wish he had gone into the donut business 10 years earlier."

Jackson was making a reference to Lolich's side business – owning and working as a baker in a donut shop in metro-Detroit. It can be safely said that there were no holes in Lolich's pitching performances through his years in Detroit.

Lolich had a streak of 12 straight seasons in which he recorded double-digit wins, including a run of nine straight years when he won 14 or more games. He twice won 20-plus games. His 1971 season, in fact, might be the best season ever pitched by someone who did not win a Cy Young.

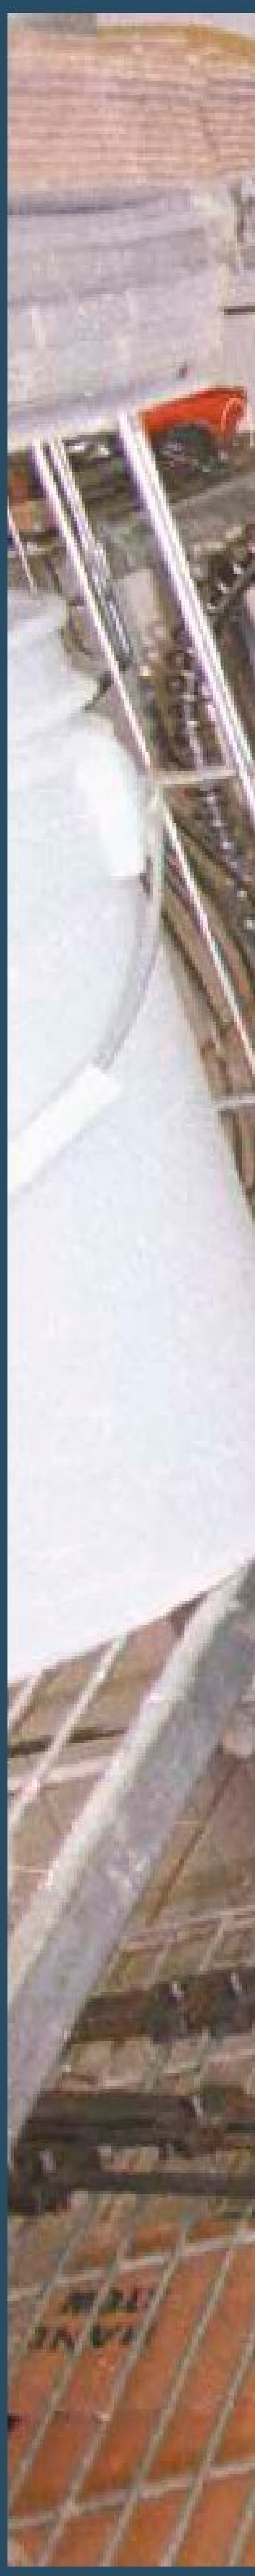
In that season, Oakland's Vida Blue, a young, hard-throwing lefty, captured the award after finishing 24-8 with a 1.82 ERA. Lolich's season was just as impressive.

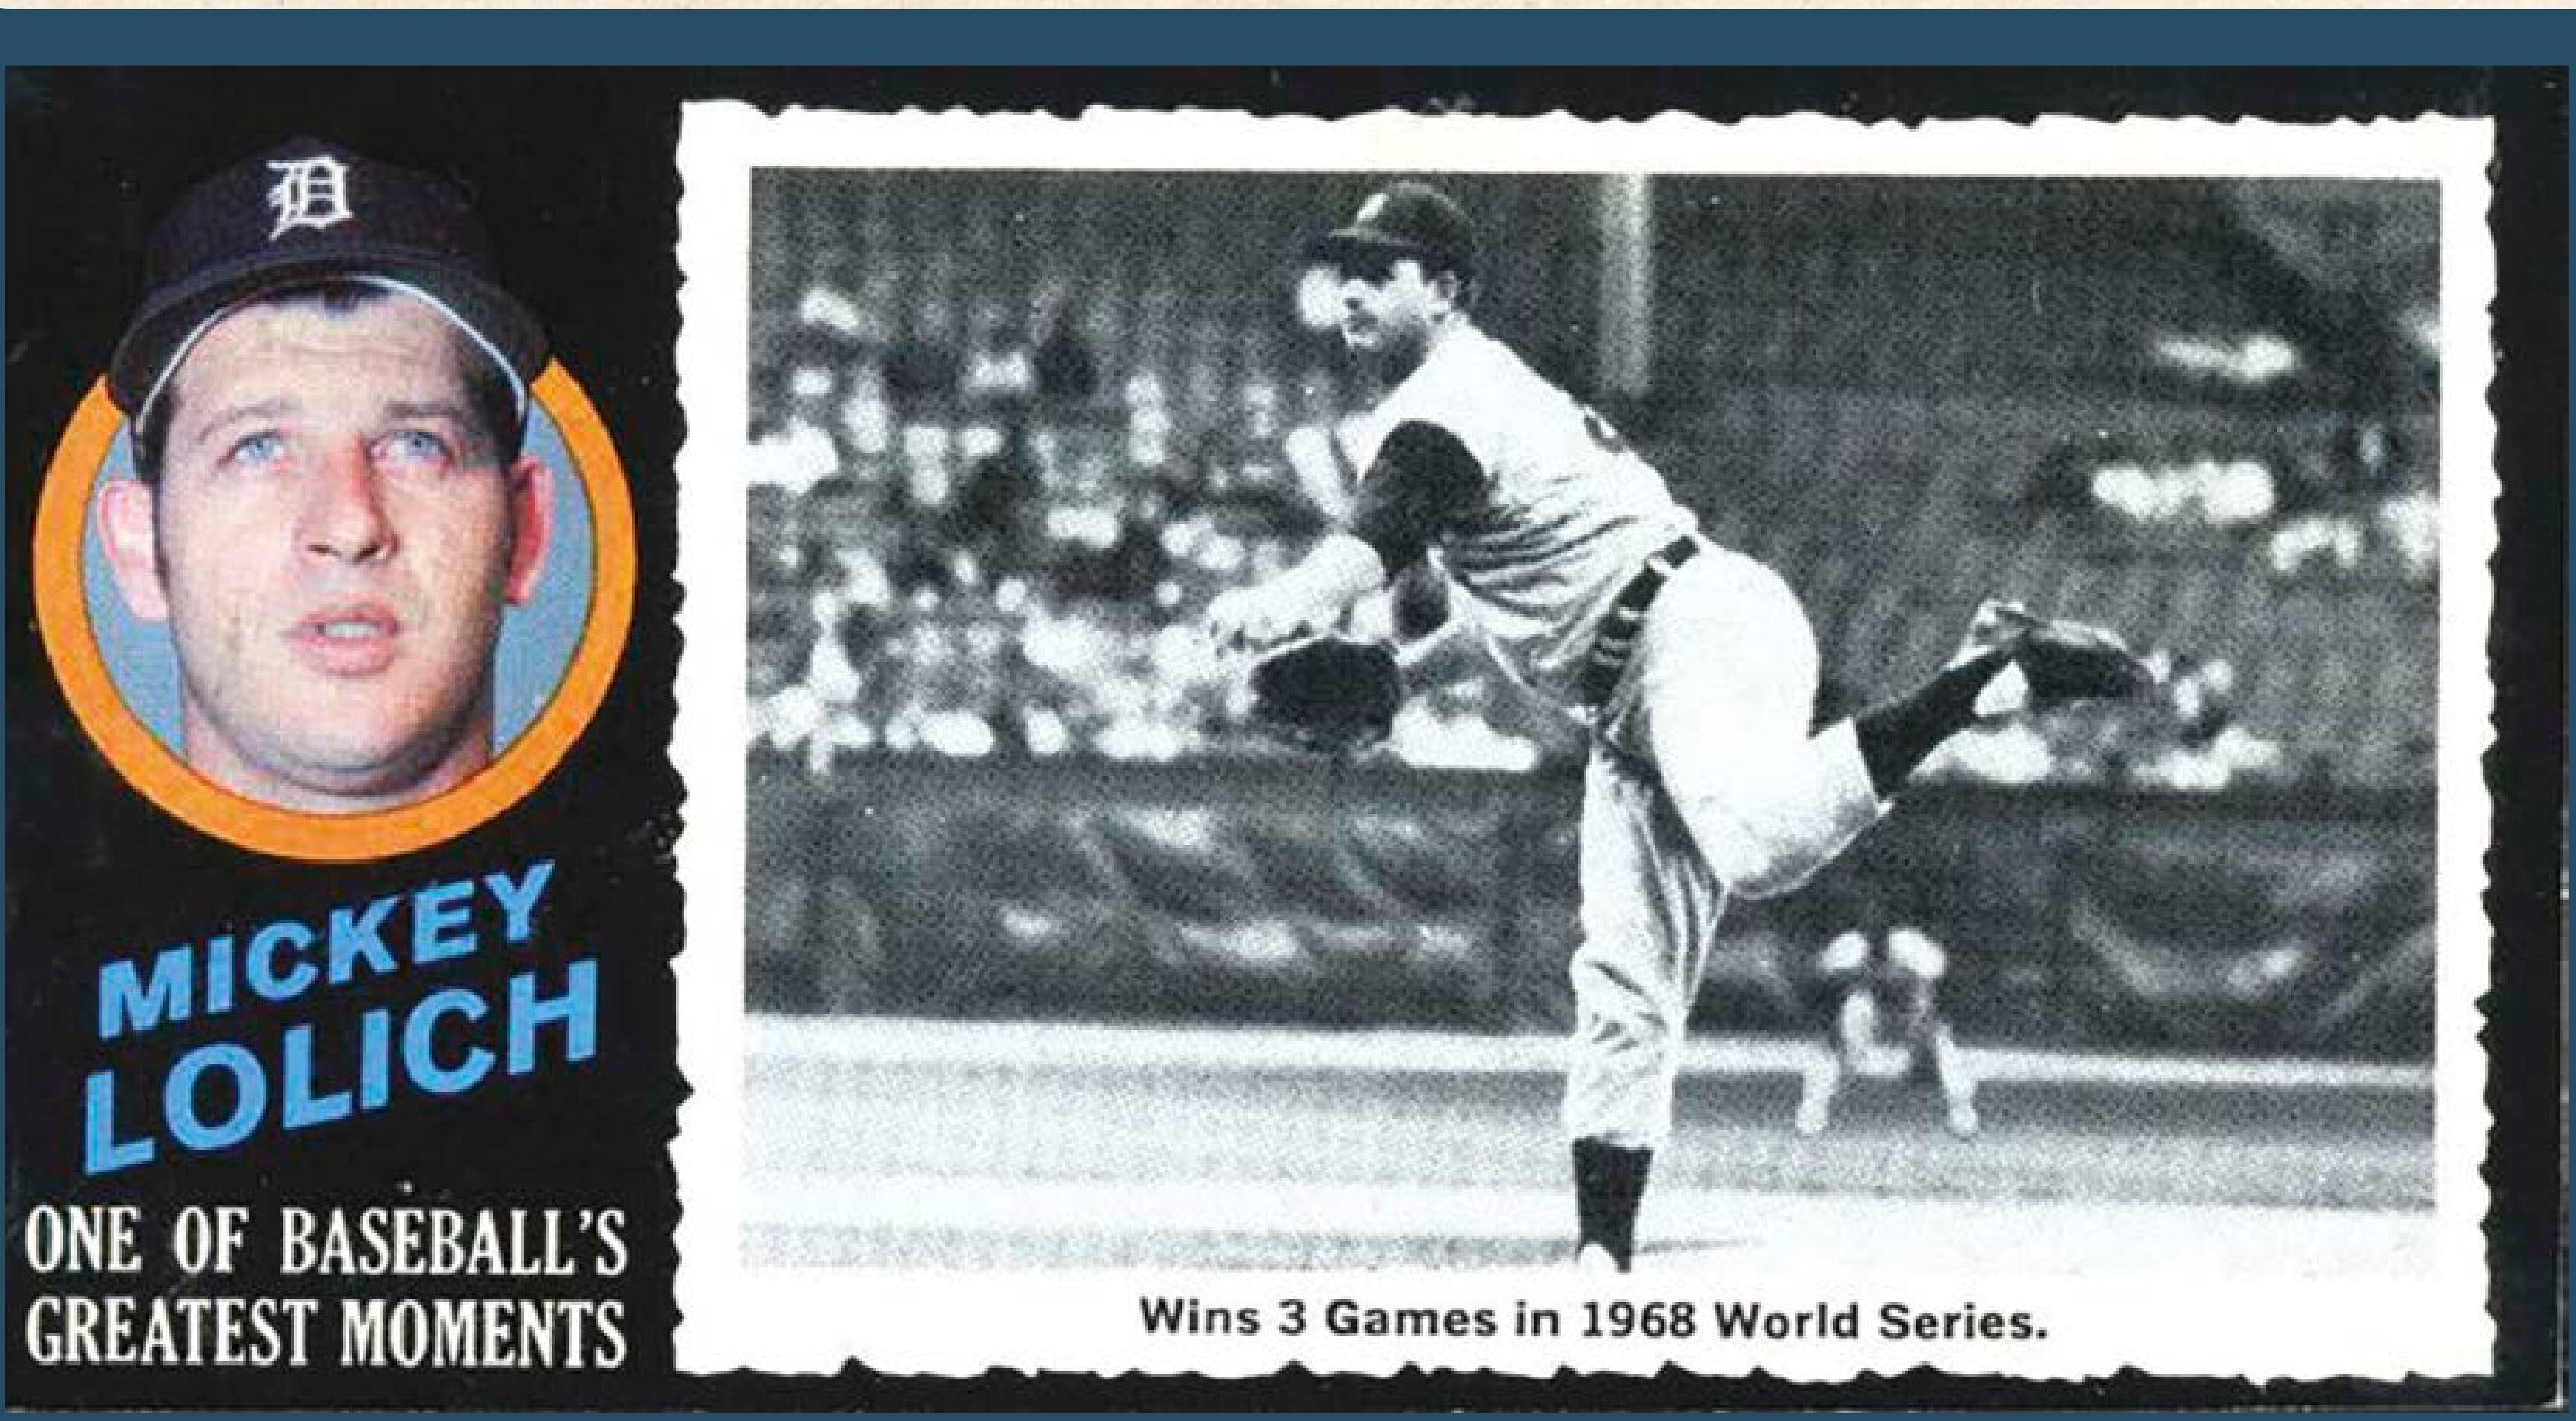
His numbers: 25-14 record, 2.92 ERA, a league-high 29 complete games (45 starts) and 376 innings pitched. He struck out a league-best 308 batters. He pitched 29 complete games!

1970 Kellogg's

Lolich figured Blue would win the award, and he did (98 points for Blue and 85 for Lolich.)

"The publicity does it for you," he told media members before Cy Young voting was announced. "Nobody knows I'm around half the time. What if they should give the award to me? People would just look around and say, 'Who's he?'





MICKEY LOLICH
ONE OF BASEBALL'S GREATEST MOMENTS
Wins 3 Games in 1968 World Series.

1971 Topps Greatest Moments

Lolich owned a doughnut shop in suburban Detroit in the 1980s.

"Every ballplayer wants recognition," he added. "That is the little extra you get out of the game. But I've reached the point where if I get anything at all, I'm surprised when I see it."

For his career, Lolich had 2,832 strikeouts, 3.44 ERA, and a 217-191 win-loss record. He currently stands fourth on the all-time strikeout list for lefthanded pitchers, trailing Randy Johnson, Steve Carlton and CC Sabathia. When Lolich retired in 1979 after a two-year stint with the San Diego Padres (he also spent one year with the New York Mets), he ranked No. 1 among lefthanders in strikeouts. He also made three All-Star appearances.

Lolich's pitching philosophy was quite simple.

"I could throw the ball hard," Lolich said in a 2004 interview, "but I tried to put it over the plate. I wanted two of my first three pitches to be strikes. It was like 'Here, hit it.'"

Along with his pitching skills, Lolich also was known for his dependability. He never had arm issues. From 1971-74, he pitched 300 or more innings, which is simply remarkable for a starting pitcher, especially compared to today's pitch-count limitations. In fact, the last pitcher to throw 300-plus innings was Carlton in 1980 (304 innings).

Lolich's secret?

"I never used ice. I would stand in the shower after a game and soak my pitching arm under hot water for 30 minutes," Lolich explained. "The water was scalding hot. After 30 minutes [my arm] would be red, but it would feel fine, and I'd be throwing on the sidelines in two days. I never had a sore arm."

Decades after his retirement from baseball, many Tigers' fans believe that Lolich, who turned 82 in September, deserves a plaque in Cooperstown, especially considering that in his era, Lolich was viewed one of the best left-handers in the sport.

That honor, however, may never happen.

And if it does not, Lolich can be confident in knowing that his career achievements and World Series heroics will remain secure with Detroit Tigers' fans forever.

GAYLORD PERRY

(SEPTEMBER 15, 1938 – DECEMBER 1, 2022)

Hall of Fame pitcher Gaylord Perry – who left opponents frustrated while guessing if he was doctoring the ball on the mound or not – died in December at age 84. His daughter, Allison, said her father had contracted the coronavirus last year and had never fully recovered.

Perry won 314 wins and struck out more than 3,500 batters over 22 seasons spent with eight teams. He was the first pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues, earning it with Cleveland in 1972 and then in the NL with San Diego in 1978. Perry hurled a no-hitter with the San Francisco Giants against the St. Louis Cardinals in 1968.

MILLS LANE

(NOVEMBER 12, 1937 – DECEMBER 6, 2022)

Mills Lane worked more than 100 boxing title bouts, but it was the 1997 fight between Mike Tyson and Evander Holyfield that he was most famous for – the night Tyson took a bite out of Holyfield's ear. He also is remembered for his "Let's get it on!" call before each bout.

Lane, a former district attorney and judge, worked fights with such champions as Muhammad Ali, Larry Holmes, Roberto Duran, Thomas Hearns and Marvelous Marvin Hagler. Lane was 85.
